THE HILL LINE WANTED

San Francisco has an aerial cab service provided by the Checker Air Service Company. Having called the cab company on the telephone, the air cab passenger will be picked up five minutes later at his office or home, whisked to Casey Field near the city, transferred to the air cab with motors running, and shot through the air at 100 miles an hour to a flying field in the city of destination, where another land cab will be waiting to rush him to his hotel or appointment—all for 20 cents a mile for each passenger, when there are two flying in the same direction.

According to the schedules, a San Francisco business man will be able to get from his office to Sacramento in one hour, to Los Angeles in four hours, and to intermediate cities in proportional time.

THE HILL LINE WANTED

The Hill lines want entry into Klamath Falls to take part in the development of the huge timber interests in that section. They are making a determined fight in Portland before the Interstate Commerce Commission to gain their ends. So far, they have made a good showing as to the tonnage which their lines could develop and in which they would participate. But existing lines want to monopolize industry there and let it develop as best suits them. They have not yet presented their argument, but it is hard to conceive where they can soundly refute the testimony of the big timber interests.

The Hill lines have said at the hearing that they do not contemplate entry into the Rogue valley. They are concerned at the present time in entering Klamath Falls, and this is their big task. Once a foothold is gained there, it would be only natural that the remainder of this first program of extension should be carried out. This would mean the building of a line to connect with the railroad from Butte Falls to Medford, thence to Grants Pass, Crescent City and down the coast to San Francisco. The first step—the entry into Klamath Falls—must be accomplished before the other steps in the program can be taken.

The people here want a railroad to the coast. Under the present conditions this will never be accomplished. The best chance is for the Hill lines to come into this territory, and their entry would be welcomed. It looks now as if the future rail development in this section depends largely upon the outcome of the hearing now in progress.—Grants Pass Courier.

flow around the paths in the wakened of two mates. Joe Harris established a cleanup hitter only yesterday, followed the Goslin creation with a furious lift which imbedded itself in the permanent stands of left field, the only home run in the series that has passed beyond the confines of the temporary stands.

As the game drew to a close, Bucky Harris shared the limelight with Johnson and Goslin with two sensational defensive plays that cut off Pirates' threats. In the seventh, the young manager leaped and stabbed a screeching drive from Wright's bat and then doubled Traynor who had singled, off first. Again in the ninth, Harris raced in to scoop up Traynor's smash, tagged Barnhart, who had walked, on the baseline, and completed another double play with a quick toss to first.

FROM ALL OVER OREGON Bits of News From Towns Throughout the State WHAT OTHERS ARE DOING

HAND IS INJURED

Miss Doris Stambone, the young daughter of Nick Stambone, is suffering from a very badly mangled arm received when she was using a washing machine. Her arm caught in the wringer and pulled in her hand and arm up to the elbow. She was rushed to the doctor and medical attention, and will not lose her hand. It was some time after neighbors heard her scream they were able to release her.—Coos Bay Times.

REGISTRATION IS HIGH

That automobile tourist travel through southern Oregon is breaking all previous records is shown by the fact that on Wednesday of this week, a total of 11,000 cars had been registered at the local out-of-state bureau by C. L. Garlock.

Estimating four persons to the car, which is the average, 44,000 tourists, or even four times Medford's population, has stopped here so far this year, while their machines were being registered. A majority take advantage of such a stop to purchase supplies.

Although the two and a half remaining months are the lightest of the tourist season, registrations are not expected to take a severe slump. The total number of cars registered last year was 1,020, or just 20 more than the present mark for nine months.—Medford News.

EUGENE HOTEL PRAISED

The Eugene hotel was complimented very highly last night by one of the guests whose word on hotel matters is regarded as authoritative up and down the Pacific coast. And it should be, for Frank W. Hull, the guest referred to, is manager of the new Olympic hotel in Seattle, the second largest hotel in the coast cities.

Mr. Hull remarked that he was very pleasantly surprised to find a hotel of the Eugene class in such a comparatively small city. He was particularly pleased with the attractive appearance of the hotel.

With Mrs. Hull and their small son, Mr. Hull is returning from Fresno, Calif., where he attended a convention of the Coast Hotels association. In addition to his position as manager of the Olympic, Mr. Hull is head of the Community Hotel corporation of Seattle.—Eugene Register.

BOOTH TO DIRECT

J. H. Booth and son Ted, left this morning for Salem, where Mr. Booth will assist in the supervision of extensive landscape work on the campus of Willamette university. The grounds have already been broken and the improvements at the present time will consist of the planting of shrubbery and the installation of an underground sprinkling system. The complete program for the work is very extensive and covers a period of five years. Landscape gardening has been a lifelong hobby of Mr. Booth and his success at it is eloquently attested to by the attractive appearance of his home in this city. In his task at Willamette university he is receiving financial cooperation from his brother, Senator R. A. Booth.—Roseburg News.

"COOS BAY KNOWS HOW"

"Coos Bay Knows How" is the slogan adopted by the 1926 convention committee of the American Legion at a meeting of the publicity and slogan committee held last night.

Forty nine slogans were submitted and, as one member put it, "many of them were excellent, but the committee felt the one chosen embraced past community successes and carried a guarantee that the coming one would be up to all expectations."

The slogan will be used on all advertising and publicity in connection with the convention. From now on monthly letters and bulletins will be sent to all posts in the state by the publicity committee.—Marshfield News.

LUMBERMAN LEAVING

William Conrad, Marshfield lumberman, accompanied by his family, is now in the middle west on his way to New York, according to a letter received here from Chicago. Conrad said he was enjoying the trip fine and had just come from a visit to his old home in La Crosse, Wis.

From New York Conrad will go to Cuba, and return home by the way of the Panama canal.—Marshfield News.

SCHOOLS GROW RAPIDLY

With an enrollment of 3,144 at present, the attendance in the Bend schools will reach 2,400 before the end of the 1925-26 year.

This was the prediction made last night at the Bend school board meet-

TRY OUT FOR MADRIGAL

An unusually large number of girls tried out for the Madrigal club Monday and Tuesday nights. All parts except alto are nearly equally divided. So much interest has been shown this year that Paul M. Petri, director of the conservatory of music, expects the chorus to be fully as good as any in the past.

Women wishing to try out may arrange a special time by seeing Professor Petri this week. Singers with alto voices are especially urged to compete. Names of those making up the chorus will be given out as soon as the list is complete.—O.A.C. Barometer.

COOKING SCHOOL STARTS

Medford housewives and perhaps those who only cook occasionally, will be interested in a free cooking school and baking demonstration to begin next Tuesday and last for a week. It will open Tuesday at 2:00 p. m. on the second floor of the Medford building.

Mrs. L. A. Humphrey, representing the Crown mills, will conduct the school. She held an important position in the domestic science department of the O. A. C. summer school this year, and has had many years' experience in baking and instructing.

Baking bread, rolls, pies, cakes and other secrets of the kitchen are included in her instruction. All women, including club girls and home economics classes, are invited.

Different demonstrations will be given each day, and prizes will be given.—Medford News.

KLAMATH BEATS ASHLAND 12 TO 7 IN FAST GAME

Discouraging seasons of past years were forgotten by wildly enthusiastic Klamath football fans that cheered the Klamath county high school football team to a 12 to 7 victory over Ashland Saturday afternoon on Fair Ground field.

It was a remarkable demonstration of what expert direction can do for an aggregation in a few weeks.

Taking the ball on the kickoff, the team saw to it that Klamath Falls made seven consecutive first downs and scored a touch-down five minutes after the game started. Half, plunging half-back for Klamath, and Yancey, full-back, carried the ball for five and ten yard gains straight through center and off left or right tackle.

Undismayed Ashland unleashed an aerial attack that resulted in four out of five passes completed and a dangerous threat at the Klamath goal before the end of the first quarter. A blocked place-kick and an Ashland score in that quarter was averted.

In the second quarter, in the shadow of Ashland's goal posts, Klamath fumbled the ball on the two yard line and Ashland man recovered.

The second Klamath score came in the third period as the result of a brilliant pass back formation, Yancey to Soale.

Ashland's lone score came a few minutes before the end of the game. Another Klamath fumble gave them the ball on Klamath's ten yard line. Three times, line plunges failed and then a pass to the left end netted a touch-down. They converted the extra point.

By Klamath's sensational and somewhat unexpected victory over Ashland, hopes are now running high for a defeat of Medford on Klamath's home grounds next Saturday afternoon.

Stars in Saturday's game were, Hall, Yancey, Barnes, Soale and the entire line which was impregnable against the onslaughts of Ashland plunges.

beyond the bounds of their state, many of whom are remembered as among the greatest in the northwest and of the coast.

There were, however, a great number of players of almost equal prominence and ability, in the local university, whose claim for a place in this hall of fame demanded that an alternate list be made up, the professor pointed out. Thus he has a double list, including 27 names.

Especially was it difficult to name alternates for tackle. This university has had an almost continuous succession of great tackles. Howe noted, "The difficulty is to stop naming them."

Here he named Dick Smith, declaring the Oregon coach who played four years at Columbia university and captained the team there after leaving the Oregon university, as the undisputed king of University of Oregon football stars. As to tackles, the veteran professor declared Johnny Beckett, whose mighty strength was felt by University of Oregon's opponents back in 1914, was the greatest tackle.

Bill Snyder was characterized as the university's greatest guard. The professor mentioned "Iron Foot" Fred Atoulon, who was famed for his ability to send the planks high and far, as a worthy claimant to high honors in U. of O.'s gridiron history. "Baz" Williams, now member of the coaching staff, and Floyd and Tiny Shields, were mentioned as better other famous guards.

For speed, Gordon Moore, whose whirlwind playing has never been forgotten here, holds the greatest claim to fame, the professor said. Another fast man was Johnny Parsons, who played half back in the early 'twenties—a twisty, fast elusive man.

Bill Steers, remembered as University of Oregon's, and probably the coast's, greatest punter, holds first claim as the greatest halfback. In the opinion of Professor Howe, other great punters mentioned by him were Beckett and Dudley Clarke.

Tegar, chosen for end on the all-time team, was remembered by the professor as the university's greatest forward pass receiver. "Weary" Chandler's ability to annex the ball when it was dropped by an opponent
