CITY PRINTING DECISION GIVEN

time other than at a regular meeting." In support of this the dissenting opinion quotes from an opinion by Justice Rand, one of the justices who concurred in the prevailing opinion today.

Further, the dissenting opinion says:

"Both bids were for the same service. The only discretion given the council is to determine the circulation, and the relation of the bids as to price. The complaint negatives any claim on the part of the defendants that the lower bid is now responsible. If in the face of these facts the common council can ignore the plain provisions of the city charter and award the contract to the highest bidder, the taxpayers of the city are without remedy The provision in the charter requiring the contract for the official advertisements of the city to be let to the lowest responsible bidder was intended to protect the tax payers of the city against exhorbitant charge. The common council is as much under obligation to obey the provision of the charter as any other citizen of the city."

SWEL LIN VALUE OF LIRA DID NOT REDUCE COST OF LIVING

ROME, — The recent increase in the value of the lira, which was expected to relieve the high cost of living, has instead left Italians at loggerheads with the task of making ends meet.

When the lira was worth hardly more than three cents, the cost of living suddenly soared upward. But when the lira was again worth more than four cents, the high cost of living refused to come down, despite the lamentations of the people.

Shopkeepers who marked up their prices refused to mark them down, arguing they had to pay for their stocks at the higher prices and that the lira was too unsteady to permia stabilizing selling rates.
