THE SECOND WARD ELECTION

The election of Z. J. Powell, while gratifying to those who took an active part in the campaign of the successful candidate, carries with it more than the satisfaction of victory. It carries with it a message from the people of the second ward to the people of the city that they stand shoulder to shoulder with them for progress and development; for the maintenance of the open door for all railroads; of indorsement of Mayor Goddard for the splendid fight he made to protect the rights of the city against the attempt of private interests; of approval of Mr. Powell's stand against the closing of the streets and alleys in the southern end of the second ward; and, finally, a message to the council that the people demand that the rights of the Oregon Trunk be respected and that the $300,000 invested in the Strahorn railroad be recovered.

When Mr. Powell takes his seat in the council chamber, he will represent more than the second ward—he will stand as the representative of the sentiment of the entire city, for the campaign was made upon the issues outlined above. The members of the council will do well to heed the result of this election, get in step with the spirit of the city and forever forsake their attitude of the "public be damned."

We are glad Mr. Powell was elected and we know that he will never be found wanting in the service of his constituents. He will be found to be the representative of all the people of the ward—a man who day in and day out will be working for their interests, as well as for the interests of the entire city.

Councilman Powell, we congratulate you.

Though defeated, Mr. Lyle should have no regrets. He secured a vote that was a strong testimonial of the high esteem in which he is held by a large number of his friends and neighbors. If he had been elected, he would have brought to the council much experience as a legislator that would have been valuable and would undoubtedly have proven himself a worthy servant of the people. Circumstances, however, were such that the people of his ward bestowed the honor upon Mr. Powell, but in doing so they cast no reflection upon Mr. Lyle, whose splendid, upright character was given a vote of confidence of which he has good reason to be proud.

There was one thing that was settled at yesterday's election that many of the voters did not know was a part of the campaign—and that was "Bill" Lee's political ambitions. The defeat of his pet candidate, the man he induced to stand as a sacrifice and whom he lead to slaughter, sounded the political death knell to the future political aspirations of the county assessor, otherwise known as "Bill" Lee. Once too often he "meddled," but this once was enough, and you will hear the echo of it at the primaries next year, if "Bill" is foolish enough to stand as a candidate for renomination. Another individual who also passed from the political map of the city is the "Meddlesome Mike" of the council—L. L. Gaghagen. Gaghagen was so anxious to land a haymaker upon the political physiognomy of Mayor Goddard that he busied himself with the candidacy of Smith to such an extent that he even dropped into the slough of superstition and gave to Powell the number "13" on the ballot. Ordinarily candidates are numbered 1, 2, 3, and 101, 102, 103. But not so in this election. Gaghagen thought he would put the "Indian sign" on Powell, so he numbered the candidates, 12, 13, 14, placing 13 opposite the name of Z. J. Powell. He didn't know that 13 is Powell's lucky number. However, Gaghagen's number is "23," which he will have occasion to recall if he ever stands for reelection.

BACK FROM FLORIDA

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kincaid, who have been visiting in Florida and also touring through the southern and eastern states, returned to North Bend yesterday after an absence of two months.

While traveling through Texas the local people encountered a flood and several severe rain storms. Mr. Kincaid stated that many beautiful bridges are built in the southern states in preparation for floods and high water. The garages and restaurants charged the tourists nearly double for everything. Mr. Kincaid conducts a real estate office here.—Marshfield News.

MORE PAVING SOUGHT

Fifteen more blocks of paving for the winter program are now in sight, with petitions being circulated on two streets in the city. Those circulating these petitions report excellent success and feel assured that they will meet with good results. It now appears that the paving crew will be kept busy on street improvements in Grants Pass during the coming season, insuring greater progress in paving than ever before in the history of the city.

The present work is going ahead rapidly. The crew completed a street pavement to Sixth street last Tuesday evening, a day ahead of the schedule. On Monday the pouring of the bridge over Gilbert creek on a street will be started.—Grants Pass Courier.

VICTIM OF ATTACK

Mrs. Mary A. Showalter the wife of W. L. Showalter of Loon Lake died last night at her home after a heart attack. Mrs. Showalter had been ailing for some time and yesterday visited a physician at Reedsport as she was feeling worse. She was apparently improved last night.

The deceased was 59 years of age and is survived by her husband who is located at Loon Lake and several children in the east. No funeral arrangements will be made until the children are heard from. E. C. Thuerwacher took charge of the body today.—Coos Bay Times.

HOT MONKEY MEAT

Hot monkey meat diet and six months on the Amazon would be plenty of fun. Such is the ambition of Leslie C. Davis, '24 graduate in agriculture. He plans to travel the entire length of the Amazon—3900 miles—in an open canoe.

Mr. Davis has been employed by the Cerro De Pasco railway company since his graduation here. He has been stationed at Ticlio, the highest station of a standard gauge railroad in the world. It is 15,565 feet above sea level, approximately 4000 feet higher than Mt. Hood. Passenger trains have to be equipped with oxygen tanks to reanimate people in case they succumb to the effects of the quick change in altitude.

"I have spent already 20 days in the jungle, living with the Indians and getting along nicely, even to eating monkey meat," Mr. Davis writes. "I will start my trip down the Amazon soon, spending perhaps six months in the jungles."

Stepping from the class room into the vast world opens one's eyes to new people, places, climates, modes of living, and activities. "The plant growth here at about 7000 feet altitude is luxuriant. An agriculturist cannot help but ponder over the waste to mankind. It is like a hydro-electric engineer looking over a thousand Niagaras. Transportation is the limiting factor, and will be until the people take advantage of the Amazon, the logical outlet."

Davis expects to start a farm in Peru as soon as he finishes his trip down the Amazon. "I have planned to start a farm in this country, but I have not yet found a satisfactory location."—O. A. C. Barometer.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON. — Many people have an idea that congressmen are pretty dumb," writes a correspondent. "Just how true is this?" he asks. "As to brains and education, how do they stack up?"

Brains? That's largely a matter of opinion. As to education they do stack up extremely well.

Of the 96 senators in the 68th congress 74 were college men. Not quite all of the 74 were graduates, but most of them were, and all had at least made a start.

The representatives are a less select body and their showing wasn't so brilliant. Still, it was good. Of the 433 of them—there were two vacancies in the house when congress adjourned last March—290 had at least entered college and the overwhelming majority were graduates, many with exceptional honors.

The 69th congress will differ somewhat from the 68th and the new members' biographies are not available yet, but it is reasonably safe to predict that the two houses' educational average next winter will not be materially unlike the last two.

New England members of the 68th congress, representatives as well as senators, were almost 100 per cent liberally educated. Next came the middle northwest—states like Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Iowa—and the southeast, from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, about neck and neck. Then the Pacific coast. Fourthly the old-time cow country. Finally New York City and the industrial region, between the Alleghenies, the Mississippi and the Ohio valley.

COUER, D'ALENE, Idaho.—After the referee had awarded a fight to Don Frazier, Spokane, on a foul in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout with Al Gracio, Spokane, the Idaho state boxing commission overruled the decision and declared the bout no contest.
