

OREGON STAGES BIG COME-BACK

Washington Noses Out in Football Game by Close Score of 15 to 14

SEATTLE, Nov. 27.—The purple tornado of the University of Washington today adorns the football throne of the Pacific coast, as the result of the defeat yesterday of the University of Oregon 15 to 14.

The Oregon eleven entered the game doped to lose by a large margin, but upset the dope and almost upset Washington's drive for the coast conference title by putting up its best game of the season.

Washington tallied a touchdown in the opening period, but failed to convert for the extra point. Each team scored a touchdown in the second period, the third was scoreless, and the fourth quarter started with the score 12 to 7 for Washington.

Oregon then split the purple tornado wide open with a dazzling aerial attack, carrying the ball from her 20 yard line across the Huskies' goal. The webfooters converted, making the score 13 to 12 to Oregon. Washington then took the ball and started a furious drive down the field which ended in a field goal and defeat for the fighting Oregonians. Fate decided the issue on that field goal, for the ball, leaving the toe of Shidler, whom Coach Bagshaw had sent in to kick, struck one of the goal posts upright, dropped on to the cross bar, wavered then dropped inside.

Late in the period Oregon began a drive for another score. Throwing caution to the winds, the Oregonians hurled pass after pass, and the very daring of the attack took the ball to Washington's ten yard line. Then, just before the pistol ended the game, Anderson, Oregon back, tossed a pass toward an Oregon man across the Huskies' line but it was intercepted.

DARLING GETS LONG SENTENCE IN STATE PEN

Thomas Vaughn Must Serve Two Years Behind Prison Bars, Judge Decrees

Gray grim walls of the state penitentiary will be the boundaries of the world for Roy Darling for the next seven and one half years. For this morning, Darling was sentenced by Judge A. L. Leavitt to serve that term behind prison bars.

Darling was convicted for a particularly aggravated and revolting statutory crime, by a jury early this week.

"The crime, of which you were charged and duly convicted," Judge Leavitt addressed Darling, "is particularly obnoxious, for that reason the legislature has seen fit to attach a very severe penalty."

"This court feels you should spend sufficient time behind the prison walls to reform. It is the judgment of the law and the sentence of the court that you be confined in the state penitentiary for seven and one half years."

Darling, a young man, was pallid as he stood before the judge to receive sentence. When the words "seven and one half years in the state penitentiary" were pronounced by the court, he caught his breath and his face was suffused with red. He made his way unsteadily back to his seat, obviously hard hit.

Thomas Vaughn, with a more moderate sentence to face, nervously clasped and unclasped his hands while Judge Leavitt discoursed on apparent contradictions in the law. He really appeared to a certain extent relieved when the judge said:

"The court in passing sentence on you, Mr. Vaughn, has taken into consideration the fact that you have been confined in the county jail, awaiting trial since August 8. It is the judgment of the law and the sentence of the court that you be confined in the state penitentiary for two years."

Vaughn was convicted Wednesday morning on a charge of operating a still.

Attorney for Darling announced to the court that a motion for a new trial in the case would be filed with the court in the near future.

To Take Part In Tuesday's Boxing Card

The young man at the top is Billy Watson, Eureka lightweight, who will do his best to knock Mike Le Pinto of Portland for a goal in their 10 rounds of leather shoving at the Scandia hall next Tuesday night when they will box for the Kiddies' Christmas benefit fund. Watson says he'd rather fight than eat and fans hereabouts know he'll have to do a lot of fighting if he expects to win over the clever Portlander.

Below is the fighting pose of Chuck Sams, Klamath welterweight, who has been stepping fast during recent months. Chuck is stepping out Tuesday night against Micky Gibbons, stable-mate of Watson, who is a regular little fighting machine.
