

Klamath Falls Meets Alturas Tomorrow P. M.

Tomorrow, Klamath Falls baseball nine will undergo its first real test, for tomorrow the Pelicans meet the fast Alturas also on the fair grounds field. According to reports, the game tomorrow will not be a replica of the Dorris-Klamath Falls game. Alturas boasts a fast team composed of veterans.

In all probability Andy Street, Klamath's pitching school teacher, will start in the box. Street has been going great guns. His arm is limber and he is sizzling them over the plate with his peculiar underhanded snap. In the Dorris game, Street pitched two innings. He fanned every batter that faced him.

Tattooed Indians With Circus

A colossal dramatic presentation of the events in the life of the only American Princess forms the outstanding feature of the Al G. Barnes Big 4 Ring Circus which is coming to Klamath Falls, Monday, May 10. "Pocahontas at the Court of Queen Anne" is the title of the all new spectacle presented by Barnes this year. The story is one of which all school children are familiar and it is presented upon a scale of magnificence unusual under canvas. Three tribes of real Indians add historical color to the pageant and one tribe in particular, the Escondidos, have never been off the reservation before. They are the tribe in which the girl's faces are tattooed in certain ways to denote if they are married or single. Special permission was granted by the government for the Al G. Barnes circus to engage this tribe for the season's tour. Many new animal features will be presented and critics who have seen the show declare this season's performance to be Al G. Barnes' best effort.

"Student Prince" at Medford

The engagement of "The Student Prince" at the Hunt's Craterian, Medford, Monday night, May 10th, marks the pinnacle of achievement by the Messrs Shubert in the presentation of the musical play, that offering of the theatre, which, basically an entertainment of musical values, has for its theme a story that runs consistently thru the operetta.

"The Student Prince" is an adaptation of Richard Mansfield's stage success, "Old Heidelberg," made by Dorothy Donnelly, and set to music by Sigmund Romberg, composer of both "Blossom Time" and "Maytime."

It is said to be the most enchanting musical entertainment of this generation, and there must be merit in this statement, when it is taken into consideration that this same company played ten capacity weeks in San Francisco.

For its touring engagements, the Messrs Shubert are not stinting in the smallest detail, but will send on tour an exact replica of the productions being seen in New York and Chicago, with the exact number in personnel that both those cities are seeing daily. This means, that the company that will play Medford carries one hundred or more people; requires three baggage cars to convey the production and that the musical score will be interpreted by twenty musicians.

Dotson-Lewis to Head Card Winner to Meet Starkey, Who Is Some what Shattered

Benny Dotson, Portland flash, will meet Frankie Lewis in a ten-round headline bout here Tuesday night, May 18, was announced today by a representative of the Klamath Falls boxing commission.

The winner of this bout, which on paper looks to be about the fastest yet, will meet Kid Starkey in a succeeding card.

Starkey was selected for a tangle with Dotson on the coming card, but a bad hand and a bad ear received in his sensational fight with Lewis will prevent him from appearing until he has had a rest period.

In a six-round preliminary Spec Woods will meet Fred Greenlee, and despite a previous loss Spec is figured to win this time. He has promised to keep training rules and if he does may reverse the previous verdict.

One Mason, a middleweight, who looks good in workouts, will go four rounds with an opponent to be selected.

Three longitudinal sections, each complete in itself and capable of independent navigation, make up a German designer's dirigible balloon that he claims is proof against storms.
