Klamath Leads World In Yellow Pine Cut; Arnold Gives Figures

Payroll from Lumber Industry in Klamath Comes to $700,000 Monthly, Word of Indian Superintendent

Klamath leads the world in production of yellow pine. Payroll from the lumber industry in 1925 aggregated $700,000 a month.

Four hundred million feet of timber was manufactured in Klamath in 1925, 100,000,000 feet more than the next highest pine timber producing section, Laurel, Miss.

There are 23 billion feet of standing timber in the Klamath basin, six and one-half billion of which is on the Klamath Indian reservation. Address by Arnold.

These facts and many more given by L. D. Arnold, superintendent of the Klamath Indian reservation, were the nucleus of one of the most instructive addresses ever given at the chamber of commerce forum. Arnold spoke on the relation of natural resources on the reservation to the growth and development of Klamath Falls. He urged that a closer bond between the reservation and the Klamath Falls come into being.

Of the seven and one-half billion feet originally standing on the reservation, one billion has been cut, two and one-half billion feet is under contract and four billion is yet to be sold. Indians have realized $4,000,000 from timber sales, some of which has been disbursed by the Indian service.

Arnold told in detail the procedure in selling reservation timber units, pointing out the fact that a minimum and maximum cut was prescribed for each unit, and explaining the 12 per cent increase in cost of the timber on reservation units, every three years.

23 Per Cent in Reservation
"Of the 400 million feet cut last year, 205 million feet came from the reservation," he said. "You will be interested to know that 23 per cent of the standing timber in the Klamath basin is on the reservation, 30 per cent on national forest lands and 43 per cent owned by ten large timber owners who as yet have not started to cut their stumpage. So from those figures you can see that this country is bound to be one of the outstanding lumber producing sections in the United States."

"The Indian service has taken the position that reservation timber resources should not be liquidated too rapidly. The figures I have given on lumber production during 1925, were gathered in connection with a survey made by me and other service officials to determine a policy in selling units.

"We believe that too rapid liquidation would bring a slump in the lumber market from overproduction, and for that reason are going to pursue a policy of holding back slightly in selling units.

Many Sheep Grazed
"The Indian reservation plays a prominent part in the Klamath livestock industry. I understand there are 80,000 head of sheep in Klamath. Of that number 34,000 were grazed on reservation land last year. Receipts from grazing fees were $25,000, which is given to the Indians."

Ernie Takes Swim At Diamond Lake

Ernie Nitschlem holds the honor of being the first spring time bather in Diamond Lake.

Here's how it all happened. Ernie with Walter Zehung and Charles Gray, of Portland was enjoying the fishing at the lake on Sunday, when Gray decided to sit on the edge of the boat to better enable himself to cast out. He proved too heavy and the party all found themselves in the cold waters, 150 feet from shore.

But Ernie didn't lose his fish. When he landed on shore on the end of his line was a trout weighing a pound and a half.

But the best part of the story is yet to come. The row boat floated to shore and not a fish was lost. The boys got the limit catch.

SANTA MONICA, Calif., May 11.—(AP)—An airplane loaded with life preservers circled overhead, ready to drop them if needed, during a rescue of the 28 fishermen of the launch Kisanjo, which burned and sank more than a mile off shore. Two other launches rescued the men unhurt.

grazed on reservation land last year. Receipts from grazing fees were $25,000, which is given to the Indians.

"From timber sales, Indians have realized $4,000,000. Part of this money has been disbursed to the Indians, part has been used to defray expenses for maintenance on the reservation and still another part is held to the credit of the Indians by the Indian service."

State Has Jurisdiction
Arnold made a few pointed remarks on the question of state jurisdiction over Indian on tribal lands.

"Indians are citizens in Klamath," he said. They have the same right to vote or to run for office as you. Why then, if they can help make the laws of the state and county, should they be exempt from obeying them. It hardly seems consistent.

"These facts on Klamath and the Indian reservation should impel a closer bond between this city and the Indians. For the prosperity of Klamath Falls, to a great extent finds its source on the Klamath Indian reservation."

ences will be held with a view to reaching an understanding along the lines of the commission's decision. These conferences probably will be held in New York.

Some time ago it was said by Robert E. Strahorn, projector and builder of the Oregon, California and Eastern, which more recently became the property of the Southern Pacific system, that ultimately the interested executives of the rival railroad companies would get together around a table in a New York office and settle the controversies in a few minutes.

Dey Absent.
In the absence from Portland until the latter part of this week of Ben C. Dey, Southern Pacific attorney, no one is willing to make a statement of this railroad's attitude toward the commission's decision. Officials in San Francisco said they would wait for the text of the decision.

Charles A. Hart, member of the law firm of Carey and Kerr, attorneys for the Great Northern-Northern Pacific group, says he is confident that the solution proposed by the commission is workable and that the conditions of joint use of portions of the Southern Pacific line radiating north and east from Klamath Falls can be met.

Probably a few days will elapse before railroad attorneys and executives have had opportunity to absorb and analyze the full text of the commission's order when it is received.

Installment Buying Flayed

Bankers Also Told Forgery Is the Most Popular Crime

SALEM, Ore., May 12. (AP)—Installment payments are highly detrimental to thrift, Prof. Carl S. Dakan, of the University of Washington told 100 banking men, comprising group two of the Oregon Bankers association, here yesterday. He estimated that at the end of 1925 installment contracts in the country had amounted to $5,400,000,000, an amount equal to one fourth of the savings bank deposits of the entire nation.

William Barnett of San Francisco, speaking on "the modern bank crook," said that forgery is the fastest growing crime in the United States. In recent years he said forgeries amounted to $200,000,000 annually.

ARREST CLEARS THEFT MYSTERY

Theft of a great quantity of plumbing and other materials in this city has been solved with the arrest in Medford of George Elmore, alias George King, in the belief of Chief of Police Harry Loucks.

Learning that local officers suspected him, King, as he was known here, secured a truck and loaded it with materials which he took to Ashland.

Among the list of articles recovered are sinks, closets, laundry trays, bath tubs, soil pipe, galvanized pipe, a range, mattresses and other miscellaneous objects, stolen from the Gompston, Kitchin, Gray, Davis, Massey and Lorenz residences or business houses.

In the loot were five auto tires which King confessed taking from a Ford car parked near Olene. The owners listed above, together with others who may have lost similar articles, are requested to get in touch with Chief Loucks at once, in order that economical means may be devised for returning the loot in one load from Ashland.

King is also held on a white-slave charge, it being alleged the woman with whom he was living was not his wife. He is held in jail in Jacksonville. While here he worked for local plumbing firms.
