AMUNDSEN AND HISTORY

History has a way of repeating itself. This statement does not have the ring of absolute originality to us, but we believe it to be true at that. And probably the greatest living example of its truth is Raold Amundsen, Norse explorer, who has just completed the first flight across the north pole from one continent to another. Because history in repeating itself, did so with reverse English in Amundsen's case, his flight with his American and Italian aides becomes all the more interesting.

Long enough ago so that many have forgotten that it ever happened, Raold Amundsen, latter day Viking, discovered the south pole. That discovery was one of the most dramatic episodes in the explorations which men of his race have carried on through the centuries.

After a preliminary trip in 1902, in which he had set a new record for south latitude reached, Captain Robert E. Scott set out in 1911 to surpass the new record which had been made in the meantime by Sir Ernest Shackleton.

Captain Scott surpassed the record. He did more, for he reached the south pole. It was on January 18, 1912, that the point of 90 degrees south latitude, no longitude, was attained. But Captain Scott was only the second to reach the pole; for on December 14, 1911, a Scandinavian by another route, had gained that same objective, and left a flag and note to apprise the next to arrive, of this fact.

Captain Scott lost in his quest for the pole, and in the heart-breaking return trip he lost his life. And in the tragedy of that battle against the pitiless Antarctic night, public interest was so stimulated that the achievement of Amundsen, made with a minimum of effort, without fuss or flurry, was forgotten.

Nearly a quarter of a century after Captain Scott made his first dash for the South Pole Raold Amundsen was endeavoring to fly over the North Pole. That was a year ago. With Lincoln Ellsworth he tried out heavier-than-air flying craft without success. This year a lighter-than-air machine had the preference.

All preparations were made for the flight. It was to be the first time that man had ever beheld either North or South Pole from the air. But on May 9, two days before Amundsen's attempt was to be made, Lieutenant Richard Byrd, U. S. N., soared aloft in his airplane from Kings bay, and in 15 hours was back from the Pole. It was the South Pole episode repeated but in just the opposite way from the South Pole episode.

Amundsen sailed on May 11, reached the pole, passed it, and then the good ship Norge passed into utter silence, her very existence unknown to the millions waiting for news of the daring expedition. Again in the suspense and the possibilities for tragedy public interest swerved from the first flyer to view the Pole and became fixed on the fier whom it was feared might have been overwhelmed by disaster.

And while all this was going on Raold Amundsen has in his quiet, unassuming way, earned new laurels.—Bend Bulletin.

News Of The Klamath Country

BLV

Mr. and Mrs. John Driscoll of Lakeview were week end visitors at the Howard home here.

E. T. and D. G. Givan went to Klamath Falls a few days ago and from there made a brief business trip to Yreka. They were accompanied to Klamath Falls by Mrs. E. T. Givan and children.

Misses Jessie and Elba Bell and Helen Marshall came out from Klamath Falls where they are attending the Academy for the week-end with Mrs. Bertha Bell.

Mayor Goddard of Klamath Falls republican candidate for county judge, was in this valley Friday in the interest of his campaign. Friday evening at the community hall, he gave a brief interesting talk to the voters of this valley. His favorable views for better roads out this way, as set forth in his talk of the evening will give him a heavy vote at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Casebeer and family left the first of the week by motor for an extended trip thru the east and into Canada later on in the summer. They will probably return in the early fall.

Marvin Cross and Matt Obenchain went to Klamath Falls Monday and brought out a new Graham Bros. truck for use on the Klamath Falls Lakeview freight line.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wallis left on Tuesday by motor for Baker City where they will make their future home. Mrs. Wallis has for the past three years had charge of the primary grades in this school, as well as being the very efficient leader of the girls sewing club. Their absence will be keenly felt both in social and school work.

A very successful school year has just closed at this place, and the teachers have departed for their summer homes. Mr. Reese Wingard, principal, left for Klamath Falls, Mrs. Katherine Jones for her home in Idaho, and Mrs. J. F. Walker for Baker City. At this time the teachers for the coming year have not been elected.

Pete O'Connor of Fort Klamath was in this valley a few days past.

A new service station and eating house is being completed on the Garrett ranch a mile north of Bly.

Clinton Cunningham, Ike Haskins who are with the Klamath Forest Protective association have quite recently been stationed here for work during the summer months. Deputy Sheriff Joe Kinsey delivered the ballot boxes to this precinct for the election on Friday.

At The Pine Tree

"Ferberized films!" Have you seen them? They're the latest thing on the screen.

"Ferberized films" are so called because they are practically stereoscopic in their startling humanness.

One of these psychologically amazing films makes its appearance at the Pine Tree theater tonight when Corinne Griffith appears in "Classified."

"Classified" is of course, the product of the penetrative pen of Edna Ferber, one of the foremost women writers of America. No doubt exists as to the screenable properties of the Ferber product, as has already been exemplified by that other production "So Big," in which Colleen Moore starred.

At The Liberty

Dorothy Devore is playing the lead in "Who Cares." This is the film version of Cosmo Hamilton's popular best seller of the same name. When the book came out it was read by millions of people.

Miss Devore's rise to stardom is the result of a number of years of conscientious effort, progressing from part to part as the opportunity arose. She was born in Fort Worth, Texas. She was educated in that city and in Los Angeles. She had an early career in vaudeville stage going from the legitimate stage directly to the movie lot.

"Who Cares" plays at the Liberty tonight.

DELPHIANS LEAVING

At seven thirty in the morning a number of members of Delta Gamma chapter of the Delphians will leave for Medford to attend the first assembly of the Astland, Medford and Klamath Falls chapters. At noon a luncheon will be given at the hotel Lithia. Talks will be given in the morning. The local delegation plan to return tomorrow afternoon. Among those planning to make the trip are: Mesdames Warren Hunt, G. A. Massey, E. H. Balsiger, Ross Boyd, Russell Austin, H. D. Newell, T. D. Case, R. E. Paddock, Wilbur Jones, Claude Davis, W. L. Quinn, W. H. Robertson, J. Royal Shaw, Rachael Applegate Solomon, H. E. Getz, Oscar Shive, G. H. Merryman, C. R. Lucas, C. G. Lambert, C. I. Roberts, George Ulrich, Oscar Peyton, Rose Otey Soule, H. R. Harrison, Don J. Zumwalt and Misses Meriam Martin, Ethel Applegate and Ruth Minier.
