

Sailor Chantey Thing Of Past On Steel Ships

Coming of Prohibition Also Has Large Effect

SAN PEDRO, Calif., July 19. — Steam and ships have stifled the songs of the days of sails and wooden craft.

A recent search of the waterfront here for the chanteys of a former day brought so poor a result that searchers went scurrying to other ports with little better effect.

The search was in connection with a motion picture production. Its object proved a musical Blue Bird—found perching right on the motion picture set.

"Bit of Rum" Inducement

The investigators found a few old sailors among the 1500 gathered for sea battle scenes in "Old Ironsides"—the story of the frigate Constitution—the best authorities.

"It's the grog," explained an old British sea dog. "You see, most of the chanteys said something about a bit of rum. A right good pull in the old days on the sailing ships was rewarded."

A new tea-time IDEA:

YOU can now give new individuality to this old-time custom. Serve something different, yet without tedious planning and work. For any afternoon gathering, what could be more appropriate than one of the many delicious, refreshing ice-cold beverages, bottled fresh and pure in your own city? Ice and bottled sodas perform many services that cannot be duplicated. They are at once a necessity, a luxury and an economy.

AUTO AGAIN CRASHES DIME STORE WINDOW

The plate glass window of the Woolworth store on lower Main street was badly smashed by an unruly auto, again Saturday night. The name of the motorist guilty of this assault has not been learned by the store manager.

Shortly before Easter this same store window was penetrated successfully by a truck driven by a Fort Klamath dairy farmer who was hurrying home to milk his cows.
