KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON

KLAMATH VIEWED AS THE HOME OF NEW CONCERN

C. B. House, Inventor of Device to End Bumping and Save Springs

Klamath Falls as the headquarters of an organization which will take the bumps out of the system of every small car made—that is the vision of C. B. House, local blacksmith and inventor, who has recently secured patent rights on a device known as House's Cushion Spring Shackle.

Features claimed for the device by Mr. House are these: It eliminates bumps from the vocabulary of motorists and at the same time acts as spring insurance.

Two full sets of the devices have been in use on cars owned by Mr. House for four years, and neither car during that time has had even one broken spring leaf.

In appearance the device is simply a bow made of three spring leaves, fitting on at the ends of the springs and supplementing their action. Installation of a set adds 96 inches of springs to a car.

Plans have been so far developed by Mr. House that he now has a machine capable of turning them out at the rate of one section every minute and a half, a performance which he expects to be able to better shortly with an improved machine now building.

Fords will be the first selling objective of the House organization. The spring shackles can be turned out for approximately $25 per set of four, is the estimation now, and with quantity production Mr. House believes this mark can be materially lowered.

Both Canadian and American patents have been granted.

With the coming of additional rail facilities to Klamath Falls, Mr. House sees no reason why this town should not be made headquarters for the concern, to supply at least 10 western states.

A demonstration revealed that the springs do what they are supposed to do—reduce riding to terms of almost unbelievable comfort and freedom from vibration of any sort.

In repeated tests over rough roads, it has been proven virtually impossible to transmit a shock from the roadbed to the machine. Unlike ordinary snubbers, which simply prevent the springs rebounding too rapidly after striking a bump, the House invention aids the springs themselves, lessening the strain upon them in rough country.

Motorists Use Little Care In Selecting Oil

Mixing of Various Brands Declared Bad for Cars

A recent check-up has revealed the astounding truth that most motorists are extremely careless about looking after the lubrication requirements of their cars. Service station operators state that in many cases it has been necessary to use a bar in order to make clearance for greases on chasis lubriction jobs. In instances like this where the lubrication has no opportunity to reach the parts to be lubricated, friction results. This gathers its toll in repair bills that could be avoided.

All car manufacturers stress in the Instruction Manuals the importance of regular attention to all lubrication requirements. This means chassis, transmission and differential as well as changing the crankcase oil at regular intervals, according to F. M. Rowles, western manager of the Tide Water Oil Sales Corporation.

Another indication of carelessness has been pointed out. This is the habit of a great many motorists who drive into garages and service stations and do not specify the brand or grade of oil desired. Lubrication authorities are continually pointing out the danger of mixing lubricating oils. Pick out a specific brand in the proper grade for your car and then specify it whenever you purchase oil.

Rowles stated, "We are continually trying to make it easier for Veedol users to secure their requirements regardless of where they may be. Our chain of Veedol dealers extends over the United States and they are usually designated by the familiar orange and black Veedol sign. Buy Veedol where you see the orange and black Veedol sign and ask for it by name. In this way the motorist protects himself against inferior lubricants and protects his car against heat and friction."

FRENCH FRANC VALUE GREATER

PARIS, July 21. — (AP) — The French franc reacted favorably today, closing officially at 46.95 to the dollar, as against 49.22 yesterday.

The reason given in financial circles is that the bear movement has come far beyond the point justified by actual circumstances, and that a recovery from the violent fluctuations is certain.

They assert that there is nothing behind the present downward movement but political apprehension supported by speculation. Prospects of a national union cabinet to succeed the Herriott ministry at an early date have also had an influence.
