MORCHARD BISHOP, Eng.

Oliver Henry Wallop, late of Wyoming, in finding things treas-urous on his North Devon estate which he inherited as the Earl of Portsmouth. He is looking for something to do in order to pass the four or five years he must live here before taking his seat in the house of Lords and he can find little except the mere shooting of pheasants which is tame in contrast to cow-punching.
