EDITORIAL

Published This Evening and the Editor Hopes no Other Evening.

Send all mail matter through the United States post-office.

Stamps, garden truck, diamonds, 20 gold pieces and radium taken in exchange for subscription and advertising.

Our newspaper exchange is limited to the following Sunday School papers; Police Gazette, Peruna, Lydia Pinkham's Advice to Young Men.

No ads for intoxicating liquors will be run in this paper unless the editor is thirsty.

This paper is published every day in the week except Chinese New Year, St. Patrick's Day and D. B. Campbell's birthday.

IN CLOSING

We notice, with regrets, a growing tendency towards the use of slang. It is the bunk. Cut it out. The line of chin goods peddled by some guins in this burg would frazzle you. We'll tell the world we must can this slang.

Use the dope in these here columns as models.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Elk's Head—Why is there no marrying in Heaven?—Walt Worrell.

Answer—Some inducement besides harps and golden streets must be offered.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

Dear Editor—Is it proper to say "fall in love?"—Anxiously.—Roy Durbin.

Answer—Fall is the word.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

My Dear Sir—I have been told I am good looking. Am I?—Babe Green.

Answer—You have neglected to send your photo, so we must ask you if you have lots of money.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

Dear Editor—Is it all right for me to marry, now that I earn enough to dress a wife as she wants to dress, and still have some?—Ernest Nitchelm.

Answer—No one ever earned that much.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

Dear Editor—If a lady tips her lid to me, what shall I do?—Bill McMillan.

Answer—Tip back, Bill, and act like you're used to it.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

Dear Editor—Will you kindly tell me what Charlie Moore's daily income is?—Respectfully, Internal Revenue Collector.

Answer—Three o'clock in the morning.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

Dear Editor—Was the loose leaf system invented in 1888?—C. J. Martin.

Answer—No, the loose leaf system was introduced by Adam and Eve.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

Dear Captain—I see where you answer some puzzling questions. I have one. What is a gollywhopper?—I. A. Towey.

Answer—A gollywhopper, according to the Encyclopedia Bullconia, is a species of humdinger, descendant of the Whangdoodle and cousin of the ichthyosarus.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

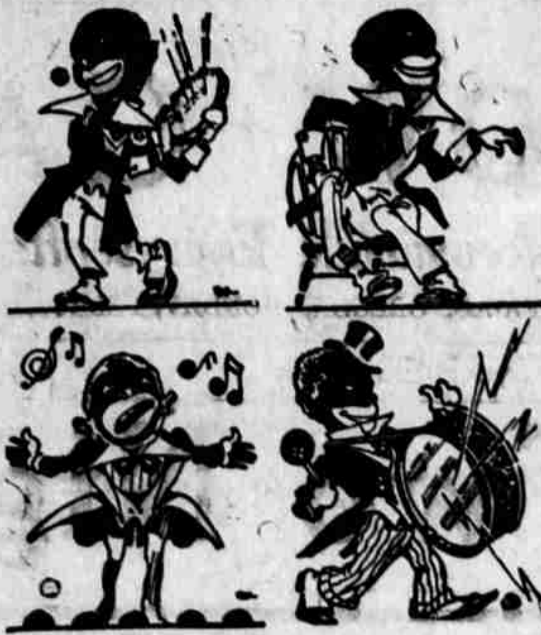

Dear Editor—Wouldn't we be far better off without any clothes?—B. L. Hardenbrook.

Answer—Yes, the farther off the better.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

Dear Sir—Why do they call a cannon "she?"—Zimm Baldwin.

Answer—If it were not that we are married, we might be tempted to explain it is because they are always shooting off their mouths, but as we are married, we cannot answer this question.—Editor.

The Big Show Is Here.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

My Dear Editor—Can you send me the name of prominent movie star who is not, or has not, been married?—No name.

Answer—Yes, Baby Peggy.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

Mr. Editor—I'm in love with a poor girl and a rich one. Which shall I marry?—Martin Ramsberg.

Answer—Marry the poor one and send me the address of the rich one.—Editor.

—PURPLE FLASHES—

No, Brother Connolly, Rex Beach is not a summer resort.

ADVICE TO TIRE COMPANIES

By "CAP" CALKINS

Perhaps you know those things which are to be seen along motor highways telling you about the town you will soon enter? They run something after this fashion:
3 Miles from Here

Squidunkville was founded in 1623 by the late John McPherson Squidunk. Here is was that Colonel Michael O'Toole single-handed and unarmed defied a tribe of Black-foot Indians in 1690.

Use Imperial Tread Tires

The trouble with these signs is that they are uninteresting. Generally speaking, the subject matter of them is of an historical nature, and Henry Ford says hisotry is the bunk. At any rate the interest in them is not what it should be. Imagine how much more attention would be paid to them if the signs were of a really attractive character.

BUNKHAMPTON

Eight Miles from Here

Bunkhampton is noted far and wide for having the crookedest lot of town politicians in the country. As you enter the town you will note that you pass over a fairly new concrete bridge. Normally such a bridge would cost about $20,000. However, during Cyrus K. Hamm's administration as Mayor of Bunkhampton, the bridge was built by the Cyrus K. Hamm Construction Company at a cost of $85,000.

MEADONIA

Two Miles from Here

Meadonia, beautifully situated on the banks of the Ganawana River, is the principal seat of the tanning and glue industry of the Province. Detour to left.

UMPVILLE

Umpville is popularly known as "Catty Corners," and produces a greater volume of malicious gossip per capita than any other "community" in the country. Here resides Miss Eliza Spysniggle, for six consecutive years world's champion troublemaker.
