Wales Falls—A Rare Shot

For the first time in all his many horseback tumbles, an action picture is taken of the Prince of Wales (left) actually coming a cropper. It is evident from the singular position of his mount's hind legs as he cleared the first hurdle in the Grand Military Light-weight Point-to-Point steeplechase, a Holdenby, England, that the hurdle has been overjumped, explaining why horse and royal rider went head over heels. Thrown clear and uninjured, Edward remounted and finished the race. C. B. Harvey, on "Tiger," who won, is taking the hurdle at the right.
