Eugene's Crime Wave

It is quite disappointing to all of us who have been taught to look upon Eugene as the model city to see the different crimes committed in that city recently and to note the laxity which seems to prevail in the University city.

For many months Eugene people held their breath when the name of Klamath Falls was mentioned, at once connecting it with all kinds of crime from "crackaloo to manslaughter." So pungent were the shafts shot at this city by the learned city across the hills that at times we began to wonder if we were entirely bad and Eugene was entirely good.

But, of late, oh, how different things seem to be. The glass house in which our learned brothers live seems to have crumbled for we see by the newspapers that people are actually shot and sometimes killed in and near Eugene. We note that the wife of a professor has brought suit naming a co-ed in the complaint, and that the campus of our state school has been at times desecrated.

Upon investigation we note with considerable relief that none of these crimes were committed by "people formerly from Klamath." All of which goes to show that dear old Eugene, good town that she is, has her list of troubles, also. And that there is so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us that it becomes any of us to speak harshly of the rest of us.

AT THE LIBERTY

The opening performances of "Are you Fit to Marry?" at the Liberty theatre today, attracted an unusually large number of women, and they were not all flappers either, but serious minded women who went there to gain a truthful knowledge of just what every woman who dreams of marriage and motherhood must face. They saw a picture filled with humor and pathos and as they watched the story unfold on the screen they realized that it might have been written in their own community, as they saw character after character appear, they almost recognized them as someone they personally knew, those women left the theatre today convinced that the subject which we have refused to notice because it isn't nice has become alarming and has reached such gigantic stages that only through widespread discussion and wholesome education can we ever succeed in tearing this enemy from the foothold it has acquired in modern civilization. The interesting talk by the well known James Lawrence Brooke, S. S. offers an immense amount of food for thought, his talk is straight from the shoulder and while at first it might seem that all he says and shows couldn't be true, if we will just follow him closely we will realize that it is all life—but that part of life that the fortunate have escaped with no guarantee for the future. His exhibit of actual cases is the most unusual and startling exhibit ever witnessed and it shows just what is found behind the walls of our great institutions. Ladies only will be admitted today. Men only tomorrow.

At The Pine Tree

One of the best home talent shows that has been produced here in many months was staged at the Pine Tree last night under the auspices of Pelican Post No. 1383, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The comedy, "Blondes or Brunettes," is a whirlwind of fun and action from start to finish, with a chorus of pretty girls and really clever singing, dancing and acting.

The show will be staged at the Pine Tree again tonight.

Fred Shorthill III—

Regretful news is the word of the serious illness of Fred Shorthill, prominent rancher of the Malin district. Mr. Shorthill is suffering with a severe attack of rheumatism. His condition was reported as slightly improved today.

Flour Man Here—

C. E. Ford of The Fisher Flouring Mills Company of Portland is paying Klamath Falls a brief business visit. Mr. Ford is among the hotel arrivals from the north registered at the hotel Willard today.

At The Hall—

V. V. Henderson of Kirk is in the city today on business. Henderson is registered at the Hotel Hall.

THE SECRET IS OUT

The secret of why our cakes and pastries have been greatly improved is due to the fact that we have a new Baker, Mr. W. R. Williams is now production manager of our Pastry Department and it is wonderful the improvement that he has made in our line of cakes and pastries.
Give our cakes a trial and you will be as well pleased as we are
