The Murphy Boys

J. J. Murphy is an assemblyman from Siskiyou county and Charlie Murphy is just "Charlie", who knows how to run a logging outfit and produce fine results. The same is true of J. J., but since he entered the legislative work he is not at the game of logging so vigorously, although he says he will be back at it very shortly.

Anyway, what we want to mention is the Murphy Boys, just to show what can be done when dynamic and forceful men get started.

The Weed highway would have been mere talk had not Assemblyman Murphy buckled on his fighting armor and started after it. The California legislature, the merchants of San Francisco and Sacramento—all busy with their own immediate affairs—would never have listened to the people of this Basin in a serious manner, had not one of their own legislators grabbed them by the ear, figuratively speaking, and made them absorb a story that is to their own benefit in a commercial way.

Assemblyman Murphy, in his talk here yesterday, merely touched the high spots of what he has been up against in his endeavor to bring attention of California to this road. He is not through yet, but he has already made the big dent and from now on it is a case of his energy backed up by what the people of this Basin and of Northern California can do to augment the effective work of the Assemblyman.

Charlie Murphy is a character. All Northern California and all Southern Oregon knows him as well as an Indiana voter used to know a two dollar bill on election day. He is a type of man who never knew such a word as diplomacy. He knows the exact distance between two points by the shortest way and he knows no other. Positive statements are to him all that are worth while and he cannot understand the red tape of social and political life. We mention this because Klamath Falls was honored yesterday by a visit from these two brothers, and we wish to say that the latch string is always out for either or both of them to come again. We like them. We like their manner, their frank, open system of doing things.

Now Comes Simplified Electric Refrigeration

THERE is now a new development in electric refrigeration for the home. An amazingly simplified icing unit—made by General Electric.

Electric refrigeration—above all things an electrical problem—has been solved electrically by the world's outstanding group of technical experts, General Electric engineers.

The General Electric Icing Unit is so simple mechanically that it is virtually trouble-proof. So efficient electrically that it consumes very little current. So precisely constructed and supremely engineered that it can hardly be heard within three feet of the refrigerator.

The entire mechanism is housed in one hermetically sealed casing mounted on top of the cabinet. You never need oil it—never need touch it. It operates automatically.

Only an institution like General Electric, with its worldwide electrical resources, could have produced so outstanding an electrical achievement. It marks 15 years of intensive research.

Remember that the efficiency of any electric refrigerator you may purchase rests basically on its efficiency as an electrical device.

The model illustrated provides five and one-half cubic feet of food space, nearly eight square feet of shelf area and makes seven pounds of ice at once. This is ample for the average family. There are models for every home. Come in and see them. Meanwhile mail the coupon for detailed information.
