Campaign Against Unsightly Looking P. O. Boxes is Slow

In the campaign by the Klamath Falls post office to clean up unsightly mail boxes throughout the city, the work is progressing slowly, according to Postmaster McCall. "Whether it is the lack of civic pride, I cannot say, but after the department has gone to the work of placing holders for the boxes, scores of the patrons have refused so far to get new boxes," Mr. McCall stated.

The campaign is being carried out throughout the entire country and through the assistance of the office of First Assistant Postmaster General, John H. Bartlett. Postmaster McCall spent the greater part of the afternoon with the residents of Oregon avenue asking their cooperation in securing desirable boxes.
