LAKE IS AFTER IMPROVEMENTS

Chamber Asks for Improvements In Irrigation District

LAKEVIEW, Ore., July 16.—Initiating its first effort under the reorganization, the Lake County Chamber of Commerce, through its irrigation committee, is taking up actively with company officials, the matter of the improvement of irrigation structures of the Goose Lake Valley Irrigation company. The matter was initiated by the chamber in view of the many homesteaders who under new railroad development will be looking to the Goose Lake basin for farm and home sites.

The irrigation committee composed of Fred Reynolds, H. M. Noite and P. T. Fortner with officials of the chamber last week made an investigation of the facilities, particularly the main flume in Drews canyon. Their report disclosed a number of instances in which the stability of structures is seriously questioned for use during the season of 1928. Loss due to leakage is reported as seriously affecting even this year's supply, though in the main the weather has been such that evaporation is not high and there appears generally a sufficient supply of water reaching the fields.

Klamath Indians Seeking Increase From Government

An increase in their allotment is hoped for by the Klamath Indians, and those who are behind the movement for increased allotment from the sale of tribal timber. A letter written to Senator McNary recently brought the following encouraging reply:

Salem, Oregon, July 10, 1927.
Sargent K. Brown,
Chiloquin, Oregon.

Am in full sympathy with demand for larger payments of tribal funds and will directly communicate with Commissioner of Indian Affairs. You perhaps recall my activities along this line at various times. I am anxious to be of assistance as I know the Indians can use the money to their great advantage.

CHARLES L. McNARY.
It is understood that other members of the Oregon delegation at Washington will co-operate with Senator McNary in the matter.

INDIAN TO BE SENT TO JAIL

John Skellogg, Klamath Agency, Taken to Lakeview to Hear Sentence

John Skellogg, Klamath Indian, was brought over from Klamath Agency by reservation officials, to face sentence for automobile stealing. Skellogg was convicted here a year ago on a charge of stealing an automobile and paroled to the agent of the Klamath reservation.

His conduct since is said by reservation authorities to have been a trouble-maker and numerous escapades among his countrymen, the result being his surrender to authorities to serve sentence on the auto stealing charge.

Skellogg will receive sentence as soon as Judge Corliss returns from a business trip to San Francisco.
