It's been our experience—and probably yours too, that opportunity usually has a string attached to it. The command of ready money. Good buys and good deals have to be snapped up. How about you? Will your bank book back you up the next time a good thing comes your way? Have you a good money making plan that only needs a bit of cash to put it over? Then open a savings account at this helpful bank and make opportunity work for you and not for the other man who has saved for it.
