

Ashland Boas Sign Up Left Handed Pitcher of Portland For Second Game of Series

In last desperate attempt to strengthen their team for the second game of the championship series which will determine the winner of the 1927 pennant of the Southern Oregon League, Ashland Boas have signed up a southpaw twirler of Portland who will probably pitch Sunday.

When the Boas trot out onto the Medford field Sunday—the Medford field has been chosen because it is in good condition—their team will probably wear a Boas uniform—Ashland, Medford, Grants Pass and a Portland semi-pro nine.

By dint of hammering out 21 hits, and staging a sensational ninth inning rally, the Pelicans

THIS DAY IN HISTORICAL
August 19th, 1899.
Twenty-eight years ago today, Jack McCormick, a raw novice in the fight game, rocked the pugilistic firmament by knocking out the famous Kid McCoy in one round at Chicago, Ill.

McCormick bounced as a set-up for the Kid, who was a ten-to-one shot favorite of the fans. McCoy apparently felt the same way about the matter, for no sooner had they met in the ring when he started to hit his huge opponent and make such light of the affair that he entirely neglected his supposed defensive qualities. Suddenly McCormick whipped over a stiff haymaker that caught the Kid flush on the jaw and put him away for fully ten minutes. They met again a few weeks later, in a bout that McCoy took more seriously, however, and the latter made a chopping block of the big fellow.

Queer Quirks of Year
There are many queer quirks to baseball. The 1927 campaign in the major leagues has already produced a number of unusual happenings.

In some instances, the clubs and players have run true to form, while in other cases, the dope has been scattered to the winds in the making of diamond history.

It is unusual for a major league club to go through the season without being shut out. Over a stretch of 134 games it is only natural that a team should have off days at the bat in which it would fail to score.

At the opening of the American league season, the Yankees were conceded to be the strongest club offensively in the organization. The dope had it that they would be tough for any pitcher to hold scoreless in a game.

running true to form has been the work of the Philadelphia pitchers.

Explanation of Race
Connie Mack was believed to have the best pitching staff in the American league when the season opened. They looked the best in the spring. It was their failure to pitch winning ball that early ruined the chances of Mack's club.

In the first 100 games of the season, not a single member of the A's pitching staff was able to secure a shut-out victory.

The veteran Jack Quinn came closest to such a feat by holding Detroit runless for 3 and 1-3 innings.

After one was out in the ninth the Tigers scored two runs.

New York batters have delivered but the Athletic pitchers failed. That explains clearly why the Yankees are so far ahead of the A's and the other clubs in that league.

YANKS NOW IN LEAD 15 GAMES

Flag Apparently Cinched By New York; Senators Have No Show

(By the Associated Press)
The New York Yankees today were 15 full games ahead of Washington in the American League pennant quest. While the lowly St. Louis Browns were trimming the Senators in extra innings the Yanks were battling

World Champion Axe Chopper to Take All Comers

Is Peter McLaren, world champion axe chopper, twice the man you are?
He says he is and is willing to back to the extent of $50 for each person.

Here's the lay-out: to anyone who can chop through a log in twice the time it takes Peter, will be given the sum of $50.

On the corner of Seventh and Pine streets, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Mr. McLaren will take on all comers. Among other things he will demonstrate the good points of Plumb axes, but the principal purpose is to take on all disciples of Paul Bunyan and show them that he's twice the man with an axe they are.

"Spark Plug" Boyd Loses to Corbett

CHICO, Calif., Aug. 19. (P)—Tom Corbett of Sacramento won a decision over "Spark Plug" Boyd of Seattle last night in the main event of the Chico Athletic Club's boxing show. The fight was slow and the fighters were boned by the crowd. Willie Ritchie, former light weight champion, refereed the fight.

The dope was right as the Yankees made at least one run in every one of the first 100 games they played in. Only two pitchers came even close to blanking them.

Two Came Close
In a great many of the first 100 games, generally considered the hardest, New York broke into the scoring column in the opening inning. It has been a rarity for them to go as far as the fifth inning without scoring one or more tallies.

No pitcher in the first hundred games carried the club to the ninth inning with no runs to its credit. As a matter of fact, seven innings was the limit the Yankees were kept away from the plate.

George Uhle of Cleveland and "Sarge" Connally of Chicago are the two twirlers who experienced the thrill of a near shut out of the Yankees in the first two-thirds of the season.

Uhle, in the first month of the season, pitched one of his most brilliant games and beat the Yankees, 2-1. They were held runless until the eighth inning when they scored their lone run.

It was not until the fourth month of play that another pitcher held the Yankees runless in a game as long as Uhle did.

Tough for Connally
Unlike Uhle, Connally was beaten by the Yankees, 5-1, although he allowed only five hits, two of them scratches, and only one hit up to the eighth inning.

For seven innings, the Yankees had not even threatened to score a run. Their only hit had been a fluke double by Lou Gehrig, a double that just happened when Lou attempted to dodge a pitch only to have it strike his bat and fall safely short in left field.

In the eighth, however, New York bunched four hits with an error and a pass and scored four runs, more than enough to win.

What Doctors Say About Smoking and Throat Protection

An advertisement based on the opinion of 9651* physicians

Mary Lewis, Famous Metropolitan Star, writes:

"Because they never irritate the throat and because of their finer flavor, Lucky Strikes are my favorite and of all whose voices are precious."

"Can I really smoke without irritating my throat, even if my throat is unusually sensitive, and even if I smoke as much as I please?"

A number of physicians, many of them leading physicians, in various parts of the United States, were recently asked these two questions:

Q1—In your judgment is the heat treatment or toasting process applied to tobaccos previously aged and cured, likely to free the cigarette from irritation to the throat?

9651 doctors answered this question "YES".

Q2—Do you think from your experience with LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes that they are less irritating to sensitive or tender throats than other cigarettes, whatever the reason?

11,105 doctors answered this question "YES".

You have noticed in the newspapers and magazines the opinions of many whose voices must be maintained unimpaired—opera singers, actors and actresses, men prominent in public life, radio announcers. These opinions are confirmed by the opinions of those whose business it is to know.
