SEATTLE, Oct. 4. (AP)—Bosses are always laying down rules for stenographers; some of them have even gone so far as to dictate what their typists shall wear, whether they shall smoke and if they shall be allowed lipstick.

The Pacific Northwest's stenographers thought turn about would be fair play. Their association has just gone over its list of millionaire-bosses and picked a model. He is A. W. Leonard, president of the Puget Sound Power and Light company.

Here is the "ideal" boss, as worked out by the stenographers' association. Leonard measured up to it 100 per cent.

He is always on time, but doesn't complain if his stenographer is a little late.

He gets his own telephone calls and answers them personally.

He dresses neatly and doesn't chew on dead cigars.

He doesn't swear.

He doesn't ask his stenographer to lie to visitors by telling them he's not in.

He doesn't discover, at quitting time, that he wants to dictate nine more letters; he doesn't mind an alteration in a letter.

He never complains that he's misunderstood.

The best boss is reputed one of the wealthiest men in the northwest; he works his help hard, but doesn't mind working hard himself.

Altamont Service Station— Under new management. O. A. McCord—Adv. 5-31

General discussion of the proposed sewer system took up the greater part of the meeting and a committee composed of H. D. Newell, E. B. Henry, William L. Wales and Frank Z. Howard was named to go over the Smith and Kennedy plans. This committee will then report its findings to the society which will in turn report to the civic committee now working on the issue.

The following engineers were present at the meeting last night: C. A. Dunn, C. C. Seeley, H. D. Newell, E. A. Thomas, E. B. Henry, M. Dow, William L. Wales, G. I. Stebbins, D. J. Zumwalt and Frank Z. Howard.

WENT MILLION MILES LONDON, Oct. 6.—The famous No. 1 of the Great Northern Railway in England which recently was transferred to a museum at York, has a million miles to its credit. It was built in 1869 and is said by engineers to be superior to locomotives now doing service on the great main lines.

COLOR IS HAZARD

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—Operation of the National Uranium Mining Co. has made the waters of a creek here a bright blue. The creek runs through a golf course. The club has sought an injunction against the factory, saying that the blue water is contrary to nature and acts as a mental hazard to players on the links.

PADDLED ALONE

NOME, Oct. 6.—Arthur Nagarsnik, Eskimo school teacher, has paddled from the eastern end of Siberia to Nome in a walrus-skin canoe. A heavy sea was running when he started and ice was driving across his route. Nome was notified by wireless to be on the watch, but the Eskimo reached here safely.
