SILVER WEDDING PARTY IS GIVEN

(Special to the Herald)
(Mrs. O. W. Wingfield, correspondent)

TENNANT, Calif., Nov. 21.—The outstanding social event of the week was the lovely dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Clay Parker Friday evening at their home on B street. The occasion for this splendid dinner party was the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Parker.

Mrs. Parker was assisted by Mesdames Miller and Willbanks. The beautifully appointed table was set with gleaming glass and silver and decorated with cut flowers, ferns and silver candles. The favors were little white baskets with a silver bell on the handle and filled with tiny candies. The excellent turkey dinner was complete from fruit cocktail to nuts, leaving nothing to the imagination. The dinner was interspersed between courses with anecdotes, jokes and conundrums. Mr. and Mrs. Parker were the recipients of a number of lovely silver gifts, notable among these was an elegant tall silver vase containing three large white chrysanthemums from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Glover of Klamath Falls, Ore., a lovely silver and glass casserole gift from the Tennant Lady Elks club, of which Mrs. Parker is president. Mr. Parker's gift to Mrs. Parker was a lovely silver fruit basket, and from the guests a pair of beautiful silver candlesticks and a large silver well and tree meat platter. Mr. C. W. Murphy acted as master of ceremonies. Covers were laid for sixteen and included Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hawkins, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Sandie, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Willbanks, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. King, Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Wingfield and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Parker. After the dinner the guests enjoyed a social hour with bridge. All extended congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Parker and hoped they would all be with them to help celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. A. K. Revere and her five girls left Monday morning for Oakland, Calif.

The Misses Yvonne and Velma Michael left Monday for Eugene, Oregon, where they will attend school this winter. The girls will live with their aunt, Mrs. Letricia Wilkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Burkes who are leaving this week for Longview, Wash., were given a farewell party Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Filson on C street. Five hundred was the diversion of the evening, three tables being in play. Mrs. Matt Sheppard won first ladies prize and Mrs. Al Stroud the consolation; Mr.

Lloyd Burkes won first gent's prize and Mr. Jack Cull the consolation. Mr. and Mrs. Filson served lovely refreshments.

ADVANCE SALE IS LARGE FOR COPCO DANCE

An unprecedented advance sale of tickets bids fair to make good the prediction of employees of the California Oregon Power company that the Third Annual Electrical ball, to be given Thanksgiving night at the Fair grounds exhibit building, will be by far the largest affair of its kind given.

All of the water and electric crews have been working nights for the past two weeks preparing an electrical display which will be, they declare, the most dazzling ever shown in Klamath county.

A number of Copco people are expected to motor from Medford for the big dance. It has been well advertised from Roseburg to Yreka, and at least two score of out of town people are expected to attend.

Music will be furnished by Les Salling with a ten piece orchestra.

We finally understand Brown. They're out to lose as many games this year as they won last year.

Bob Ruhl's Idea

While Klamath Falls is pondering over a possible campaign to bring in outside people into this county to cut up the land, buy summer homes and develop this great stretch of new country, it is well to listen to Bob Ruhl's advice to the people of Medford. He has the following editorial in the Medford Mail-Tribune:

Over half a dozen prominent Californians have summer homes on the Rogue River, where they spend several months every year, fishing and hunting.

Last week another Californian, a prominent business man and sportsman from San Francisco, purchased a large acreage along the river and is starting at once to build a commodious fishing lodge.

No effort whatever was made to secure these new residents. They just "happened" to visit the Rogue River Valley, became immediately enamoured of the wilds along the Rogue, and quietly made their purchases and built their homes.

In considering a bigger and better Medford, we fear the importance of the Rogue River as an asset has not been fully appreciated.

If over half a dozen sales have been made in the past two or three years, without any effort whatever how many sales can be made if a concerted, well-organized effort is made?

It would be a shame to have the Rogue crowded with cabins or its note of desecration and the primeval destroyed. But there is no danger of this.

There is plenty of room for hundreds of summer homes along this picturesque stream, near its tributaries and nearby lakes, and there are thousands of business men in the large cities in this country looking for just such a place, but they don't know where to find it.

Why not go out and get them? Toward this end we would suggest the chamber of commerce make up an illustrated booklet showing some of the present places on the Rogue, elaborate on the fish, game and general health attractions, and mail them to a selected list in the larger cities.

We believe it would bring excellent results. For these men would be men of means, and they would buy their supplies and spend their money—for at least an average of four months a year—right here. And that would benefit every business and business man in Medford.

Charles Bonsteel

The passing of Charles Bonsteel at the age of 62 marks the earthly end of a useful life. He was not a man who sought the spotlight, always preferring to work in the vineyard of life doing the worth while things that presented themselves for him to do. For this reason only those who knew him well could understand his splendid character, his upright and manly principles and his devotion to the good.

He was born in Crown Point, Indiana, sixty-two years ago and following the custom of many Indiana people in those days, he emigrated with his parents to the middle west early in his life, settling in Nebraska. He afterward lived in Kansas and Missouri, spending thirty years of his life in the latter state. He resided at Webb City, Mo., for many years, where he was manager of a large lumber business and later conducted a similar business of his own at Branson, Mo. Coming west more than a year ago he and his wife settled in Klamath Falls, where Mr. Bonsteel followed the construction business. Their acquaintance here has resulted in many warm friends who learned to know the true worth of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bonsteel.

EDITORIALS FROM OVER THE NATION

SIMPLIFY THE INCOME TAX.
Albany Evening News: Every one who has ever had to make out an income tax report sincerely hopes that the special joint tax committee now convening at Washington to simplify the revenue laws will be able to evolve something understandable to the ordinary mind.

The technical mind may feel it necessary to include all sorts of restrictions and counter restrictions and all manner of complications in the law but the layman who has to make out an income tax ought to be able to report simply what he got, what his deductions can be and what his net taxable income amounts to without consulting a lawyer or an income tax deputy collector. The man of small income usually knows that he received so much in wages, that he is married and can deduct so much for that, and that he can deduct for children or others dependent on him and that he paid so much in taxes and gave so much to his church for to charity. That is enough.

Making out income tax reports has become a bugaboo for the best of us. This government ought to be able to simplify this annual mental horror without any loss to itself and permit all men to go about their business instead of spending February and part of March in creeping through the pages of tax blanks.

DISSIPATION.
Collins: One of the few times in history that the United States war department failed was recently when a little girl put in a requisition for a baby. But her failure stimulated a Philadelphia boy to test the department in another direction. He wrote for "a little dog, a dog that does not bite and one that will like me a lot."

In due time this letter reached the desk of the assistant secretary of war. There it lost its official identity and melted into a boy's plea for a dog, the yearning that no man has vetted without a pang. The assistant secretary of war went into action.

In due time a shining army motor car drew up in front of the Philadelphia boy's house.

A major in full uniform and embellished with his ceremonial trappings got out and led a pup on a new chain to the door. "It was worth a million dollars to see the boy's face," the major reported.

The boy now believes in miracles at home. Perhaps he has been thrown a bit out of line with some common-sense doctrines about earning what he gets. But he is better for being on the receiving end of a lordly gesture. He will pass it on. Of all forms of dissipation, this is the most delightful.

The world can stand a little more burly, impulsive charity.

ON THE WAY TO REFORM

Weekly Scotsman: Pecksniff—I take no more pleasure in life. The world is full of thieves and rascals. A really don't believe there's an honest man left in the world.

Nickleby:—Chore, up! When a man acknowledged his own frailties he has already taken a step in the direction of reform.

I have been asked what I think about the advertising plan of Klamath Citizens, Inc.

- 1—To sell anything, it must be advertised. This may be done through the newspapers, magazines, bill boards, moving pictures, radio, by personal solicitation and a thousand other ways; but selling any article, whether it be chewing gum or tractors, gold fish or scenery; lumber or land, you MUST ADVERTISE.
- 2—I consider the advertising and selling plan of the Klamath Citizens, Inc. the cleverest plan ever presented.
- 3—It is the only Advertising scheme I know of where the subscriber has a chance of getting his county advertised, his money back and a profit on his investment.
- 4—The plan, once put into operation, should be self-sustaining for part of the earnings could be placed in the yearly advertising fund, therefore eliminating the necessity of raising money every year.
- 5—$500,000.00 Advertising fund is large enough to carry-on to success, for a smaller amount would only start and it is a well known fact that if an advertising scheme is not followed up, your first investment in Advertising is wasted.
- 6—The plan has been scrutinized by some of our ablest financiers and holders and pronounced O. K.—and last but not least, Bob Coyne is one of the cleverest advertising and selling men that ever offered to help Klamath County TELL THE WORLD about the wonderful opportunities here.
- 7—Therefore I ask that all who are interested in making Klamath county and Klamath Falls a bigger and better place in which to live, work and play in, to help put this plan into action.

We now have the office open daily at 517 Main street, so come in and get the particulars, send in your signed subscription, bring in some choice product of your farm for our display windows, tell a friend about us and Let's Go.
