

Will M. Daly and McFadden Uphold Basin's Pugilistic Honors in Fights Tonight?

The question asked in the above headline is puzzling the cash customers of Klamath who are inclined to wager money on their favorites but who, just the same, are not too sure of the result.

Mike Daly, Pelican City welterweight, meets Battling Jack King of Medford in a ten round main event that will probably not go the full route. The modest lumber miller is quiet but confident. He has fought this man King before and believes he has his number.

Then there is Pat McFadden, trim and genial Irishman who meets Billy Coleman, another tough Rogue River valley customer. Coleman hails from Ashland and is a fast and willing mixer.

"I'll take him plenty," was Pat's cryptic comment on the eve of the battle.

The third defender of Klamath laurels against the invading Jackson county pug, will be Jimmy Moore who meets "Spider" Fields of Medford in a four-round special event.

A snappy preliminary will open the boxing card, which, according to Glen LeBaron, matchmaker, will be one of the best ever staged here.

Here is Glen's theory of fighting, and experience has proved its plausibility:

"Two evenly matched boys who are comers and climbers, make a far better match than two boys who have reached their zenith, who have made a name, and who are coasting along depending on their cleverness to meet their clear of punishment."

The fight card opens promptly at 8:30 p. m. Fans are advised to mob the ticket office early if they desire a seat.

POLICE LOCATE LAIR OF FIEND

yesterday identified Hickman positively as the robber.

Locate Lair.

Although they were unable to run to earth the man whom they accuse of being "The Fox" in the atrocious murder case, the police yesterday definitely located his lair, which he had occupied during the days that little Marian was kidnaped and until Sunday morning, several hours after the child's dismembered body had been exchanged for her father's $1500.

By finger print and photograph identification the police have determined that during those days, Hickman occupied an apartment under the name of Donald Evans. Led by an identification mark found on a towel left with the body of the slain child, a hundred police officers descended upon the apartment house Sunday.

Falled To Return.

According to the landlady Mrs. Ethel Broderick, soon after the raid Hickman stroled by her in a hallway, dropped a casual remark and left the building. He did not return. But the officers, having identified Hickman as the hunted "Fox," returned to his apartment yesterday.

There they found the very necktie which Hickman had worn while his picture was taken for police identification last summer at the time of his arrest on forger charges. It was that arrest which resulted in his discharge from the bank of which Parker is an officer and which is believed to have provided the vengeance motive which drove Hickman to the fiendish crime of which he is accused.

On this second, more minute search, the officers found stains which they ordered analyzed to determine whether they might have been caused by the slaying of little Marian in that apartment. They also found a shirt bearing the initials H. B. G. The name H. B. Gerber had been found inked in the neckband of a piece of a shirt used to tie the bundle that was part of the slain school girl's body.

Thread Located.

Articles found there had come from Kansas City, the former home of Hickman. A crudely made pair of mittens was discovered. They were made of black oilcloth and the thread with which they had been stitched was said by the officers to be the same as that with which little Marian's eyelids had been pierced. The mittens, according to the officers, might have been

Where to Hunt

The state ruffed grouse is coming back. After a period of decimation over practically the whole United States and Canada, even to Alaska and Yukon, during the past three or four years, the birds are becoming more numerous this fall.

In order to save this wonderful game bird, Ontario has closed the season on them for several years past. Ohio clamped the lid on them this year for the first time since game laws were introduced in that state. Grouse shooting is also taboo in many other states.

HOLIDAY RATE OVER S. P. ROAD NOW IN EFFECT

Round trip rates to and from any point on the Cascade and Siskiyou routes of the Southern Pacific have been lowered to a fare and a third, in accordance with the Christmas holiday reduction, which went into effect yesterday.

Round trip fare to Portland is $18.35; to San Francisco, $21.15; and to Eugene, $12.35. Fare and a third rates can be purchased from December 20 to December 26 inclusive; and from December 30 to January 1, inclusive.

Tickets can be bought only on these dates. It is not necessary to make the return trip within these dates, it was explained.

used to prevent the small victim from making any resistance.

The other side of the dual character presented by the police investigations was presented by the boy's Sunday school teacher and the woman at whose boarding house he lived for some time.

"The Hickman boy seemed a gentleman," said Perry Peck, his Sunday school teacher. "He had occasional fits of melancholia, though."

Orderly and Quiet.

"He was such a neat, quiet, orderly boy," declared Mrs. M. C. Driskel, the manager of the boarding house in Alhambra, a suburb, where Hickman lived for four months.

"He went to church and Sunday school. He never stayed out late at night. He was always carefully groomed, extremely polite, used good grammar and otherwise was a model boy."

May 19 is Kentucky Derby Day, but a lot of fellows will have their new straws by that time.

Peck Was Innocent Victim Of Insurrection

New Indians' Boss Was Traded to Senators After Indignation Meeting

By NEA Service

CLEVELAND, Dec. 21.—Fate often plays queer pranks in one's career. There is no doubt but that Dame Fortune had much to do with shaping the career of Roger Peckinpaugh, newly-appointed manager of the Cleveland Indians.

An indignation meeting held by the New York Yankees, in which Peck, being entirely ignorant of the event, played no part, caused his passing from the New York Americans at a time when he was rated the most valuable shortstop in the American League.

One of the two Pullmans engaged to haul the Yankees from New York to St. Louis offered the setting for the Yankees to give vent to their feelings, give Peckinpaugh the college yell and hang crepe on Miller Huggins, then managing the Yankees.

That was during the season of 1921. Despite the fact that New York won the pennant that season, all was not well within the ranks of the Yankees. There seemed to be a lack of discipline and few of the players seemed to have the proper respect for Manager Huggins. Peckinpaugh was one of those who did.

So tense was the feeling against Huggins that a group of players, more than half of the squad, met in the Pullman, other than the one in which Peckinpaugh had his berth, to take action to overthrow the Huggins dynasty.

The consensus of the red shirts was that Huggins must go and that Peckinpaugh should succeed him. It was decided that on the return of the Yankees to New York, the matter would be taken up with Colonel Jake Ruppert, owner of the club, and if he didn't accede to their wishes the team would go out on a strike. It is just possible that some of the boys might have been under a stimulating influence other than aqua pura, but, regardless, such action was taken. As is always the case, the affair, supposed to be kept a deep, dark secret, leaked out. Instead of Huggins, walking the plank, Peckinpaugh, who had no part in the insurrection, and who was innocent of the entire affair, was the victim.

Without going into the ifs and whys of the case, Colonel Jake Ruppert decided on quick action. Although he had nothing against Peckinpaugh, he was strong for Huggins and figured if Huggins was to succeed, it was best that Peckinpaugh should go.

It was this state of affairs that caused New York to enter into a three-cornered trade that brought Scott of Boston to New York and sent Peck to Washington.

It wasn't a bad break for Peck at that, since he shared in two world championships in Washington.

ten, getting a winner's and loser's share of the money, amounting to something like $10,000.

It did not the popularity of Peckinpaugh caused the New York players to swear allegiance to him instead of Huggins, he would have missed those two world series at Washington and possibly the big opportunity that is now before him, manager of the Cleveland Indians.

At first Dame Fortune seemed to have been very unkind to Roger Peckinpaugh in causing his passing from New York, but all is well that ends well. Now it seems the desire of the players that Peckinpaugh should be a manager has had its reward in his new job.

CHAMBER HOLDS XMAS PROGRAM

Christmas today was celebrated by the Chamber of Commerce in a most appropriate manner. It would be hard to imagine a more fitting program at the beginning of Yuletide.

Bert Hall as presiding officer and toastmaster, went to considerable effort to prepare an hour's entertainment for the large crowd assembled at the Forum luncheon that was highly enjoyable.

The Lions acquitted themselves splendidly with their portion of the community meeting and Harry Hord's orchestra, as faithful to the community as the water to the old mill wheel, rendered a number of selections during the dinner that were of the very best.

The high school quintet, under direction of Mrs. McIntyre, in the sweet, pure school girl effort, made everyone happy with their selections. Unfortunately the Klamath quartet was handicapped by one of its members not being able to attend the meeting. But Johnny Houston, a Klamathian, led in community singing in his forestal and clever manner.

Rotary once more came to the foreground when for its portion of the program it presented the wife of a veteran Rotarian who in declamation gave one of the most interesting numbers a Klamath Falls audience has ever been permitted to hear. Mrs. Don Zimwalt is not only a musician of marked ability but she is also one of the best in dramatic art. In her number today which was entitled, "Sonny," she portrayed the advent of a newly born boy baby to an Arkansas home. This boy was the first member of the family and she took the proud father through his paces, delineated the frame of mind of the stern attending physician and by inference brought the mother's love for the first born before the audience. This is her masterpiece and it is a masterpiece in every sense. Mrs. Zimwalt possesses the rare ability of conveying to her listeners the accurateness of her characters in the play that so many speakers strive a lifetime to obtain. With her it is a gift, a rare gift and today the Christmas audience at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon appreciated her ability more than ever before.

Mrs. Frances Olds sang two very pretty numbers, her clear voice bringing the charm of Christmas to everyone and each song was exceptionally fitting for the occasion.

Toastmaster Hall expressed appreciation for all who took part and as the closing number he introduced Wilson Wiley who spoke for several minutes on the spirit of Yuletide. He took for theme the charity which is so pronounced at Christmas time. While he started to deal in generalities before he had finished he localized his talk and mentioned the several efforts to bestow charity commending each of them.

He labeled charity for self-aggrandizement as the basest of fraud and put the finger of scorn upon any man or institution who gives to charity expecting notoriety for so doing. But he paid the highest tribute to the man or woman who goes about charitable undertakings for the joy there is in giving.
