Eddie Collins Says:

A lot of people are wondering why I turned down the chance to manage the Cleveland club at twice the salary I am to get at Philadelphia.

I must admit that such action on my part makes me look like a mighty poor business man. Yet I am sure Eddie Collins "that those who know me will say that I am a pretty good bargainer. I have any number of reasons to offer why I decided to remain in Philadelphia. Some I feel are mighty logical, some may be purely sentimental.

In the first place, Connie Mack started me in baseball. There never was a finer man to work for. When he decided to break up his great team of 1914, he made it possible for me to benefit myself to the utmost by making a very advantageous contract with the Chicago White Sox.

When Chicago last year, at a late hour, decided it no longer cared for me as manager, it was Connie Mack who came to the rescue, when it seemed there wasn't a worth while opening left in the majors. He made me his assistant at a fine salary.

Before Cleveland sought my services I had signed with Mack. Yet, when a much better offer came my way, he expressed a willingness to release me from my contract. That was just like Connie Mack, always more than fair.

Then there was the thought some day Connie Mack might retire and that he might want me to try to carry on where he left off. However, no one could quite do that.

It seemed to me that a sense of loyalty to the man who shaped by career in baseball, and has since influenced it for better, called for my staying with him and doing everything possible to help him put over another pennant winner before he retires. I asked him if he wanted me and when he replied that he did, the Cleveland offer was graciously declined.

Two of the oldest chickens in the world were exhibited at a poultry show in New York the other day. They must have paid some boarding house proprietor a pretty price for them.

Seventy-five per cent of the prohibition agents fell down on civil service exams, according to a dispatch. Evidently Uncle Sam wants them to be able to both raid and write.

NORWAY DRAWS WITH FINLAND IN SPEED SKATING HONORS

Speed Skating Honors Divided by Scandinavian Countries

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 12. (AP)—In a blinding storm and with the ice track under a half inch of snow, Finland and Norway divided opening honors in the Olympic speed skating championships today.

Bernt Evanson, of Norway and Clas Thunberg, of Finland, tied for first place in the 500 meter race, in which the chief American finisher, O'Neil Farrell, of Chicago, finished in another deadlock for third place.

The event was won in the last Olympic by an American, Charles Jewtraw, who did not defend his title.

Evanson and Thunberg, who has skated in the United States, each covered the distance in 43 1-10 seconds, considered remarkable time under the adverse racing conditions.

Farrell who was strongly backed to win by the American contingent was timed in 43 6-10 seconds.

America's first performance in the 5,000 meter race was far from impressive when Murphy was timed in 9 minutes 19 5-10 seconds, nearly 40 seconds behind the Olympic record.

Ivar Ballangrud of Norway, jumped into the lead in this event when he covered the courts in 8:50 1-10.

McCormick-Deering P & O SUCCESS SULKY

Hand Control. Also built with Automatic Control. Simple—Sturdy—Efficient

The McCormick-Deering P & O Success Sulky is one of the strongest riding plows built, not because it is a heavy plow, for it isn't, but because it is so simple, making it possible to use heavy material where strength is necessary.

It has every feature and every adjustment essential to the doing of good work easily, both for man and horses. It is equipped with one of those famous P & O bottoms, with quick-detachable share.

One feature you will like especially is the hand control lever—it enables you to guide the plow quickly to or from the land, making it easy to keep the furrows straight and even. This is a big advantage on side hills. Those desiring automatic rear wheel control can secure the Success Sulky so equipped. There is a cushion spring on the land axle that absorbs the shocks and jolts when the plow is traveling on rough ground, or strikes a stone or hard clod.

We know you will like the McCormick-Deering P & O Success Sulky. Come in and let us tell you all about it and the other McCormick-Deering farm machines on our floor.
