

YANKEE STEAM ROLLER KNOCKS OVER SENATORS

Champions Take Double Header From Washington Americans

(By The Associated Press) While the Yankees machine rolls up an impressive lead in the American league, five clubs continue unabated their scramble for first division berth in John Heydler's circuit.

In sharp contrast is the situation in the National circuit where Brooklyn, in fifth place is only three games and a half back of league-leading Cincinnati Reds.

Durocher's triple with the bases full enabled the Yanks to beat the Senators in the first game of a double-header, 3 to 2. The Yankees followed this with a crushing 12 to 3 triumph in the second game, blasting out the Senators, including Babe Ruth, in the first round, including Babe Ruth, in the first round, including Babe Ruth, in the first round.

Meanwhile the National league leaders became more bunched than ever. The Chicago Cubs moved to within a game of the Reds by downing the league leaders, 4 to 0.

The New York Giants remained within a game of the Cubs by overwhelming Brooklyn 12 to 5. The St. Louis Cardinals ousted the Dodgers from fourth place by taking an easy 7 to 1 victory over the crippled Pirates at Pittsburgh.

Charlie Robertson spoiled the opening game of the Phillies' first home stand by pitching the Braves to an easy 9 to 3 decision. George Sieler made his first appearance in a Boston uniform, scored two runs and got one of the Braves 12 hits.

Rain forced postponement of the Chicago-St. Louis American league game.

Pick Loughran To Decisively Defeat Latzo

NEW YORK, May 30, (AP)—Tommy Loughran who will risk his light heavyweight title on any or no provocation at all, takes on Pete Latzo, Scranton, Pa., coal miner in a fifteen round championship fight at Ebbetts field tonight.

Loughran's friends are content to give almost any sort of odds so confident are they that the fast stepping champion has nothing to fear.

Odds on favorites have failed before but there appears little likelihood that the former welterweight champion of the world can do more than give Loughran a few uneasy moments at the best. Since he grew more or less overnight, from a welterweight to a light heavyweight, Latzo has demonstrated nothing beyond the fact that he can give and take. He will need more than that against the sharp boxing champion who took two points of nine in the first round including Babe Ruth, in the first round, including Babe Ruth, in the first round.

Latzo, the champion, the Philadelphia Athletics, showed their confidence was not utterly shattered by pulling out a 4-3 verdict over the Boston Red Sox.

MISSIONS LOSE OUT OAKS; FOUR RUNS IN NINTH

Four hits, a walk and an error in the last of the ninth ended the Missions four runs, and enabled them to nose out Oakland in the first game of their eight game series 8-7. Speed Martin, who started for the Beils, retired in the second under a shower of Oak hits, and Nelson, who succeeded him, pitched faultlessly through the rest of the contest. Batteries: Boehler, Wetzel, Gould, Sparks and Read; Marin, Nelson and Baldwin.

Portland won her third game in 15 starts as the gigantic Walter Kinney left-handed the Senators to a 4-1 defeat. Keating the Solons portly wet delivery artist and the league's leading hurler, was hit freely by the Stars. Batteries: Keating and Severed; Kinney and Bassler.

Bud Spencer Becomes Big United States Hope for Amsterdam

By Henry L. Farrell
(NEA Sports Writer)

About two years ago a strapping, fine looking young fellow was moved carefully out from under a pile of automobile wreckage in a ditch beside a California pike. His face was lacerated horribly. One eye was gone and the other was cut terribly. It seemed that a disfigured wreck had been made of a most promising young athlete.

They said at the hospital that the reserve stamina of a trained athlete's body gave him an even chance to escape with his life but that he never again would be able to use his body in physical competition.

Bud Spencer gave them the classic "Yeah?" when the crepe had been hung on his athletic future and when his legs would hold him he was back on the track. Before his accident he had been a most promising freshman hurdler and it was on a return trip from a freshman meet that he encountered the wreck and was almost ruined.

Dink Templeton, the Stanford coach, did not want to hurt his feelings by refusing him a suit when he was out of the hospital, but he tacitly suggested that hurdling was a hazardous game and dangerous too for a boy who had defective vision in his one good eye.

The coach persuaded him flat racing would be better suited to him and started training him for the quarter mile.

Now Bud Spencer is the captain and star of the Stanford track team, one of the greatest college teams that ever has been assembled. Not only that, Spencer may be the gift of the gods in answer to the prayer of the Olympic coaches for a quarter-miler to run at Amsterdam.

Spencer recently cracked off 400 meters in 47 seconds flat, breaking the world's record and if he had been clocked for two feet ten inches further he would have knocked off Ted Meredith's quarter-mile record which has been standing all these years.

Spencer is no accident, even if he is the product of one. Twice in competition he has been withered in one second of Meredith's record and he may beat it this summer.

He is now in Boston, where he will start serious training for the intercollegiate track and field championships, where his Stanford team hopes to retain the title. With Jack Ryder, the great middle distance running coach, who developed Lloyd Hahn, he will also start working for the Olympics.

The American Olympic team has been offering sacrifices for middle distance runners. There are sprinters, hurdlers, jumpers and weight men galore but no runners. With Spencer in the 400, Conger in the 800 and Hahn in the 1500 meter races, things are looking better, however.

Spencer is also somewhat of a scholar. His first name is Emerson (after the poet) and he was the editor last year of Stanford's literary magazine, "The Lit."

Harry Dillon Gets Decision Over W. Parbo

PORTLAND, Ore., May 30, (AP)—Harry Dillon, light heavyweight of Winnipeg took a close decision from Wilson Yarbo, Cleveland negro middleweight, here last night. Dillon weighed 175 pounds, Yarbo 165. Dillon's straight punching tactics prevailed over the leaping, swinging tactics of the shifty young negro.

Yarbo scored the only knockdown of the contest in the seventh round, when Dillon dropped to the canvas after an avalanche of lefts and rights. He was up at the count of one and carried the battle to his opponent to even up the round. Joe Blackwell, heavy hitting middleweight of Eugene, won his match with Red Lewis of Seattle in the first round after putting his man down twice.

As Commissioner Each points out, motor bus transport still is too young to call for strict regulation. However, it is increasing in scope rapidly. The fact that the commission recommends that steam and electric railroads and water transport companies be authorized by the proposed act to employ motor vehicles on the highways in supplementary service is an important and significant feature of the report. So is the commission's finding that there is no present need of Federal control of interstate trucking service.

Miss Wills won the first set, 6-1, sweeping her 18-year-old rival aside after a little unsteadiness at the start.

PUZZLING PLAYS Baseball

By Billy Evans
Play Always Puzzles.

Under what condition can a runner on third score on a double play that retires the side, the batsman being retired on a batted fly ball for the second out and a runner other than the man on third be thrown out for the final out of the inning?

For some reason this play is a constant source of confusion. In reality it is simple enough if properly analyzed.

For example, we will say there is a runner on first and third and one out. The batsman hits a long fly to outfield. The runner on third decides to hold his base, being of the opinion that he can beat the throw to the plate if the ball is caught.

The runner on first, under the impression that the fly ball will not be caught, runs wild. The ball is caught. The runner, originally on first, is between second and third when the catch is made. He dashes back to first in an attempt to escape being doubled up.

The runner on third held his base and crossed the plate after the catch. The runner, originally on first, was doubled up at that base for the third out of the inning. However, the runner from third had crossed the plate long before the final out was made.

The run scored. Here is a situation that a runner from third can score on a double play that retires the side, the second out being a caught fly and the third out the retiring of another baserunner. He need only be over the plate before the third out is made.

Runs cannot score on a double play in which the third out of the inning is a force play of one in which the batsman fails to reach first base. Neither was the case in the play described above.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

ALARM CLOCKS ARE CHEAP

In all the chatter about what is ailing the Detroit Tigers it might be advanced that George Moriarty's men are not exactly ailing. The cause for the mental lapses will have to be explained by your own way of thinking.

In one of the recent games with the Yankees, Johnny Neun was downed off first base with one down. Probably thought it was over. He was lifted off the base by the Yank pitcher and there were two down. The next two batters singled, but no score resulted.

Shortly after, Gehringner retired Menzel at second base, and thinking it was the third out, didn't try for a double play at first base. Two two-batters then followed and the game was lost.

In contrast those Cleveland Indians are always on their toes, and that difference may be the difference in the standing.

TWO FOR THE BOOK

There was a funny play in a recent game between the Yankees and the Tigers. Babe Ruth missed a third strike and when the ball got away from Shea the Babe turned first safely and was thrown out at second. He was charged with a strikeout in the summary; Shea was charged with a passed ball, an error and credited with an assist, and Taverne got the putout. All on the same play.

In a recent game between the Sacramento and San Francisco Pacific Coast League clubs only two assists were handled by the San Francisco club in a full nine-inning game. The shortstop and the second baseman each threw a runner out at first.

WELL, WHAT OF IT?

Along the line of queer things, what does this mean, if anything? Fidel La Barba fought Jimmy McLarnin.

McLarnin fought Sid Terris. Terris fought Ace Hickins. Hickins is to fight Mickey Walker.

Walker fought Mike McGuire. McGuire fought Jack Sharkey. Sharkey fought Jack Dempsey. Dempsey fought Jess Willard.

CANINE IN THE MANGER

There are lots of inside angles behind some of the funny-looking trades they make in the major leagues. Like that recent one in which the Cardinals sent Harper to the Cardinals for Bob O'Farrell. Why the Cards want to get rid of O'Farrell—if his big salary was not the reason—has not been explained, but McGraw has given his reasons for taking him.

"He'll be of help to us, of course," McGraw explained. "And in taking him we prevented Pittsburgh from getting him."

And the Pirates are in dire need of a good catcher.

Any Place If Dough's There

Harper, it is related, was all broken up (yeh?) when McGraw told him to wrap up his toothbrush and go to St. Louis. "O. K. with me, Mac," he said. "But tell me as a friend. Do you think I can get more jack out of bread?"

He apparently doesn't read the newspapers or he would know how many players have taken bread for any jack.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Johnny Kilbane wants to be sheriff of Cuyahoga county, Ohio (Cleveland).

Steve O'Neill works in the prosecutor's office there during the winter. A distinct change in style was noted in Walter Hagen's literature after he went to England. He had a thin, meek ghost. The Yanks are getting worried. All those double-headers coming and only one southpaw pitcher. O'Rourke's hustled thumb broke up the Browns.

Shantz and Fossner, of the Clevelanders, are going to winter in vaudeville. Singers. Grove hah-hahs the sages who tell him that some day he can't throw 'em past 'em. McGraw refused to prosecute the taxi driver who ran him down in Chicago. Benny Benough, of the Yanks, says his name is Bengoff, and not Bengow. Pashal's name is Paskal. Huggins would like to know why Menzel doesn't hit in August like he does in May.

THE NUT CRACKER

By Joe Williams

The prohibition administrator in Chicago has notified restaurant proprietors that the word "brow" in signs is a violation of the Volstead act. Now if he would just tell the headline writers, maybe we'd have fewer of those heads starting with "Storm Brow."

The first point of wisdom is to discern that which is false; the second, to know that which is true.—Lactantius.

Some fears are being expressed that Professor Tunney is taking the Heeneey man lightly, and training but little for the imbroglio. But then you know the Heeneey man can't run very fast.

What do you suppose would happen in that bout if the Heeneey man stood stock-still and waited for Professor Tunney to come to him? Simply this: Tex Rickard would go back to Goldfield and start a popcorn stand.

Fears that the professor will not be in shape for this gentlemanly meeting, however, are baseless. The professor takes everything, even sports writers, seriously.
