BEAVERS JUST NOSE OUT L. A. BY LONE TALLY

Occidental College Youth Stars for Portland Team Yesterday

(By the Associated Press)

Another Occidental college product, Len Haserot scintillated in the Beavers 4-3 win over Los Angeles. The youthful shortstop handled eight chances without a bobble, and some of his stops pulled big Ed Tomlin out of tough spots. Portland scored all her runs in the second, when they drove Osborn off the hill. Batteries, Osborn, Cunningham, Peters and Sandberg; Tomlin and Almsmith.

Rassler's single with the bases full in the ninth broke up a neat pitcher's battle between Dumovich and McCabe and gave Hollywood another 3-2 decision over the Oaks. By their triumph the Stars moved back into a tie for first place with San Francisco. Batteries: Dumovich and Lombardi; McCabe and Rassler.

Kranse Blanks Sacramento. Making his first start in a Mission uniform, the veteran Harry Kranse, traded by the Oaks because he was "through" blanked Sacramento with five hits to give the Missions a 3-0 victory, the second straight. Huff drove one out of the lot. Batteries: Kallio, Singleton and Koehler; Kruse and Whitney.

A 5-1 lead amassed in the early innings was too much for the Seals to overcome although Sahr smashed a homer with two men on in the ninth and the rejuvenated Indians chalked up another win over San Francisco 5-4. Bud Teachout, the former Occidental star had the Seals well under control until Sahr's homer, and was able to stave off further damage after that. Batteries: May, Mondy and Vargas; Teachout and Parker.

The NUT CRACKER

by Joe Williams

Jack Dempsey is going to trade his hotel in Los Angeles for a vineyard, according to dispatches. Somehow that reminds us of the old days when, if a fighter retired, he opened a saloon.

If he should return to fight Gene Tunney once more, however, he'd get a lot more grapes than that vineyard will ever produce.

Sammy Mandell had a fight the other night. Isn't he champion or something?

It's been so long since the Illinois boy crawled through the ropes against a real opponent that some of the New York fans thought he was Benny Leonard staking a comeback.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson and Jess Petty aren't getting along very well. Wilbert could trade Jess to the Phillies for Fresco Thompson except for one good reason. That is Burt Shotton wants to keep Thompson.

He might be able to cook up a deal for Rogers Hornsby. It's almost time Hornsby was traded to somebody.

Snap Judgment Trades Lead to Complications

By AL DEMAREE (Former Pitcher N. Y. Giants)

The recent trading of catcher Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies to the St. Louis Cardinals might have led to some unusual complications.

Wilson received the news of the trade during the second inning and rushed into the St. Louis clubhouse and changed into a cardinal uniform and sat out the rest of the game on that bench. The question is, was he eligible as a St. Louis player in the same game?

Carrying the situation a bit farther, suppose Wilson was getting set to catch a foul ball just as the instant he was told he had been traded. Would it be his duty to drop the ball?

Also is it ethical for traded players to tip off the battery "hit and run," steal and bunt signs of their former club to their new employers. I have known players who had too high a sense of honor to do it.

While pitching for the Phillies during a tight pennant race, I once asked "Red" Ames, who had just been traded from Cincinnati, what signs they used.

"I don't believe in peddling that kind of information, Al," he answered, and I suddenly felt very unnecessary.

NATIONAL RACE IS TIGHTER AS SUN COMES OUT

Brooklyn Has Fine Batting Afternoon; Alexander Weakening

(By The Associated Press)

The National league race was a bit tighter today as a result of setup in inclement weather.

Brooklyn enjoyed a fine batting afternoon against Ray Kolp, Carl Mays and Jim Edwards as Douglas McWeeny turped back Cincinnati's forces monotonously for seven innings. Something cracked in McWeeny's service at this point and the Reds piled up five purely decorative runs in two innings as Rube Ehrhardt rushed to the rescue.

The score was 8 to 5.

The fighting Cardinals are thankful for whatever success they can register on the field, but they are able to take only slight comfort from their 11 to 6 victory over the Giants at the Polo grounds yesterday. McKechnie's men rallied gamely to win, but the showing of Grover Cleveland Alexander in the first two innings convinced the baseball sharps that the veteran right hander will be useless to the St. Louis club for a few weeks more at the least. Alex has a sore elbow.

The Cubs improved their position somewhat at defeating the Philadelphia 5 to 3 but Joe McCarthy in panic as the home team began to hit in the seventh, used up Malone, Bush and Jones in turning in the victory.

Herb Pennock obtained revenge against the Indians for the game they won from him at the Yankee stadium last month. He clicked off his ninth victory of the season 8 to 3 as George Uhle took another beating.

Howard Ehmke and Eddie Rommel of the Athletics failed to halt the young sluggers of Dan Howley, who won 5 to 2 behind the good pitching of Sam Gray. The Yankees lead by a mere nine games.

Mariels and Gorman Draw; Joe Swindler Knocked Cold In 4th Round By Dick Reed

Bob Mariels, Portland, and Nails Gorman, Hood River, slammed each other around the ring to a fair draw in the ten round main event of a bang-up fight card in Chiloquin last night and Dick Reed, sensational ex-University of Oregon pugilist, knocked Joe Swindler, the fighting cop, as cold as a salted mackerel in the fourth round of their scheduled six round semi-windup.

The Reed-Swindler mix stole the show. Reed staged one of the greatest come-backs ever witnessed in a Klamath ring. The first round was hardly under way when Swindler looped a terrific overhand right that caught the boxer's behemoth flush on the button. Reed crumpled like a jack-knife—it looked all over as the grinning Swindler awaited for a sign of life from his adversary. He did not wait long. The college athlete shook his head to clear away the galaxy of stars and struggled manfully to his unsteady feet.

Swindler sailed in grandly to give the coup de grace, but somehow Reed's chin wasn't where it should have been. How the Eugene heavyweight ever struggled through that terrible first is a mystery. Time after time his knees sagged as Swindler's crashing rights and lefts found their mark. The bell finally came and the cash customers were prepared for an early finish of the dark horse in the second.

Reed Recovered in Second

Swindler leaped across the ring to stow away his opponent, but was met with a rejuvenated foe. He was stopped short with a straight left and set back on his heels by a crashing right cross. Lefts and rights then rained so fast on the Chiloquin cop that he was soon on the defensive. Once during the second he clipped Reed a terrific blow on the chin, but it didn't even phase the University of Oregon athlete.

Reed fought carefully, a Tanney fight, in fact, circling Swindler and awaiting openings to slip in solid punches. Throughout the stormy second canto he had the cop unflinched. The crowd cheered madly for the man who was staging the come-back.

Swindler came out of his corner at the third round as mad as a hornet. Reed met him halfway and they went to it, with Reed having the advantage.

And then came the deciding blow. The two men were at close quarters. Suddenly Reed shot over a blow that traveled about 24 inches. It caught Swindler flush on the chin. He fell forward and remained down for the count of nine.

And that was about all there was to it. The Chiloquin officer struggled to his feet dazed and three-quarters out. He sagged and tottered around the ring until the bell.

The knockout came in the middle of the fourth. Taking no chances, Reed calmly sparred around for his opening. Finally it came, and a crashing left to the chin finished the job.

The main event was also a great fight, although not as sensational as the semi-windup. Gorman had the edge on Mariels in the early rounds but the Portland 180-pounder came back strong in the latter rounds, taking the edge on the 7th, 8th and 9th rounds. It was a bitter meat fight throughout, with both boys packing K. O. punches, but being too clever to be on the receiving end of a haymaker. The decision was approved by the cash customers.

If Jack Doemore, Chiloquin Indian, had "Didmore" in the early rounds he might have carried through alright in the end. But he tired himself out pummeling the air and was an easy mark for the inevitable knockout put over by Jack Brown of Bend in the third round.

Russell Knocked Out

When Dick Russell, Fort Klamath welterweight, was led into the ring to meet Jack Davies of Chiloquin, it was like leading a lamb to the slaughter. Davies, a cool and experienced fighter, waited for his nervous opponent to give him an opening. Then he leaped in with an overhand right to the point of the chin, a few minutes after the opening gong. Russell went down for nine; he got up; again a right cross sent him down for the fine count.

At this point the referee should have stopped it, but, instead, allowed the same but three-quarters-out fighter get up to meet his wato. So weak was Russell that Davies walked up to him and virtually set the Fort Klamath man's head in the correct position for the final blow which, of course, ended the bout.

It was a good card before a full house.

STRANGLER TO DEFEND CROWN FRIDAY NIGHT

Wrestling fans are agog over the title match here tomorrow night in the Veterans hall, Sixth and Klamath avenue, at which Ed "Strangler" Lewis, heavyweight champion of the world, will defend his crown against the powerful and ambitious Howard Cantowine, challenger.

Naturally Lewis is the crowd favorite, but there are those who claim there is a strong chance for an upset. Lewis is at the peak of his career and justifies the reputation of being the greatest wrestler of all-time. He is bulky—built like a barrel—strong as an ox, and yet, despite his weight is quick as a cat. His great forte is a crushing head lock.

Cantowine is regarded as one of the corners of the nation. Many regard him as a coming champion.

The show is being put on by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. A McFerris is the promoter.

PUZZLING PLAYS Baseball

By BILLY EVANS

Batsman Is Automatically Out.

When is the batsman automatically out on a third strike even though the catcher does not retain possession of the ball?

The batsman is always out on a third strike regardless of whether the ball is caught, when there is a runner on first base and there are less than two out.

Before this rule was put into the playing code, the baserunner was at the mercy of a smart catcher. He would purposely drop the ball, forcing the runner to advance, and usually make a double play.

The present rule, with a runner on first and less than two out, gives the baserunner proper protection, since the batsman is automatically out and no other play is possible, unless the runner or runners seek to advance at their peril on the dropped third strike.

When two are out it is compulsory that the third strike be caught to retire the batsman.

HERE'S ANOTHER.

Ball Is Considered in Play.

What is the status of a play in which the umpire is hit by a thrown ball, and does it make any difference, whether it is in fair or foul territory?

The umpire is supposed to never lose sight of the ball. If he constantly follows the course of the ball it is usually an easy matter for him to avoid being hit. However, there are times when such a thing happens.

When it does, the ball is always in play and the runner or runners shall be entitled to make all the bases they can, advancing at their peril.

In some quarters, the impression exists that the ball becomes dead. This is erroneous. A number of years ago that was the ruling. In some cases a smart player, seeing a play was impossible, purposely threw the ball at the umpire, hoping to make the ball dead, thereby preventing the advancement of the baserunners.

Now it makes no difference how the umpire is hit by a thrown ball, whether on fair or foul territory. The umpire is supposed to avoid the ball. If he fails, it simply continues in play and the runner or runners advance at their peril.
