

NEWS IN BRIEF

Darrow Club Met—

The Darrow club held its regular meeting on last Friday afternoon. At this meeting the members enjoyed a delightful picnic at Fremont park. Each member brought a basket filled with tempting picnic lunch. After luncheon the members took a hike into the wood picking wild flowers and enjoying the scenery. Among those present were: Mrs. C. E. Tyrer, Mrs. Opal Brown, Mrs. Bertha Floyd, Mrs. I. Henry, Mrs. Lottie Massey, Edith Roberts, Mrs. Louis Hornby, Miss Hope Brown, Fay Keaster, Louise Henry and Willie Gean Floyd. The next meeting will be held July 6 at the home of Mrs. C. E. Tyrer at 517 East Main street.

Here for Annual Outing—

Once more Mr. and Mrs. Les Habla and children are back to Klamath country to enjoy an annual outing in the beautiful Odell lake country from their home at King City, California. In the party with Mr. and Mrs. Habla are several college chums of the Habla children. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Habla who holds the world's record as champion foot racer is with his parents. Each season Mr. and Mrs. Habla looked forward to the outing at Odell lake.

Returned to Hillsboro—

O. B. Gates of Hillsboro, Oregon, who more than 20 years ago owned the light and power system of Klamath Falls, accompanied by Mrs. Gates, enjoyed a visit to several days here during the past week. They returned home on Sunday. After an absence from this city for several years, Mr. and Mrs. Gates were amazed at the great growth of this section of Oregon and especially of Klamath Falls.

Fishing Good—

According to several Klamath Falls sportsmen who spent Sunday at Diamond lake the fishing was splendid. A number of valley people had week-end parties at the resort, according to Klamath Falls people who spent the week-end there. The roads into the lake are in splendid condition.

Looking Over Business—

Major W. P. Simpson, for many years head of the soldiers' loan department at Salem and now in the bonding business at the capital city, is here for a few days on business in company with W. C. Deziel. They are looking over land investments while in Klamath county.

Returned to Bly—

Mrs. Albert Keady and infant daughter have returned to their home at Bly.

"Westerner" Is Pastor—

A man with a "five-gallon" hat walked up the platform of the P. passenger station last evening. Here was a real old-fashioned westerner, thought observers viewing his rotund shape from the back. Then he turned around, displaying a weather-tanned face and mustache—truly a son of the old west. One approached him. "Where you from, partner?" he queried. "Brooklyn, New York." He was a minister in a Brooklyn Presbyterian church who had just finished a short automobile ride from Ashland to Medford with the party of 54 Presbyterian ministers and elders. They are en route home from their Tulsa, Okla., general assembly and were given a ride through the valley by members of the Medford church. The sight-seeing party was a short time, and expressed pleasure and admiration at the Rogue River valley scenery. The "five-gallon" hat and the tanned complexion on the minister were products of Tulsa haberdashers and sunshine.—Medford News.

Big Fish in Klamath—

Medford anglers who love to fish for the big fellows in Pelican bay waters, and who have not already enjoyed the sport there this season, are on the qui vive to go, because of the stories reaching here about the big fish being caught in Klamath lake the other day when R. W. Browning, Klamath Falls real estate man, landed a trout weighing 15 pounds and measuring 33 inches. "Pelican bay has been yielding a number of huge trout this year," says the Klamath Herald. "Fifty-pound and one-half pounds is the record to date and with the season yet early it is believed possible that the famous record established by Dr. Skyes, a trout which weighed 24½ pounds, may be beaten in the cold waters of this arm of upper Klamath lake."—Medford Tribune.

Mrs. J. H. Hamilton and son, Orville, left on Saturday for San Francisco and other southern points where they will spend the next ten days on a combined business and pleasure trip. They made the trip by motor.

Returned to Fort Klamath—

Mrs. W. H. Hackler of Fort Klamath returned home Saturday after spending a few days here on business.

Stein Back at Work—

R. G. Stein is once more greeting patrons of the Southern Pacific at his desk in the main offices today after the absence of several days. Mr. Stein enjoyed the Rose Festival in Portland and returned home Sunday evening. Mr. Stein declares Klamath Falls could rightfully be proud of the float entered in the big parade. "It was surely a credit to our city and it made me proud to think I was from Klamath Falls," Stein said.

Mr. Lear Beloved—

James Lear, beloved old man who celebrated his 92nd birthday in April, is able to sit up according to word from the home of his son, Ben Lear, of the Golden Rule store. The elderly gentleman has been ill for the past ten days and for a time his condition was the cause of considerable anxiety to his family and friends.

Miss McCall Ill—

Miss Hillis McCall, daughter of Postmaster and Mrs. John A. McCall, is confined to the family home suffering with a severe attack of tonsillitis and mumps. Miss McCall just recently returned home from Ashland where she graduated from the Southern Oregon Normal last week. Her condition this morning was slightly improved.

Walsh to Lakeview—

Jimmy Walsh, manager of the Oregon Woolen Mills store, spent Sunday in Lakeview on business. The Oregon Woolen Mills store recently opened a store in Lakeview which is operated under the management of John Brady, formerly of this city.

Hughey Improving—

A. V. Hughey of the Klamath Falls postal department, is reported very much improved. Mr. Hughey was taken seriously ill last week and for a time it was feared he might develop pneumonia.

Return Home—

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Langworthy are home from Portland where they enjoyed the Rose Festival. They enjoyed their first visit to Portland by motor. Mr. Langworthy has resumed his duties at the K. Sugarman store.
