Butler Sees The Need

It took R. R. Butler, republican candidate for congress from the Second congressional district, but a few minutes to see where the United States government is failing to finish its job and make the residence section of Klamath Falls a safe place to live.

He was taken to the canal that intersects the city and told the facts concerning that death trap. He saw what constitutes little more than an open sewer, and he was shocked to think the reclamation service would do such a thing. He heard of the lives that have been lost in this canal, and then he gave the people of Klamath Falls his solemn pledge through the Evening Herald that he would introduce a special bill in congress as soon as he is elected to have the canal put in a conduit and also that he would urge the government to join with the city in making the strip of ground now used for the canal into a public park.

Judge Butler could have done nothing locally that would please the rank and file of the people more than to make that pledge. He will insist that any improvements to be made shall not be a charge against the irrigation project because neither Mr. Butler nor the city of Klamath Falls will stand for that. There is ample reason from a health and safety standpoint for Butler to introduce a special bill in congress for an appropriation to complete the government's unfinished job in this city. This he will do.

Main Street To Be Widened

Property owners between Eighth and Tenth streets have signed up to widen Main street eight feet. From Tenth street to the Esplanade all owners of business property have expressed a willingness to do likewise. This insures a wider Main street east from Eighth.

Nothing better could have happened to that section of the city. It is a sane, sensible act on the part of those who have their money invested, and it means much to the future of this city. Chris Blanas, owner of the Arcade hotel, was the pioneer in this movement. He did not quit. Even when things looked dark and fainter hearts would have said the fight was lost, Mr. Blanas kept constantly at it; for he believed thoroughly in the benefit to be derived from a wider street.

Eight feet may not seem much to the reader, but eight feet on the width of a street is considerable. No one will ever regret giving that eight feet when business houses are all built and that part of the city settles down to commercial life.

The Funeral Of Today

We stood on the street in Portland Monday and heard the Vancouver Barracks band play a funeral dirge. Slowly the band marched up the street. Behind it marched the Shriners. Then came the hearse bearing the body of Mr. Lucas of the firm of Sieberling & Lucas, an old established institution of Portland. We had not seen a large funeral procession headed by a band for a long time. When out of the business section a few blocks the band assembled at an intersection. The Shriners marched to their temple, the firing squad from the barracks was dismissed. So it goes. No one has time to complete the job in an old fashioned way.

At The Pine Tree

The five-act bill at the Pine Tree theatre today contains plenty of comedy, with some excellent singing to back it up with each act a standard presentation.

A clever chattering cartoonist, Secret by name, sends the show off merrily with a bright and breezy offering in which he draws nationally known people in a comedy vein, keeping up a fund of humor throughout.

Earllett and Jones, a dainty miss and a talented pianiste, offer some hits from musical comedy as well as a little crossfire foisting that is entertaining.

Harry Rayburn, a likeable personality with a story or two and some topicalities that are right up to the minute, will also act as master of ceremonies for the entire program.

A big-time act is The Hickville Four, a quartette of comedy harmonists who specialize in specially written numbers that are sure to keep their auditors in a summer of amusement. Seldom have such voices been heard outside of grand opera.

The Three Crowell Sisters, with their classical instrumental offering, are sure to tickle the palate of real music lovers, as these girls have met with much success in the eastern concert field.

On the screen, "Sailor Izzy Murphy," starring George Jessel.

STORM LEVELS FLORIDA LAND

no deaths so far as he knew, and few, if any, injured.

Meanwhile, a wide area west of the coast cities affected was isolated and nothing definite was known as to progress of the storm. Gale warnings were out at Tampa and along the coast of the gulf of Mexico as far north as Apalachicola. Winds of 40 to 50 miles velocity were predicted for Tampa and shipping held to the harbor. Fears were felt for the safety of citrus orchards in south central Florida which apparently were in the path of the storm.

Reports from Sebastian, which is midway between Melbourne and Vero Beach, said the hurricane attained a velocity of 100 miles an hour early today. Other towns reported winds of 50 to 80 miles.

T. R. Gill, Associated Press correspondent at Jacksonville, who was aboard the southbound Havana Special of Florida East Coast railway last night, messaged that the train had been held all night three miles north of Jupiter where the wind reached 80 to 90 miles an hour. The train reached West Palm Beach at daybreak, normally due at Miami shortly after 2 a. m.

Gill described the terrors of the night as experienced by nervous passengers. The gale caused the coaches to rock and sway while the pounding rain beat in the doors flooding the vestibules.

The train entered the storm area south of Fort Pierce and crawled at a snail's pace for miles. Water was within two feet of the rails and swirling madly when the train passed over a half mile bridge across the St. Lucie river before stopping for the night.

Menninger said that in his belief 75 per cent of the houses and buildings at Stuart and Fort Pierce and 50 per cent of those at Vero had been unroofed or otherwise badly damaged by wind.

A driving rain accompanied the hurricane, adding to discomfort of residents and causing damage by soaking stocks of merchants and the interiors and furnishings of homes.

Menninger said he found a picture of desolation on his northward drive. Over this route fruit trees had been stripped entirely of ripening buds. Trees and telephone poles had fallen or were held up only by a few strands of wire; smashed plate glass store fronts were everywhere in those communities through which he traveled and awnings and sign boards snatched from supports were strewn about.

The breaking of a high tension electric power transmission line yesterday left the whole coast line between Titusville and West Palm Beach without power and light facilities, causing suspension of newspapers and operations dependent upon electric current in virtually every city affected.

FIRE FIGHTER DIES IN BLAZE

LEWISTON, Idaho, Aug. 8. (AP).—Enveloped by flames of a grass fire which he was fighting, Floyd Derrick, 35, was fatally burned yesterday near Clarkston, Wash., and died in a hospital here.

The fire had threatened a wheat field, and Derrick was battling it alone in a draw. Before his companions nearby realized his plight, a ring of fire surrounded him and rescue was impossible, they said.

Derrick lived with his mother at Fossil, Oregon, but was visiting his sisters at Clarkston, joining the fire fighters as a volunteer. The fire, started by a careless cigarette smoker, was controlled before it gained sufficient headway to reach the wheat field.

At The Liberty

"Hidden Aces," Charles Hutchinson's latest starring vehicle, began his local engagement at the Liberty theatre yesterday and proved to be another personal triumph for this likable daredevil of the films. It is an exciting and well-told yarn which deals with the efforts of several different factions to obtain possession of a valuable collection of jewels and of the efforts of certain other interests to thwart them.

Not only has Hutchinson a most likeable personality but he performs his most dangerous stunts with a nonchalance and nerve that registers with telling effect. Dainty Alice Calhoun is cast in a most colorful role and the secret of her identity is kept until the very end of the picture. In the admirable supporting cast are Barbara Tennant, Paul Weigel, Harry Norcross, Frank Whitson and James Bradbury, Jr.

FAMOUS FRENCH FLYER CRASHES IN BIG PLANE

ORLY, France, Aug. 8. (AP).—Maurice Drouhin, noted French pilot, was injured and a mechanic killed at the Orly airdrome today in the crash of a tri-motored monoplane designed by Rene Coandă for a trans-Atlantic flight from Paris to New York. Drouhin was selected by Charles Levine while in Europe last year to fly the New York to Germany monoplane Columbia from Paris to the United States. This projected flight, however, fell through and the trip was never made.

DRUG COMPANY INSTALLS SIGN

The Neon sign recently installed at The Pelican Drug Company on Main between seventh and eighth by The Industrial Electric is one of the most novel yet introduced in the city.

On the side entrance of the store the word "Sodas" is cleverly carried out while the main window attracts the attention of those passing with the word "Drugs." The Neon colors of red and blue are used. This is the first time this novel idea has been carried out in Klamath Falls and is causing considerable favorable comment.

The sign is visible for several blocks.

BANK OFFICIAL ESCAPES WITH CASH; CAUGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP).—Cornelius Callahan, 28, assistant secretary of the Bancitaly Corporation, from which he is alleged to have stolen $496,665, is under arrest in Montreal, assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings said he had been informed today.

Hastings said that the money alleged to have been stolen by Callahan had been traced to Wall Street brokerage houses where Callahan is said to have speculated and lost.

HOOVER ELATED OVER RETURNS

Curtis, is certain to keep that state in line in the general election, as he has been the commanding figure in politics for many years.

The republican presidential nominee had few engagements for today, and planned to get as much rest at home as possible, and at the same time to give more thought to the speech he will deliver at West Branch, and dealing with the farm relief problem, touching primarily upon the indirect rather than the direct methods of dealing with the agricultural situation.

The nominee was all smiles today over the success of a fishing trip which he made yesterday to a lake 30 miles south of this place. He slipped away quietly during the morning hours, and returned in mid-afternoon with his creel fairly well filled, having taken out of the water the legal limit of a catch for one day, ten pounds plus one additional fish.

Thus Hoover discovered that he could have better luck, almost at his backyard, in pursuing the wily trout, than attending his efforts during the long motor trip he made last week with nearly half a hundred friends and newspaper correspondents in the mountains of northern California and southern Oregon.

(Late Bulletin)

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8. (AP).—Nathan Frank of St. Louis, a "wet" and former congressman forged into the lead for the Republican senatorial nomination today when returns from 2754 of the 1149 precincts in Missouri gave him a plurality of 2527.

Frank piled up a big vote in St. Louis and passed Roscoe C. Patterson of Springfield who waged a spirited campaign with David M. Proctor of Kansas City. Patterson and Proctor are dry.

Patterson had led from the start with Proctor at his heels. As the large St. Louis city precincts poured in returns, Frank moved to second place and finally spurted out in front. The returns included 631 precincts out of 626.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8. (AP).—Charles M. Hay, Missouri dry leader and bitter opponent of Senator James A. Reed, was apparently nominated today as democratic candidate for United States Senator, as more than half the precincts had reported in the Missouri primary.

Hay had a lead of 12,125 votes over James A. Collet, a wet, whose candidacy was sponsored by Senator Reed who is retiring from the senate after 18 years of service. The apparent defeat of Collet, however, was not regarded as a real test of Senator Reed's strength, as the former had entered politics only recently.

CHINESE GOD LEGEND TOLD

When a fire starts in China, the people hurry to the temple and plead with Ho-zwen to leave their house at once. When he leaves they thank him for punishing them. He is much feared, also because of the danger to the one in whose house the fire starts, for if it spreads to other houses, and he is found, his neighbors throw him into the fire for bringing loss to them.

Chinese fire-fighters carry long-name banners. These banners are left in line against the walls of the narrow streets near the fire. One set of firemen are carriers, carrying poles with a bucket on each end of the pole. Ahead of each carrier runs a man with a gong beating wildly to make way for the carrier as he brings the water from a creek or a canal. He dumps the water into the tub of a hand-pump which forces the water up a spout on to the fire. The wealthy Chinese have a hand-pump at their homes.

Often while the fire is burning theatricals are held on the street. These are to please the god-of-fire and get him to go back home. At other times, when people fear troubles are coming, they buy a paper image of the fire-god and burn false money, incense, and candles before it and then burn the image itself. This is sending him home with fragrance to keep him from starting other fires.

Not until the Chinese have accepted the Gospel do they seem to free themselves of superstitions, according to Rev. Hallock.
