The Spirit Of Potato Growers

There is a spirit which animates Klamath potato growers which, in the long run, is the greatest factor in the development of the potato industry in the Klamath basin.

It is this spirit which gives the Klamath potato a stamp of excellence unexcelled by any agricultural section in the west.

It was manifested at a recent meeting of the potato growers association. State Market Agent Seymour Jones informed growers that inspection of outgoing potatoes was no longer necessary because of a ruling of the state attorney general.

In other words, this added expense, was not compulsory and growers were free to handle their crop without inspection. With the inspection bars raised, what action did the growers take? They unanimously voted to continue inspection in the interest of a better Klamath product.

Klamath is an ideal potato producing center. Its soil and abundance of water; its climate and quick growing season, combine to turn out a product which, in the few short years this agricultural industry has been in existence in the Klamath basin, has already made its mark on the market.

But, even though growing conditions are excellent, there must be something else—that something which impels growers to make sacrifices to protect their crop from any chance of disease and which moves them to take every step reasonably possible to produce a uniformly good crop from year to year.

That "something"—we call it the will to win—is what the Klamath growers manifest, and it is this factor that will hasten the rapid development of the industry in the Klamath basin.

The Game Hog

To be without a game license can be condoned, even though the person must and should pay a fine if arrested; to accidentally shoot a few minutes after sunset is a pardonable mistake; to mistake a wood duck—protected from the hunter's gun—for a teal or widgeon, can be understood; but there is one game offense for which there is no excuse and which, when the perpetrator is apprehended, should be followed by prosecution and severe penalty. This offense is useless and cruel slaughter of birds.

Too many times have unknown nimrods located themselves on good fly-ways on Tule lake and then proceeded to kill, kill, kill. Comes the end of the day, and the "game hog" picks out the best birds for his limit and leaves 20 or 30 dead birds to rot in the sun near his blind.

It is not a good practice to recommend "tattle tale" methods in the apprehension of game violators. But, we believe, this should not apply to the "game hog."

He rests secure out there in the marsh satiating his desire to kill. Game wardens can not wade out through the mud to check hunters in the blind.

The only person who can possibly bring him to justice is the good sportsman alongside, who witnesses the slaughter and who would, if so minded, inform the authorities of the violation.

Conservatism always triumphs in the end. There are more contented people than sore ones.

City people just seem less narrow-minded because they don't know so much about you.

Darn a "good neighborhood." Where roses are high and rents are, too.

GAME BIRD SEASON IS OPEN TODAY

season and turned their automobiles towards other marshes, including the upper Klamath marsh, Buck lake, Round lake, Lost river country and the Agency marsh. These sectors are reported to be good hunting, particularly for native mallards.

One report told of large flocks of widgeons in the Sprague River country. However hunting is not allowed in most sections of the fertile valley because of danger to livestock.

The duck season and the goose season is open from October 1 to January 15. Two species of ducks are protected, the Wood duck and Elder duck. The limit is 25 birds and not to exceed 30 birds in a week. The season is also open on rails, coots, Wilson snipe and jacksnipe.

The limit for geese is eight in one day or 30 in any seven consecutive days.

Legal hunting begins one-half hour before sunrise and ends promptly at sunset. Night hunting is forbidden.

District Game Warden Marion J. Barnes today urged that all hunters obey all game laws.

"The game regulations have been published, and should be well known to every hunter," he said. "Thus the expression 'I don't know' cannot be an excuse. Prompt arrest and prosecution will follow infringements of game regulations."

Tule lake which lies in California will be patrolled by federal wardens and Siskiyou county wardens. The veteran warden Mr. Starr will be back at Warden gate to check hunters out. Non-resident California licenses may be obtained at various sporting goods stores in Klamath Falls.

Chemists bring great changes; was the headline in a Boston newspaper the other day. If you doubt it just try drinking some of the stuff they sell nowadays.

HOOVER LEADS SMITH TWO TO ONE IN NATION

Literary Digest Gives Trend of Votes in Presidential Race

Hoover again leads Smith in the second week's returns from 12 states in the Literary Digest's 19,000,000-ballot presidential "straw poll."

Smith is given 92,855 votes, or 31 per cent, and Hoover has 198,292, or 67 per cent of the total of 294,247 votes reported received. The 2 per cent remainder is distributed among the three minor candidates.

A significant feature of the poll is that over one-half of Smith's votes to date have come from former republican voters while Hoover has gained only about 12 per cent of his strength from erstwhile democrats according to analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1924."

Solid South Unreported
No returns are scheduled as having been received yet from any of the states in the "solid south." Maryland shows 11,566 votes for Hoover as against 7,396 for Smith.

The democratic strength in this 1928 poll is twice that of the 1924 poll at the same relative time and with comparative returns, the Literary Digest points out. Coolidge was then leading Davis by a margin of over 4 to 1. It is said, while Hoover now leads Smith by 2 to 1. In the final returns the Coolidge lead was reduced to less than 2 to 1. If the democratic aspirant now gains similar strength as the present poll progresses it is suggested that the contest will be closely fought.

Hoover Leads in N. Y.
While Hoover is leading Smith by 30,814 to 12,822 votes in the latter's native state of New York, it is indicated that these votes are only a fraction of the total to be received and include as yet none from New York City.

"Several details combine to temper the strongly republican suggestion of this early vote," the Literary Digest states. "Perhaps the most significant is that Governor Smith seems to be drawing more than one-half of his total vote from sources which were republican in 1924, for in his total of 92,855, it will be noted, 3,817 republicans as of 1924 are represented as against only 35,954 democrats. Nor is this surprising drift of republicans counterbalanced by the democratic drift to the republican candidate."

2-1 for Republicans

"An important factor in the first scattering vote from New York state, shown as 30,814 for Hoover to 12,822 for Smith, is the fact that the ballots thus far tabulated come entirely from districts outside of New York City."

"This more than 2-to-1 count in favor of the republican candidate may be compared with analogous figures from the second week of the Literary Digest poll in 1924, when 17,920 New York votes were shown for Coolidge as against 2,764 for Davis, a preponderance of more than five to one as against two and a half to one in the present poll."

"The actual election vote in New York state, in 1924 gave Davis 950,796 to 1,820,058 for Coolidge, while in the same election Smith ran ahead of Roosevelt by 1,627,111 to 1,518,552. The vote of New York City, generally admitted to be strongly for Smith, will begin to appear in these columns in the near future, together with the vote of the 'solid south,' as yet unreported."

Race to Be Close
"These factors, judging on the basis of the 1924 poll, may be expected considerably to cut down the republican lead, if not to bring the two candidates to a practical parity."

"In all considerations of the Literary Digest poll at the second week's stage, it must be remembered that it shows approximately twice the democratic strength shown by the 1924 poll at the same stage."

ANTI SALOON LEAGUE OFFICIAL FOR BOBBONS

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 1. (A. P.) — Dr. John P. McConnell, president of the Virginia Anti-Saloon League, has announced his intention of supporting the entire democratic ticket, asserting that "the national election is not a referendum on the prohibition question."

Superintendent Hepburn of the State Anti-Saloon League, has charged that McConnell's announcement is due to pressure brought to bear by the Educators' Committee supporting Governor Smith, headed by President Edwin A. Alderman of the University of Virginia. McConnell is president of the Virginia State Teachers' college.

Always Another Fight Left

I have failed in a thousand cases,
But I still have the heart to try;
I am scarred in a hundred places,
No darling of luck am I!
In many a crucial hour
I have hoped and been scorned and kicked;
But never has Fate had power
To convince me that I am licked.

I have trusted and been mistaken,
My friendship has been betrayed;
I have struggled alone forsaken
By men who have had my aid;
I have listened to those who flattered,
Their motive misunderstood,
But my faith has remained unshattered;
I believe in the ultimate good.

I ask for no unearned pleasure,
No pathway through flowery lanes;
I offer a full, fair measure
Of effort for all my gains.
I'll try, though the pace be grilling,
Nor whine if I'm tripped or tricked,
So long as my soul's unwilling
To let me believe I'm licked.

BOARH STRIKES HARD AT SMITH RELIEF STAND

Thousands of Nebraskans Hear Idaho Senator Play Governor

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 1. (U. P.) — Senator William E. Borah gave Nebraska the republican answer to Governor Alfred E. Smith's farm relief campaign that was started in Omaha two weeks ago.

Borah denounced the Underwood tariff bill; credited Herbert Hoover with helping the farmers during the post war deflation; and accused Governor Smith of supporting neither the McNary-Haugen bill nor the equalization fee principle.

The Idaho senator's address was delivered to thousands of Nebraskans assembled at the University of Nebraska field house. The senator spoke extemporaneously and spent the greater portion of his time on the farm relief issue.

OUTCASTS PLAN TO COME BACK TO HOME LAND

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 1. (U. P.) — Anti re-electionists in the United States numbering thousands, will return to Mexico in a body when Emilio Portes Gil takes over the presidency. Enrique Borjas Mangel, original president of the party opposed to a second term for Alvaro Obregon, said here today.

Mangel, conferring with anti-re-electionist groups here, plans to leave in a week for Los Angeles to meet Adolfo de la Huerta, former provisional president now in exile, who issued a call this week to all opponents of the Calles-Obregon regime to unite.

IN DOG DAZE

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Oct. 1. — The poor pup has his troubles even in this land of sunshine and hula hula. List to this conversation between Brownie and Fido while watching some of the girls tripping about on the beach: Fido: You know life ain't what it used to be. It has got to the point where the under dog just pays and pays. I don't understand why I should have to carry a license to pass muster on the street of this town.

Brownie: Well, one can't be too careful. Only about a third of the canine population has seen fit to register, which leaves 2800 delinquent. They caught me last year and I'm taking no more chances. I didn't see the girls for a week.

Fido: Where do you get 'em?

Why is it that a dentist, after gagging a man, always seems to have some important question to ask?

JOE ROBINSON UPHOLDS AL'S SCHOOL RECORD

Governor of New York Has Been Champion of Public Education

By NOLEN BULLOCK
United Press Staff Correspondent
COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 1. (U. P.) — Turning from an attack upon the republican administration, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, democratic candidate for the vice presidency, selected for his third address in Missouri, Governor Alfred E. Smith's record in educational work in New York state.

The senator was prompted to turn to that subject, as he was speaking in the college center of the state. Here are located the University of Missouri, Stephen College and Christian College. Robinson spoke on Christian College campus. The weather was ideal for the out of doors address, a warm breeze supplanting the chilly weather of last night.

A cheering audience of democrats from the central section of Missouri gathered on the campus, one of the oldest in the state, to hear Robinson champion Smith as the benefactor of the common schools.

The Arkansas senator declared in his prepared address that no governor, living or dead, has achieved so much in behalf of education as has Governor Smith. "The common school system, maintained by every state in the union, is strongly entrenched in public confidence," said Robinson, opening his address.

"There exists no justification for the belief, expressed by some, that the election of Governor Smith to the presidency will impair or endanger the effectiveness of our public school system. "In the first place, the federal government has no jurisdiction or control over educational institutions, save such as have been established under federal laws for vocational training and related purposes," he explained. "The president has no function to perform which bears any relation to the general school system."

"The constitutional power of the president to recommend legislative measures is limited to those subjects delegated to the federal government and does not embrace popular education."

NAME OTTINGER AS CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 1. (U. P.) — Alanson B. Houghton, for U. S. Senator, and Attorney General Ottinger for governor, were agreed on by New York state republicans in nominating their slate in convention here this afternoon.

Houghton is ambassador to England. He was opposed by State Senator George R. Fearon, who withdrew on a motion to make Houghton's nomination unanimous after a vote showed Houghton 911 to Fearon 119.

Chicago "Bomb" Plant Proves To Be Big Joke On Officers

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. (AP) — A little man with a package under his arm stepped nervously from a taxicab on Cass street early today.

From under the rim of his low-drawn hat his eyes peered furtively up and down the street. Satisfied he was unobserved, he ran to the doorstep of 735 Cass, deposited the package gingerly, then turned swiftly back to his cab and was whisked away into the night.

But a woman, seated at a window nearby had seen him. She had noted his furtive movements and the careful manner in which he had handled the suspicious-looking package. Knowing her Chicago, she telephoned police. Then she stuck her fingers in her ears and waited for the detonation.

Police arrived. They circled the package cautiously. They went into a huddle as to ways and means. They elected one of their number to pick up the parcel. He touched it carefully. Then he turned to his companions and said:

"This is more serious than a bombing, gentlemen. This is a case of abandonment."

The officers then returned to the police station with the two conning little kittens.
