STANFORD University, Oct. 12, (AP)—With five varsity gridironers on the sick list, the Stanford football team prepared for their practice session today, before meeting the University of California at Los Angeles eleven here today, in a conference game.

FEATURES OF MATERIAL TOLD

ly at work obtaining rights of way for the project.

Telephone company officials yesterday explained the significance of the new line. It will give Klamath an alternate route to Portland; thus, if the Yreka, Medford, Eugene loop is down, the Klamath Falls and Bend loop to Portland can be utilized—or vice versa. Another feature is that it will, for the first time, place Klamath Falls in good telephone contact with Bend and Crescent. Heretofore, it has been necessary to call Bend and Crescent and nearby communities by way of Portland.

Mr. McFarland plans to hire 20 Klamath Falls men in the near future and to start immediately on the extension of the telephone system in Klamath Falls, whereby $7,000 or $8,000 will be expended in extending the cable line and providing facilities for 400 additional connections.

After this job is completed, Mr. McFarland will supervise the job of rebuilding the Klamath Falls-Merrill telephone line. Old telephone poles will be replaced, and the line strengthened and clarified. The improvement will materially improve telephone service between Klamath Falls and the southern Klamath territory.

more effective. He submitted one brick to white hot test for 24 hours. The material after survived the test.

"It is sound proof, fire proof, and for insulation or wall board, will not warp or bulge, as there is no fibre in it," Mr. Glover said.

"The supply is unlimited in the northern Klamath country, and, I believe, my discovery is the making of a new industry."

Umpire's Cough Tipped Off Pair In Stud Game

By AL DEMAREE (Former Pitcher N. Y. Giants)

Involuntary, subconscious moves made by athletes in different lines of sport have often made known their intentions to their opponents.

I have known ball players who could sit in the grand stand during world series games and call whether a fast or curve ball was being pitched by simply watching the movements of the shortstop and second baseman. The infielders watch the catcher signs very closely for by knowing in advance whether a fast, curve, slow or waste ball is being pitched, it gives them an opportunity to get the jump on batted balls that they could not reach otherwise. A right-handed hitter is not as likely to pull a ball to left field as he is a curve or slow and when he is hitting the infielders often involuntarily lean or move to their right and vice versa on port side hitters.

Many football backs when they hear their signal to carry the ball cough, flush up or betray their intentions in a subconscious manner.

Sherwood Nottingham Magee, the old-time great outfielder and now a National league umpire, had a humorous though expensive habit of coughing or clearing his throat whenever he was dealt a pair in stud poker. For years Magee couldn't understand why all the players laid off when he bet his hand. Finally some friend tipped him off to his habit of exposing his hand and he had better luck in the stud games.

PROMOTER IS INTERESTED IN FIGHT CHANCES

Possibilities of Klamath as a fight and wrestling town, have attracted Gus Hall, former Oregon sports writer, and now a free-lancer on the coast. Hall is anxious to break into the boxing promoting game.

He aided Virgil Hamlin, Portland fight impresario in staging several bouts.

Slow Starting Golden Bears May Be Upset by Cougars in Conference Game Late Today

By JAMES D'ARMAND

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14. (U P)—A nip of tangy October weather gave added zest to the football outlook on the Pacific coast, with three conference games on schedule for today.

In only one coast stadium, however, did there appear much chance of an important upset in the conference standing. That one possibility was at the University of California, where the Bears meet their first real test of the season in the Cougars from Washington State college.

Admittedly Nibs Price's eleven has a real job on its hands to defeat the Washington Staters. The Bears have lacked drive and power in their first games of the season, and although Price has spent the past week in an intense effort to supply that deficiency, a marked improvement is necessary if California is to produce many markers against their opponents from the Northwest.

The Cougar line is a slightly smoother machine than the California forwards, but Price has a fine defensive combination in a pair of fast, hard-working ends. His backfield is the unknown factor. If he has added to its punch during the past week, or worked out a reserve backfield combination, California must stand as a favorite. Otherwise the going will be hard.

Stanford faces the University of California at Los Angeles on the home gridiron, and looks like a long odds favorite. Pop Warner has lost several games during the past three years when his team looked like a sure thing, but the wily old mentor doesn't lose them when they count in conference standings.

The Little Bears, coached by Bill Spaulding, slaughtered California Tech last week, and undoubtedly lack a threat, but the cardinals, starting a string of substitutes, should be able to weather the storm the Southerners may blow up.

Washington, weaker than in some years, faces an opponent apparently still weaker. The

KLAMATH PUGS FIGHT WELL IN ROGUE VALLEY

Three Klamath Falls fighters last night featured at Medford in a fight card put on there. Jess Hottigger, Klamath Falls, fighting the 10-round main event against Gene O'Grady, Ashland, lost by a decision.

It was a hard fought battle, and it was not until O'Grady came back in the last two rounds full of fight, that it was decided who would be the winner.

Chief Hottigger, also of Klamath Falls, knocked out Kid Wagner, Medford, in the fourth round of a six-round fight. Willing Wilson, also of this city, won on a foul from Pat Pelaford of Medford.

The fights were staged before a capacity house with many Klamath sports fans present.

Add a few drops of vinegar to the water when washing greasy dishes and the grease will come off easily.

Why Be Without It?

WITHOUT running water, you may live in a "House"—but it can't be a Home. It means no bathroom, no flush toilet, no kitchen sink—and lots of unnecessary work.

In the home without running water, Mother is a toiling slave, carrying nearly thirty tons of water a year—and needlessly wearing out her precious life.

A water system in your home means running water everywhere—all the home-comforts, and Mother fresh for her daily tasks.

We have a water-pumping system we'd like to have you see. Come in and let us explain it to you—bring Mother.
