

NEWS IN BRIEF

Rehearsals Attended—

The regular district convention of Rebekah lodges held in this city last Monday night was well attended by members of the 12 lodges represented in the territory reaching from Brookings to Ashland. Sister Minnie H. Helge presided at the convention. Sister Stella Merrick, past president of the California jurisdiction, Sister Jeanie Burke, past president of the Oregon jurisdiction, and Sister Louise Peruzzi, president of the Rebekah association of Oregon, attended the meeting. A large Klamath Falls delegation was here to put on the work of the evening. The delegation was headed by Sister Waltenberg of that lodge. Several district vice presidents and many visitors attended the convention. —Medford Daily News.

It Depends Upon You—

Postmaster McCall has announced that postal clerks are going to get their Christmas holidays this year even if undelivered packages fill the postoffice when December 25 dawns. When work is finished on Christmas eve, everything will wait until the day after Christmas, no matter what day that is. This is good common sense. Christmas has often meant a period of utter misery for the postman instead of a time of rejoicing. There is of course a moral attached to the whole thing: "Do your Christmas shopping early and your mailing too. Don't put it off until the last minute."

Mr. and Mrs. Joyaux Home—

Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Joyaux returned home this morning from an enjoyable vacation in San Francisco and other California cities with relatives and friends. They enjoyed Thanksgiving with their son Jean Joyaux and with Dr. and Mrs. Strong. Mrs. Strong is the sister of Mr. Joyaux.
