

ANDY COLLIER COMMENDED BY OREGON VOTER

Qualifications of Klamath Legislator Stressed In Article

In its bi-annual "who's who in the state legislature," the Oregon Voter of Portland, owned and edited by C. C. Chapman, devotes considerable space to A. M. Collier, legislator from this district. The article follows:

We don't know what pressure was brought to bear on Representative Andrew M. Collier down in Klamath county prior to the 1928 primary election to induce him to accept nomination for re-election. We do know that when he left the 1927 session he appeared to be firmly of the opinion that that session was his last legislative service for some time, at least until he had completed the physical expansion necessary to accommodate his growing ice and cold storage business.

But Representative Collier is back again. We have sung his praises so often, that we must be careful lest repetition seem like glib flattery to those who don't know him as well as we do. Members with whom he has worked will bear eloquent testimony to the statement that he has been a most useful, high-minded and energetic member. Under his skin it is probable that some phases of legislative activity are distasteful to him. But he suppresses such feelings. If he has any. Not a brilliant fellow, but his willingness to plow along, think clearly, not become distracted and not compromise his conscience are characteristics that generously outweigh his inability to capture the imagination and sway opinion through fluent oratory. A careful, analytical business man, he has performed exceptional service on two ways and means committees. An infectious laugh opens up receptivity for his ideas. He stuck to his guns during the 1927 session when convinced that his constitution amendment to abolishing swearing-off voters was a step towards better citizenship, and was rewarded by its adoption by the people of Oregon.

His record is so clear, his personality is so reassuring, the high plane upon which he casts his legislative conduct is so indicative of the moral nature of the man, that a position of leadership in this and other sessions of which he may be a member cannot be denied him.

In Klamath Falls he occupies a position of respect and responsibility. His first employment was as a lowly clerk in a bank in which he was able to acquire stock. He rose to a director's position in that bank, and became president of a smaller outlying bank. His ice and cold storage business has grown with the importance of that city as a railroad and industrial center. Handles his personal affairs cautiously and profitably. Prominent in chamber of commerce work, he has done much for the upbuilding of his community.

Representative Collier was born in Eugene, November 15, 1899. His grandfather, Professor George H. Collier, being one of the pioneer educators of this state; educated Eugene schools, University of Oregon, from which he graduated in 1913; as a young man and student, exhibited unusual managerial abilities in student and personal affairs; moved to Klamath Falls, 1913; married, 1916, has three daughters. Presbyterian. Has dabbled profitably in real estate, has an interest, with a brother, in a woodworking plant, was treasurer then president of his chamber of commerce, active in church affairs, and knows how to enjoy fishing, hunting and recreating on Klamath county lakes and streams, and at his summer lodge near Lake o' the Woods, in the Cascades.

DELEGATES TO COLLEGE GIVE THEIR REPORTS

Delegates of the Klamath Union high school, who attended the Ninth Student Body conference held last week-end in Eugene, gave interesting and detailed reports before the student body on Tuesday.

Miss Helen Coker, Jack Harney and Paul Jackson, principal of the Klamath Union high school gave talks for the various branches which they represented. The conference was the most successful and best attended in the history of the organization, according to reports from the various delegates.

The total area of Chinese territory is estimated at 4,278,352 square miles.

Kidnaped by "Kind Old Man"

It was "a kind old man with a cane" who kidnaped her, so pretty Doris Turner, 16, Atlanta high school girl shown above, wrote to her parents on the same day she vanished. Later, when she was found, tied and gagged, her physical condition was such that she could not give a coherent account of her abduction. A wide search had been instituted for her.

HOOVER TALKS OVER PROBLEM

President-Elect Has Busi- est Day Since Election Yesterday

By Thomas L. Stokes
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. (U. P.)—President-elect Hoover discussed practically every problem facing his administration, and many local problems, with a long line of people from nearly every walk of life who passed in and out of his hotel headquarters today.

As the line continued to file by, and requests came from other people who want to talk to the president-elect, it was announced his departure for Florida probably will be delayed until Sunday.

The Cuban sugar situation, which will become prominent in the tariff fight at the extra session of congress, farm relief, reorganization of government departments, alterations in the White House executive offices—all were aired during the busiest day the president-elect has had since his return here.

Those who called to pay their respects include Gen. John J. Pershing, two democratic leaders, Representatives Garrett, Tennessee, retiring house minority leader, and Garner, Texas, new minority house leader, while Dr. David Z. T. Yui, general secretary of the Chinese Y. M. C. A., and chairman of the national chamber of commerce of China, who called to discuss Chinese affairs.

At The Pine Tree

Can you imagine Jetta Goudal as a siren spy in the services of the Sultan of Morocco? This is the exotic Pathé-De Mille star's characterization in "The Forbidden Woman," which Ethel L. Stein directed and which will be on view again tonight with five acts of vaudeville at the Pine Tree theatre. Victor Varconi and Joseph Schildkraut are featured opposite Miss Goudal.

Miss Goudal's characterization in this production is akin to the role which won her international acclaim as the beautiful spy of "Three Faces East." She contracts a loveless marriage with a French colonel as a means of obtaining secret information only later to fall in love with her husband's brother.

The brothers are portrayed by Victor Varconi and Joseph Schildkraut, while others prominent in the cast are Josephine Norman and Ivan Lebedeff.

Tomorrow and Friday, Emil Jennings, the screens most powerful dramatic character is to be seen in "The Street of Sin," a wholly different type of story than he has ever attempted before. He is supported by Fay Wray and Olga Baklanova.

Pelican Theatre Edition A Fine Piece Of Work

I wish to pass a favorable comment on the recent Pelican Theatre Newspaper Edition published by Bruce Dennis and his group of co-workers. It was a piece of work well worthy of satisfactory recognition.

It blazed forth the willingness of the publisher to back a man launching a maiden enterprise, his readiness to serve his fellow business neighbors and help push them forward to success. He is a spirited community booster, always ready to do his part in advancing the city's industries and enterprises.

The Special Edition was well done. I, and many others were well pleased.

A Message to Klamath Falls

As a pioneer business man in this city with a civic pride for its material advancement and for success of the men who are directly and indirectly responsible for its progressiveness, I feel it is not only my duty but also my pleasure to say a few words of respect and praise in behalf of a man in our midst who is about to launch another enterprise beneficial to our city, and to our city's name beyond.

I have watched our little metropolis grow from infancy. I have endorsed every incoming industry beneficial to the growth and prosperity of our city. I have helped build schools, streets, public buildings and community necessities. Now I heartily endorse the opening of Harry W. Poole's new half million dollar theatre.

I have known Harry Poole since his arrival in this city. He is a thinker, a creator, a builder, a good neighbor, a level headed business man, a fair dealer and a fine fellow. I am as proud of his magnificent work as is his own mother and through my limited influence I will do my utmost to forward the success derived from his arduous efforts.

As the eyes of the Pacific coast are turned toward this magnificent edifice, I encourage every spirited community supporter to back Harry Poole with their loyal support and generous patronage, as his success means the community's success, the community's success is your success and your success spells my success.

At The Liberty

Youth in co-educational schools as it really is and not as it is too often pictured, is shown in Fox Films happy comedy drama, "High School Hero," playing at the Liberty theatre the last time today.

Sally Phipps, the 19-year-old titan haired 1927 Wampa star has the feature role.

Rapid action, fierce fighting, dare-devil rides, hair raising escapes, dangerous stunts performed with supreme nerve—all these combine to make "The Young Whirlwind," the Buzz Barton starring vehicle which will be showing at the Liberty tomorrow and Friday, a film packed with action and interest.

The plot of the story, unusual for this type of picture, is based on the efforts of a gang of bandits to hold up the United States air mail. Learning of a $50,000 cash payroll carried by the plane, they successfully maneuver a forced landing in the woods near their hideout.

However, the robbers are not prepared for the unexpected appearance of "Red" Hopper, the youthful pal of an old miner, who comes to the aid of the stricken pilot and removes the rich cargo to the sheriff's office. They finally get the money through a clever ransom hoax, whereby the old miner is forced to steal the payroll to save his youthful pal. The ensuing complications build up a powerful climax and the dexterous direction of Louis King make this a thoroughly enjoyable Western.
