ENOCH BAGSHAW WILL REMAIN; STUDENTS LOSE

Faculty Board Declines to Ratify Board of Control's Dismissal

SEATTLE, Jan. 22. (AP)—The faculty athletic committee of the University of Washington adjourned a meeting shortly after midnight after having refused to ratify the student board of control's dismissal of Enoch Bagshaw as head football coach.

Dean David Thompson, acting as spokesman for President M. Lyto Spencer, stated this closed the case.

The statement of Dean Thompson, who added he was authorized to say for President Spencer that the faculty committee's decision closed the controversy was taken to indicate Bagshaw would be retained.

Student leaders in the fight to oust Bagshaw were undecided after the faculty committee's meeting as to what course they would pursue.

A meeting of those opposing retention of Bagshaw was scheduled for this afternoon for a conference between the student board of control and its attorneys. Dean Thompson had been appointed by President Spencer to sit with the other members of the faculty committee in place of Prof. Morris who is in Europe.

IDAHO VANDALS NOSED OUT BY OREGON STATE

MOSCOW, Ida., Jan. 22. (AP)—Oregon State's basketball team just nosed out the Idaho Vandals and that was all here last night, taking the conference opener 32 to 22 in a slow game, which only developed into a battle in the last few minutes of play. Stowell, Idaho, with nine, was high point man, and Washner, who gathered in six, led for the Staters. Missing free throw cost Idaho the game.

Babe's Tongue Was Sure Sign of Curve Ball

BY AL DEMAREE
Former Pitcher New York Giant

Before Babe Ruth reformed as a southpaw pitcher and became the greatest home-run-busting outfielder of all-time, he used to unconsciously tip off his curve ball to the batters hitting against him, by sticking his tongue out whenever he threw it.

Ruth, of course, did not know he was doing this, and corrected this little mannerism as soon as some of the smart players on the old Boston Red Sox team wised him up.

The Babe was not alone in betraying by some unconscious little trait when he was delivering a fast or curve ball.

The opposing batters on certain clubs for years could tell when Ed Walsh, the old White Sox pitcher, was throwing a spit ball by simply watching the peak of his cap. When he was applying the saliva for the "spitter," the peak of his cap moved perceptibly.

Larry Cheney, Ferdie Schupp, Roy Ryan and many other hitters were outwitted by certain ball clubs who had studied their personal mannerisms when throwing different kinds of balls.

Babe Ruth still has the habit of sticking his tongue out in golf when he is addressing the ball from the tee and is intent on hitting a long tee shot.

I had only to watch the Babe's tongue to tell whether he was pressing and overawing in golf.

SPLIT SEASON ABANDONED BY COAST LEAGUE

Directors Vote Against Arrangement Which Prevailed Last Year

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22. (UP)—Directors of the Pacific Coast Baseball League decided at their meeting here to abandon the split season and open a straight run of 25 weeks on March 26.

The only other step taken was the passing of a resolution permitting each club to play six pre-season games with each other team in the circuit, a total of 42 games.

No mention was made of reelection of a president, a fight which has been deadlocked since the November meeting in Portland. There was a belief that with directors unable to decide between Judge W. W. McCredie of Portland and William H. McCarthy of San Francisco, Harry Williams, Los Angeles, incumbent, would be retained for another year.

The only fireworks today was provided by Thomas L. Turner, president of the Portland club. He claimed infielder Joe Cronin, sold by San Francisco Missions to Little Rock of the Southern League last year, declaring the Missions had never called for waivers. Pres. Williams awarded Cronin to Portland. Little Rock had since sent him to Des Moines, of the Western League.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22. (AP)—Babe Ruth has come back to New York to resume his war on old man Avoirdupois.

The Babe weighed 234 pounds before he left New York for Boston when apprized of his wife's death. He hopes to get down to 222 pounds before he leaves for the south with the vanguard of the New York Yankees on February 23.

FLAY, PRAISE W. THOMASON

loy Pearson, who conducted a small dairy business, was delivering milk at the "Cash Does It" store on the main street of Chiloquin.

"While he was inside the store, Thomason, Mrs. Elva Ball, Elva Tice and Ralph Tice—the latter in a separate car—drove into Chiloquin and stopped in front of Poll's store, also on the main street, but up several doors from the 'Cash Does It' establishment.

"Thomason, with gun in hand, walked across the street toward the store in which Pearson was transacting his business.

"Pearson stepped out of the store carrying a basket of empty milk bottles—now remember that point, gentlemen; his arms were laden with milk bottles. Thomason stepped up and said, 'I'm going to kill you, Buck.'

"Pearson, with his back half-turned towards Thomason, replied, 'Well, go ahead and shoot.'

"Thomason lowered the gun, gentlemen, as Pearson looked back at him, and laughed. Thomason then abused Pearson, and called him a—

"Pearson, cool and collected, notwithstanding the fact that he was carrying milk bottles and his adversary was armed, laughed again.

"Pearson suddenly turned and looked across the street towards the car in which were Mrs. Ball, Miss Tice and Ralph Tice. At that moment Thomason shot him through the heart, killing him instantly.

"Stimmed down to essentials, gentlemen, those are the facts of the case, and the state will prove them by substantial witnesses—eye witnesses, in fact, who saw the shooting.

"We will show the killing of Veloy Pearson on the main street of Chiloquin was not only murder, but murder in the first degree. We will prove to your satisfaction that this Thomason is not only the murderer of Veloy Pearson but he was a coward in committing the homicide. Gentlemen of the jury, he didn't give Pearson a chance; no, not one chance. At this point Mr. Manning objected.

"Yes," agreed Judge Duncan, "I think we can wait until the end of the case for the final arguments."

Boirin speedily concluded his opening address.

"This is not a crime against one person so much as it is a crime against society," he continued. "It is a case of the state, or society, against William Thomason and the district attorney's office asks for the same consideration, the same fairness in considering this case that is accorded the defendant."

Mr. Manning started his lengthy opening statement to the jury with a few remarks about the defendant's parents.

"Testimony will show that this defendant has passed his 60th year, and that Pearson, the deceased, was about 27 years old.

"Thomason's father was white, a West Point graduate, and a veteran of the Modoc war. His mother was a half breed, raised in a white mission, and in all respects a cultured and refined woman.

Born in Douglas
Testimony will show that Thomason was born in Douglas county, and that he moved to the Klamath country some time in the '90's. About the year 1902 he accepted a position with the Ball ranch, located in northern Klamath, and has been foreman ever since.

"Evidence presented to you will show that parents of Elva Tice and Ralph Tice were separated some years ago, and that these two youngsters lived on the Ball ranch with their grandmother, Mrs. Elva Ball.

"Thomason acted as a father to the lovely little girl, and, gentlemen, I am here to say that a finer and prettier girl didn't live on the reservation up until the time 'Buck' Pearson came into her life.

Peaceable Citizen
"You will see, from the testimony, how kindly and peaceable a citizen is the defendant, how his long years of steady toil and straight living, have given him an exemplary reputation, and how he has been almost a parent to the Tice children.

"When this beautiful young girl attained the age of 15 years—she is 16 now—Pearson, then handling a rodeo in Chiloquin, deliberately attempted to secure her confidence by ingratiating himself. This, in spite of the fact that he was married and the father of two children.

"In connection with this affair, the testimony will reveal to the jury what an unscrupulous, designing, dangerous, immoral person Pearson was.

"Eventually Thomason learned of the seduction of this girl. He learned how Pearson, with other young girls of tender years, came to the ranch to get Elva.

Got Warned
"When he had ascertained these facts, he conferred with the aged grandmother, and as a result Mrs. Ball warned the young girl of the pitfalls which beset her path. Thomason went to Agency police officers and asked their co-operation in stopping the activities of this man Pearson.

"The testimony will show, gentlemen of the jury, that Pearson attacked Mrs. Ball, a grandmother, and well over 60 years in, Prineville, Mrs. Ball attempted to dislodge her granddaughter from dancing with Pearson.

"Buck" turned around, the testimony will disclose, and knocked her down.

"The testimony will also show, gentlemen, that Pearson took this lovely young girl across the state line, thus violating the Mann act.

Remonstrates
"Thomason finally went to Pearson, and said substantially as follows: 'Stay away, Buck; leave her alone. She's only a child, and you're causing a lot of trouble in her life.' Pearson turned to Thomason and announced that he would do as he 'damned please,' that Thomason was not Elva's father, and that he wished the old cow punceber would attend to his own affairs.

"This defendant, gentlemen, was a special officer on the reservation. As such, he took occasion one evening to step into a dance hall and ask Pearson to refrain from dancing with the young Tice girl. Later, as Thomason and another officer were returning from the Chiloquin jail toward the dance hall, Pearson called across the street as follows: 'If you don't stop interfering in my affairs I'll kill you, you black—'

"He advanced toward Thomason, who gave ground. Finally John Lee Ball, the testimony will show, stepped in and grabbed Pearson. He discovered a knife clutched in Pearson's hand.

"Again, gentlemen, testimony will prove to you, that about ten days before the killing of Pearson that Pearson again made threats. A warrant had been sworn out for his arrest, and 'Buck' came up to an officer and said: 'I understand there's a warrant out for me, who's got it, Thomason?' The officer said yes. 'Well, you tell him not to arrest me or I'll kill him.'

Nearing Killing
"Now, gentlemen, we are drawing near the time of the shooting of Pearson. In fact, we have arrived at the night before. That was November 28th.

"Mrs. Ball, the old grandmother, met Pearson, the testimony will show, on the main street of Chiloquin, and remonstrated with him to desist from paying attention to her grandchild. Then, you will learn from the testimony, that Pearson knocked her down; that she struggled to her feet, and he knocked her down again, and, finally, as she crawled to her knees, he leaned over and struck her still again. You will find, gentlemen, that her body was black and blue from the blows; that one eye protruded from the socket, and that her face was badly cut and bruised.

No Threats, Claim
"Mrs. Ball and Thomason went to Klamath Falls, where a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Pearson on the charge of assault and battery. All this time, mind you, not one word of threat had been uttered by Thomason.

"On the night of November 27, Thomason came to the town of Chiloquin. Certainly he had a revolver; he was an officer and entitled to use one. Yes, he had a rifle in his car, too. It is a common practice on the range to carry rifles with which to shoot predatory animals.

"Thomason had no intention of killing Pearson when he came to town that day; none whatsoever. With Elva and Ralph Tice and Mrs. Ball he came to the reservation center to get some dinner.

"Thomason got out of the car and started to walk towards the quality cafe, where and the three others planned to eat dinner. As he crossed the street Buck Pearson came out of the store with some bottles in one hand. The two men were, perhaps, five or six feet apart. Pearson paused and said, the testimony will show, 'I understand you have been out to get a warrant for me.'

"Thomason, it will be proven, did not answer.

"Well," spoke up Pearson, 'why don't you serve it? You big— you haven't got the nerve.'

"Ball Thomason did not, move nor reply.

"Suddenly, gentlemen of the jury, Pearson made a sudden move with his hands, and Thomason fired.

"That, gentlemen, is substantially what the defense will prove to you, and I am satisfied that when you are fully acquainted with the facts, you will declare the defendant not guilty of the crime of which he is charged."

"We know our Luckies That's how we stay slender"

EVERY woman who fears overweight finds keen interest in new, easy and common-sense ways to keep a slender, fashionable figure. Overweight must be avoided. "Better to light a Lucky wherever you crave fattening sweets."

Toasting does it. Toasting develops and improves the flavor of the world's finest tobaccos. Lucky Strike satisfies the longing for things that make you fat, without interfering with a normal appetite for healthful foods. That's why Luckies are good to smoke. Toasting makes Lucky Strike the healthy cigarette for you to smoke.

Many men who carefully watch their health discovered this years ago. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not slow up their physical vigor—prominent athletes have gone on record that this is so. They know that 20,679 physicians have stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."
