California's Lethargy

CALIFORNIA people should understand that the road from San Francisco to Klamath Falls is also the road from Klamath Falls to San Francisco. The delay in building California's portion of that highway is costing San Francisco and other California points considerable business. If it were a big undertaking there might be some reason for the California lethargy which is so pronounced, but it is not a large project, at all.

Oregon has a number of standard roads built to the state line and California, with her boasted progressiveness has not connected with a single Oregon road, except the Pacific highway and that construction is second grade.

It was the proper thing for the Klamath Falls Chamber of Commerce to take up the highway question with California through the legislature of the two states, and also ask the governor of Oregon to urge upon the governor of California the need of having the roads connected.

The memorials which will very likely be passed by the Oregon legislature not only calls California's attention to the highway situation, but it also calls attention of the entire west to the tardiness of the Golden Gate state in making the most of opportunities offered it by Oregon.

Patterson Remains Silent

IN face of the fact that Johnnie Kelly, political editor of the Oregonian, sees a possibility of Governor Patterson becoming senator from Oregon when McNary goes on the federal bench, not a word is uttered by the chief executive. He holds that silence which is golden, and which is always good for a newspaper guessing contest. His proposed visit to Washington, D. C., is a trifle indicative and Kelly may have the governor well pegged. At least, Governor Patterson is not inclined to desert public life at the present time.

The Mariners Do Travel

JOIN the U. S. marine corp and see the world!

The catchword of the blue-clad recruiting sergeant is pretty nearly justified, at that. Major General John A. Lejeune, commandant of the corps, reveals in his annual report that in 1928 approximately two-thirds of the entire corps saw service outside the United States.

The bulk of these, of course, went to Nicaragua. A large detachment was in China, and a good many more served in Haiti. Then, in addition, the marine contingents of various battleships and cruisers did considerable traveling.

It begins to look as if the recruiting sergeant's slogan just about fits the facts.

from over the Nation

If a prizefighter in the days when this picture was taken had tried to give a lecture on Shakespeare to the Yale students he would have been locked up.

One glance is enough to assure anybody that these three huskies could not under any circumstances recite segments of Othello or even Venus and Adonis. But, if asked whether a right hook to the chin was more effective than a left to the breadbasket, anyone of them would take the head of the class.

In short, these three gentlemen offer a perfect example of the old school of boxing, in the center is Jim Jeffries, heavyweight champion. His brother, Jack Jeffries, stands to the left, while the great Tommy Ryan, middle and welterweight king, is on the right.

This picture was taken during one of their training sojourns in Happy Hollow, back of the Arlington Hotel at Hot Springs, Ark. Jeffries was preparing for his fight with Gus Ruhlin, which took place in 1921 in the old Mehan's Pavilion, San Francisco.

That fight saw the death blow to Ruhlin's title hopes. Stimulated by a victory over Tom Sharkey via the knockout route, Gus was certain he was destined to become heavyweight cham-

SENTENCE ASA KEYES TO PEN

Former Prosecutor Must Serve From One to 14 Years.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21, (AP)—Asa Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles county, today was preparing, in a steel cell, to continue his battle to escape a sentence of from one to fourteen years in San Quentin prison for bribery and conspiracy. With him behind the bars of the county jail is E. H. Rosenberg, convicted along with Keyes and Ben Getroff, and also under sentence to San Quentin. Getroff, Spring street tailor in whose little shop the state contends bribes involving Keyes were passed, is free on his own recognizance. He is suffering from a stomach ailment, and, apparently broken in health and spirit, has been allowed to file application for probation, pending which pronouncement of sentence upon him has been deferred for two weeks.

Keyes, with his co-defendants, fought two days in an effort to gain a new trial from Superior Judge Edward L. Butler. The plea was denied yesterday and sentence pronounced upon two of the three, but the big house at San Quentin, already peopled by many whom Keyes prosecuted in Los Angeles over nearly a quarter of a century, will not see the former district attorney get away.

Notice of appeal, filed late yesterday, has for the time being at least rescued Keyes and Rosenberg from the shadow of the prison walls. Judge Butler denied an application for bail, however, and the remainder of the fight, which Keyes asserts has "just begun" must be conducted from county jail cells.

and the county assessor to $2200. Klamath county commissioners would receive $1500.

Insofar as the sheriff's salary is concerned, it has not been changed for 13 years and at this session of the legislature, there was a move afoot to increase it to $3340 a year. In support of this increase, it has been pointed out that the Klamath sheriff's office has more civil and criminal work than any other county in the state outside of Multnomah county.

The new salary schedule is based on an assessed valuation of the county and, apparently, does not take into consideration the local conditions obtaining in each county or the area of each county.

MEMORIAL WILL ASK FOR ROADS

The California state legislature will be asked to complete six roads in northern California to connect with six Oregon highways which have been built to the state line if a resolution passed yesterday at the chamber of commerce forum is acted upon.

The resolution passed asked that a memorial drafted by the chamber of commerce here be passed by the Oregon state legislature requesting the California law making body to complete the highways in the northern part of our sister state on the south.

One copy of the memorial which the Klamath chamber wishes passed will be sent to Andrew W. Collier, representative in this district, and a second copy will be mailed to Governor L. L. Patterson. Collier will be asked to introduce the memorial and urge its passage by the legislature.

The completion of roads in the northern part of California is one of the objects of the Southern Oregon and Northern California Development association and representatives of Jackson, Josephine counties in Oregon and Del Norte county, California, have joined to aid in the accomplishment of the objectives of the association.

Two of the highways, the Dalles-California and the Klamath Falls-Weed, both end at the state line in Klamath county. Four other roads that are completed in Oregon and which California has promised to connect with roads into that state are: the Lakerlew-Alturas highway, the Redwood highway, the Rosevelt highway and the Pacific highway.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE PELICAN

A pictorial gem, brand new in theme, and all that any film patron could ask for in the way of thrills and sterling entertainment, "The Air Circus," began a run at the Pelican today, which promises to set new records.

This Fox film is superb entertainment. It takes the movie goer up in the clouds—makes him forget that he's looking at a screen, and gives the sensation of actually riding in a plane. More than 75 per cent of the picture is made off the ground.

The directors, Howard Hawks and Lew Seiler, have robbed many persons of the thrill of their first plane ride, because it is impossible to imagine oneself within a theatre during the screening of "The Air Circus". To all intents and purposes the theatre patron is riding the skies with David Rollins, (see Carl) and Arthur Lake, the three young principals in the cast.

The theme of the story concerns two young men who leave their home in the country town to take up flying on the Pacific coast. One, David Rollins, whose brother gave his life overseas to save the owner of the aviation school, where the boys go to study, from death by an enemy plane, logically should develop into a competent flyer for his interest centers in flying. However, he develops into a dud, so to speak, showing an ever growing fear of the air. The other lad, a daredevil, whose interest centers in sky travel rather than learning the mechanics of flying on the ground work, flies rings around Rollins, though they both have the same teacher—Sue Carol.

Delaney and Miss Carol expect great things from Rollins because of their knowledge of his brother's bravery in driving his own plane into that of an enemy to save Delaney, thus sacrificing his life for his buddy.

SERVICES FOR DR. CAMPBELL CONDUCTED

Amidst a profusion of beautiful floral offerings with hundreds of friends gathered, final rites for the late Dr. Thomas Chambers Campbell were held this afternoon from the Earl Whitlock funeral home, Five avenue at Sixth.

Rev. J. Henry Thomas of St. Paul's Episcopal church officiated.

During the service Mrs. Francis R. Olds sang solos accompanied by Mrs. M. Helena Joyaux.

Representatives of the Masonic lodge, of the Commandery, the Elks Lodge and Veterans of Foreign Wars attended the services.

Nurses from the Klamath Valley hospital attended in a body.

The remains, accompanied by Mrs. Bertha M. Campbell, the widow, and Rev. J. Henry Thomas will be taken to Monmouth, Oregon, tonight.

Vault entombment will be made tomorrow.

5 NEWSPAPERS ARE PUNISHED

Publications in Mexico Hit Hard by Angry Government.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 21, (UP)—The Mexican government is expected to take action against the five leading capital newspapers—possibly in the form of an advertising boycott—as a result of an official statement issued today by the interior department, declaring the newspapers "accomplices of crime."

The statement was made as a result of publication of a statement by Bishop Miguel De La Mora, in which the Bishop said priests in Mexico would be permitted to register on "their own responsibility" if they desired to permit the government to "humiliate them."

The president approved the interior department's statement promising energetic punishment for the editors responsible for publication of Mora's statement. It was recalled that President Portes Gil removed all official advertising from the newspaper Excelsior and forbade general advertisers to use the newspaper as a result of what he considered anti-government newspaper stories.

Post Office Closed Tomorrow—
Postal employees will enjoy a rest from their business duties tomorrow, Washington's birthday, one of the legal holidays observed by the United States government. No deliveries will be made tomorrow.

AT THE PELICAN
William Boyd in Picture, Dog Actor in Person

Due to the success of the combination of William Boyd as the star and Donald Crisp as the director of "Dress Parade," the two reunited in the filming of "The Cop" a new De Mille studio production starring William Boyd, which is showing at the Pine Tree.

Crisp, one of the cinema's veteran directors, started his career in "The Birth of a Nation," when he was associated with David Wark Griffith. He directed many of the screen's most celebrated personalities, while his recent efforts include "The Fighting Eagle," "Dress Parade," and "Stand and Deliver."

William Boyd rose to stardom under Cecil B. DeMille and played the featured title role in "The Volga Boatman". His recent pictures are "Skycraper," "The Night Flyer," "Dress Parade," "Two Arabian Knights" and others.

"The Cop" is an original story of New York's underworld by El-Bett Clawson adapted by Tay Garnett. Ralph Block was the producer. Jacqueline Logan.
