

ORGANIZATION COUNTY GRANGE IS COMPLETED

News Notes of Henley District Told by Henley Correspondent.

Junior Class, Correspondents (Special to The Herald)

HENLEY, Feb. 21.—Klamath county boasts the first Pomona Grange in the state to be organized under the direction of Mr. Farmer, lecturer of the National Grange. The organization was completed Friday with all the local granges of the county well represented. Mr. Farmer, the main speaker of the day, spoke on the Corner Stone of Henley was elected master of the Grange; Orb Campbell of Henley, treasurer and Mr. Cotton of Williamson River, secretary. The Pomona Grange will meet on the 15th of March at the Henley Gymnasium.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Myers and family who recently purchased the B. H. Hamilton home near Merrill, took possession Saturday, February 15. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hamilton have rented the Charles Snow ranch, formerly occupied by the Van Myers family.

The Misses Olive Hill and Jennie Reinhart visited at the W. F. Miller home at Merrill over the week-end.

The students of the Henley school were giving a program Thursday in honor of Washington's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D. West, Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Klaba, and Mrs. T. S. Richardson of Klamath Falls visited at the L. A. West home Sunday evening.

Miss Neva Hamilton, who formerly attended school at Merrill, entered the Henley grade school Monday.

Miss Mary Short of the Ashland Normal visited at the Henley high school Friday afternoon.

The six week examinations were given Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Miss Elva and Laura Ward called on Mrs. A. C. Bunnell Sunday.

At the tryouts held last week for places in the one-act play, "Joint Owners in Spain" to be entered into the Drama Tournament at Eugene, April 4-6, Wilma Dawson, Bonnie Short, Dorothy Reeder and Beryl Short were chosen.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bunnell, Mrs. Otto Wobbles and Jim Bunnell visited at the W. E. Ward home Thursday evening.

James Mark spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. F. S. Thompson of Merrill.

Charles Drew and Alfred Engle gave a skating party at the Drew ranch Friday night. Those who enjoyed skating were: Elsie Hoeslittine, Georgia Dawson, Bonnie Short, Beryl Short, Wilma Dawson, Clem Isenbier, James Mark, Roscoe and Clinton Bankhurst, Eugene and Vernon Durant, Irwin Campbell, Jerry and John Short, Wilbur and John Rilling, John, Francis and Charles Hess, Charles Drew and Alfred Engle.

Elsie Hoeslittine, Mary West, Roscoe and Clinton Bankhurst and Glenn Dehlinger, delegates to the O. S. C. conference, accompanied by Mr. O. A. Schultz, principal, will leave by automobile Thursday morning for Corvallis where they will attend the Vocational Guidance Conference. Frank Sexton, county club leader, visited at the Henley high school Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Elia Young returned home last week after receiving medical treatment at Jacksonville for the past three weeks.

The Henley girls' and boys' basketball teams will play basketball with Chiloquin Tuesday night at the Henley Gymnasium.

The Henley high school will give the program at the assembly to be held Wednesday morning at nine o'clock in the high school assembly room. Everyone is invited.

Mrs. Elsie Leming, Isabelle Braxner, and Dorothy Dehlinger, and Mr. O. A. Schultz attended the teachers' meeting at Merrill Saturday. Mrs. Braxner gave a report on Individualized Instruction, an experiment of interest that has been carried on in the upper grade room. By this system each student does project work and does not meet in class every day. Special attention is given to each individual's ability. Their standing is figured on the amount of work accomplished. Henley is one of the few schools attempting this new educational idea. Mrs. Braxner feels that this work has been successful from the standpoint of developing individual initiative and self-reliance.

Aged Indian Millionaire's White Wife Tells of Their Romance

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19. When the noble red man falls heir to a vast fortune and takes himself a wife, the resulting course of events can be expected to be both original and diverting.

Jackson Barnett, the wealthiest Indian in America, is the central figure in a romantic idyll that is drawing the attention of a senate investigating committee just now. Barnett is about 75; relegated to a seemingly worthless 100-acre tract of Oklahoma land several years ago when white men pushed him off of property which seemed more valuable, he came into possession of something like $3,000,000 when oil was discovered on his new possessions.

Barnett has a wife—a white woman, attractive Anna Laura. She, Barnett and a host of attorneys are being quizzed by senators who suspect that the good-natured old Indian was born-sworned somewhere—especially in his distribution of approximately $1,200,000 since his marriage a few years ago.

Anna Laura, a courtly, appealing woman, who does not resemble the adventures that some investigators have called her, described the courtship of the rich Indian for your correspondent.

Now look at Anna Laura, that keen young business woman from the southwest, who won the biggest catch, financially speaking, among the noble red men. She admits being born in 1881, but looks as young as 25. She came to Washington with a black straw hat, a stylish figured dress with tiny accordion pleats, a red broadcloth coat and a pointed black fox fur, high-heeled patent leather shoes, beige stockings and pretty knees. Her voice is pleasant and her choice of English is grammatical.

Anna Laura was just a little country girl, born in a tiny Missouri town, and was taken to Oklahoma at the age of 16. She protect us until they tried to break into our room. You know how they tried to annul our marriage, and failed. Ever since that they've been trying to get Jackson's money, trying bribery, threats, kidnapping and everything they could think of. Why, Jackson has had to have a bodyguard for the past month.

"Jackson is the only man I'm interested in. He's a good husband. When I met him he had one change of clothes and no furniture except a bed. His estate has increased in value a million dollars through my investments in Los Angeles real estate. He has luxuries where before he had nothing but money, which he wasn't getting. Why, all the clothes I buy for him are imported."

"I married Jackson Barnett, and am going to live with him as long as he or I live. I intend to maintain my marriage vows, and I would feel like a criminal if I turned him over to that bunch of cut-throats."

A few years ago Jackson Barnett was a trough out in his barnyard set between two trees, and we went out and talked, leaning against that. He told me about some Baptist society that had been bothering him. I said: "Jackson, there people are all after your money. You need a wife to take care of you."

Marriage Is Arranged

"He said: 'Well, I'd like to marry you.'"

"I said: 'Well, Jackson, I'll think about it.'"

"So I came back again and he was sitting inside in front of the fire and I said: 'Jackson, I'm ready to marry you.' I told his negro boy that we were going to be married, and asked my taxi driver the nearest place where we could do it. He suggested Okemah. Bijt one of the negro boys telephoned to O'Hornett, his guardian, and we were blocked at both Okemah and Holdenville.

"At Holdenville some took him aside and tried to get him to give $25,000 to the Baptist church. I had to take Jackson home to Henryetta, but told him would be back. They tried to talk me out of marrying him. They took Jackson to Washington and got him to sign away more than a million dollars.

"Next Sunday I drove with some friends from Tulsa to Jackson's place. The negro servant said he wasn't there, but suddenly Jackson came out of the door without any shoes or coat on and I jumped out and ran to greet him.

"'Jackson,' I said, 'we're all ready to get married now.' And he got in the car and I went the boy for his shoes and hat and coat." Jackson told the boys we were going out to get a lease, and would be back in the morning.

"We drove to Coffeyville, Kansas, and married about noon. I got the license at Independence, an hour away, and my friends got a judge.

Marriage Is Attacked

"Jackson was highly elated. The next day his guardian, who was allied with lawyers plotting for his money, arrived, with others. I didn't hire a lawyer to

Commissioners Pay Increase Gets Support

(Oregon Voter Reporting Service)

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 21.—Senator A. W. Norblad, president of the state senate, yielded his chair as presiding officer Tuesday so that he might speak from the floor of the senate on H. B. 246, which passed the Senate, providing for an increase in the salaries of the industrial accident commission from $2,500 to $4,500.

"I am secretary of a lumber company with a payroll of $100,000," stated Norblad. "Many years of business in Oregon and familiarity with conditions before the passage of the Industrial Accident Insurance Act makes this company exceedingly in favor of salary increase for the commission."

"I have received numerous telegrams from employers all over the state favoring the salary increase. I have also many letters from people who have been injured and have come in direct contact with the work of the commission; they favor it. The Oregon Federation of Labor has sent me a letter in support of it."

"It is our duty," Norblad declared at the close, "not to vote our own individual choice, but to vote the wish of our constituents."

The bill had been voted down on Saturday, but a motion for reconsideration was carried and the bill passed the second time.

HOUSE PASSES TAX MEASURE

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 21. (AP)—With only two opposing votes, the excise tax bill passed the lower house Tuesday afternoon after 96 minutes of explanation and debate. The excise bill, the first of the major tax proposals of the property tax relief commission, taxes income of banks and other incorporations at the rate of five percent.

STUDENT FLYER DIES IN CRASH

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 21. (AP)—Aviation authorities here today were unable to determine definitely the cause of the fatal plunge of the tiny monoplane at Swan Island airport here Sunday, in which William H. Fenton, citizen flyer, lost his life.

The general theory is that Fenton attempted to bank the plane before he had gained sufficient flying speed.

Witnesses said the little plane, in which Fenton was flying alone, suddenly lurched at 200 feet altitude, pivoted once and dropped to earth like a plummet.

The plane buried its nose in the mire at the extreme south end of the island. Fenton, badly mangled, died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital.

The three head of Aberdeen Angus are on their way west by freight and will be delivered to Mr. Alexander in the near future.

Nervous Woman, 58, Gets Big Surprise

"After a year of nervous trouble life is worth living again. At my age, 58, results from Vinol are surprising!"—Emma Bryant.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver phosphate, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. Whitman Drug Co.
