Champions of Northern and Southern Division Clash for Title

SEATTLE, March 1, (AP)—An undefeated University of Washington basketball team was ready to meet the Northern Division of the University of California Bears, champions of the southern half of the Pacific coast intercollegiate basketball conference tonight.

Before what is expected to be Seattle's largest basketball crowd, more than 9,000 persons, the Huskies and the Bruins will clash in the first game of a three game series for the title of the Pacific coast.

The California team arrived here last night from Berkeley with all the squad in good shape with the exception of Captain Corbin who was suffering from an injured nose received last week.

McLarnin and Glick to Meet This Evening

NEW YORK, March 1, (AP)—Jimmy McLarnin, smiling battler from the Pacific coast, enters his bout with Joe Glick at Madison Square Garden tonight at nine to five favorite to record his third victory over the Williamsburg pants presser.

McLarnin and Glick first met on the coast several years ago as featherweights and Jimmy won the decision. They renewed their feud in the Garden six weeks ago and McLarnin again carried off the verdict after a torrid struggle.

Their third meeting again is far from a round at 128 pounds. Glick probably will be outweighed by three or four pounds.

McLarnin was forced to continue his workouts yesterday in an effort to remove two excess pounds.

ANAHEIM, Calif., March 1, (AP)—If the Portland club had Max Hillis, infielder acquired from the Pittsburgh Nationals in the Tony French deal, in camp, one-half of its worries would be erased.

Hillis' whereabouts is unknown by Tom Turner, president of the Beavers. When last heard from the infielder was in Cambridge, Mass., enroute to the coast. That was more than a week ago.

"PAPA" LENGLEN PASSES TODAY

NICE, France, March 1, (AP)—"Papa" Lenglen, father of Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, died here this morning.

"Papa" Lenglen, for many years secretary of the Nice Lawn Tennis club, taught his daughter, Suzanne, the game which brought her international fame as a peerless player. He frequently told how speed and accuracy had been the secrets of his success in teaching his daughter to play the game.

Interviewed in 1926 he said: "When Suzanne was young, she was frail and delicate. I wanted to develop her physique. I first thought of swimming, but remembered that I had been a tennis player in my youth and began to give her fifteen minute lessons daily. Speed and accuracy are what I concentrated on."

LAZZERI'S ARM IN BAD SHAPE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 1, (AP)—Gloom hangs over the New York training camp for there are whispers that all is not well with Tony Lazzeri's arm.

Beyond admitting that the slugging second baseman is suffering from a sore shoulder, Miller Huggins has little to say. Tony played a good part of last season on his nerve. He could throw the ball at times. There are fears that he has not recovered.

VANCOUVER AND PORTLAND TIE

PORTLAND, Ore., March 1, (AP)—Although Portland didn't win last night's hockey game, it didn't lose it either. In one of the most unusual games of the season, the puckeros held Vancouver, league leaders, to an overtime 4 to 4 tie.

In the petition Mara asked to amend his complaint to include profits from subsequent matches. Mara said he made a contract with Tunney and Gibson in April, 1926, by which he was to get 10 per cent of their earnings for a championship fight with Dempsey.

School Critic Given 'Ride' by Group of Boys

GALT, Calif., March 1, (UP)—Mystery tonight surrounded the contention of A. N. Thomas, a poultryman, that he was "taken for a ride" by six high school boys because he had voiced opposition to a plan to start a class on aviation in the local high school.

Thomas, described by William Rutherford, principal of the high school as a "constant critic of the school and the town," failed to report the incident for nearly 24 hours, the constable of Galt claimed.

Thomas described the abduction in front of his home and said a gunny sack was wrapped about his head. He was taken for a long ride and finally put out of the car in the mountains back of here, he explained. Removing the sack he started to walk home and claimed he collapsed when he reached the house.

ATHLETE WILL DIE FROM SHOT

CHICAGO, March 1, (AP)—John Acher's fraternity brothers have been informed there is nothing they can do to save his life.

The entire Northwestern University chapter of Phi Delta Theta offered yesterday to submit to blood transfusions in an effort to save the athlete. The offer was declined by Acher's father. His telegram, from Fort Dodge, Ia., said a transfusion had already been arranged but that there seemed to be little chance of recovery.

Acher, a member of the Northwestern football squad, was shot last fall when hoodlums in an automobile became angered after Acher's car had grazed a fender of their machine.

BLONDE "ALIBI" OF GANGSTER IS ATTRACTIVE

"Lulu-Lou" Rolfe is Smart, Beautiful and Self Contained

CHICAGO, March 1, (AP)—The crimson picture of seven dead men, painted in blood on a garage floor two weeks ago, had superimposed upon its ugly outlines today the slim, smart beauty of "Lulu-Lou" Rolfe—Jack McGurn's "blonde alibi."

McGurn was in jail, held without charge in the massacre case, so was Roscoe Panelli, who surrendered yesterday. But "Lulu-Lou" Rolfe, held in the women's quarters of the police station, was the most picturesque personality among the only persons thus far arrested in connection with the seven murders.

Out north, on Addison street, five-year-old Berneda played; blue-eyed, curly haired Berneda, daughter of Louise Rolfe by a short-lived marriage that took place when "Lulu-Lou" was of high school age. She lives with her grandmother, Louise Rolfe's mother.

Louise Rolfe is not the mother kind. She is modish, sophisticated, slender and bejeweled. She wore a squirrel coat when arrested with McGurn in a suite at the Hotel Stevens Wednesday. Her dress was of black crepe with modest collar of white lace and touches of white at the wrists. A rope of imitation pearls with which she toyed while being interviewed hung from her neck.

Yet with all her sophistication, for expertness in the artifices of makeup, her complete composure and even bored demeanor, there is about this 22-year-old woman a touch of a wistfulness that is not so alien to motherhood, after all. She carries herself confidently but without ostentation. Her golden hair, which she is "letting grow out," falls in waves to her shoulder tops. Her attitudes as she sits or stand reflect in their suggestion of artistry her training as a model. Dark eyes are mascaraed, and her eyebrows thinned to pencil stripes.

A slender hand of gold showed above one curved ankle. "It's got my name on it, so they can't lose me," she said.

As she talked, quite frankly, with reporters there was a broad hint at times that she was spoofing. She related for example, that she is of French, English and Indian descent, going into elaborate details; and when the roomful of writers seemed to be giving her story serious attention she laughed. A little contemptuous, that laugh. And she watched the faces of her questioners, to note the effect of her histrionism.

This drew a compliment on her nerves. "No nerves? Of course no," she spoke with a trace of bitterness, holding her finely groomed fingertips out for them to see. The polished nails were bitten to the quick.

To say that Jack McGurn was mixed up in the Valentine's day gang massacre is, in Louise Rolfe, ridiculous. To say, as the police have often enough, that Jack McGurn is the ace of gangster machine gunners, and "a tough boy with a rod," doesn't go over with her.

There is no attempt at pretense from "Lulu-Lou" as to her relationship with McGurn. They are not married, she said.

"Do I like him?" she answered one questioner. "Oh, no, I love him."

They have gone about the country together for a year or so, she said. Chicago, Biloxi (in season) and Miami. They were in Miami "about Christmas."

"Sure, we saw Al Capone. Not with him," she was careful to add, "just happened to be in the same town, understand?"

She smoked incessantly as she talked, lighting one cigarette from another. Her replies became brittle and her eyes narrowed only when the questioning took a tack toward the gang murders. "Jack couldn't have had anything to do with them," she said. "We were in our hotel rooms all that day. If you don't believe me, ask the floor clerks. Nothing gets by them. If we had gone out, they'd have known it."

Police planned to charge McGurn with murder before nightfall, to defend a move to free him under a habeas corpus action begun yesterday. It was not certain what police planned in the case of Roscoe Panelli, who walked into detective headquarters and inquired if anybody there wanted to see him. Police declared he had been identified.

Four men are still sought as members of the gang that did the actual shooting. Three of these were understood to be Stanley Novak, Danny Valle and Roscoe Belcastor.
