Something Must Be Done

IMAGINE the time when timber along the Green Springs highway will be logged off, when tall, stately pines which line the Sand Creek mountain grade of The Dalles-California highway will be gone. Conjure up in your mind the dreary picture of once beautiful forest roads winding in and out among thousands of acres of stumps. That mind's eye picture will become a reality unless something is done, either by the state or government, to retain strips of timber land along highways, and perpetuate for posterity the surpassing beauty of Oregon's road system.

Timbermen can not be expected to contribute fortunes in timber for this purpose; they can not be blamed for taking what is their own. But the state or government can be blamed if they do not take some steps to preserve, in some degree, the heritage of Oregon's beauty.

If the timber is to be taken, some system might be worked out by which tracts of national forest timber could be traded for strips of privately owned timber along highways. A county's 25 per cent return from national forest timber sales would, of course be reduced. But what is the sacrifice of that sum of money compared to the loss of a country's beauty?

To save all timber along state highways may be too costly a venture to undertake; if so, several beauty spots could be preserved such as the lovely outlook from the Sand Creek mountain grade, and the long, forest lane between McCollum's mill and Jenny Creek.

To work out a definite plan for such a venture, is not this paper's purpose; that should be left for state and government officials, either individually or collectively. But we must call attention, before it is too late, that something must be done before the timberland which lines Oregon's highways is transformed into a bleak and dreary waste.

Stop Liquor Traffic

THE killing of Morris Lotches, Indian, at the Captain ranch near Modoc Point early yesterday, again emphasizes the fact that introduction of liquor onto the Klamath Indian reservation must stop.

The questions of whether Lotches was killed deliberately or unintentionally, and whether the gun was discharged with homicidal intent or accidentally, as the slayer contends, are matters for the courts to decide. But this newspaper is entitled to comment on another phase of the party that had such a tragic ending, namely, the liquor that was consumed by these Indians just before the fatal shooting.

There is no good purpose served in closing one's eyes to the conditions on the reservation. Criminal records over the past fourteen months reveal so many reservation shooting scrapes and homicides, that the reputation of the entire Klamath country is jeopardized.

In practically every case, whiskey was the cause—whiskey which was smuggled into the reservation and sold to Indians who were peaceable, law abiding citizens until the "fire water" transformed them into quarrelsome and violent men.

The government owes it to its wards to protect them from this whiskey scourge. They also owe it to citizens of Klamath county who, indirectly, have suffered from the unsavory reputation this district has gained during recent months.

That the present law enforcement force on the reservation is insufficient is apparent. More officers and heavier penalties are the only solution of the problem.

EDITORIALS

From Over the Nation

L. A. R. Wylie in Harper's Magazine: The modern girl or boy of 19 seems to me, in spite of all advance, still pathetically and most uncharacteristically childish. They are probably as intelligent as they will ever be and far more able to accept facts calmly and without hurt than at the period of adolescence. Yet they are held back and coddled mentally and physically as though they were half-witted cripples. Their no-called sophistication, which is most often a form of bumptiousness resulting from too much indulgence and too little real experience, is as little related to honest, intelligent sophistication as the ignorance of their Victorian predecessors. They are not only unfit for freedom, but, except for the few fighters and rebels, incapable of becoming free. In later life they continue an unreal existence as children with cocktail parties and late, and imagine that they are living. They carry their false values about with them until they die. They become the incredibly bigoted, stupid and sentimental

MALIN LADIES CIRCLE MEETS

News Notes of Farm District, Told By Herald Correspondent

(Special to The Herald)

MALIN, April 6.—Mrs. Frank Campbell and children returned Wednesday from a visit of several months in northern Oregon with Mrs. Campbell's parents. They also visited in Idaho. Mr. Campbell is butter maker at the Malin Cheese and Produce Factory.

Frank Sexton, county club leader, met with the cooking clubs on Thursday. Members of the boys' club are:

The local Christian Endeavor Society will attend the County Endeavor rally at Merrill on April 8.

The Ladies Circle met at the Community Hall library on Thursday afternoon. There was a good attendance. After matters of business were attended to a program was presented by the program committee. The regular meetings are held on the second and fourth Thursday of each month.

Mrs. John McNeill and son, John, and nephew, Billy Carsley, visited in Malin Thursday afternoon.

F. E. Dyer has moved into his new cabin on the John Reber place, where he will go into the chicken business. New chicken houses are being erected and preparations being made for a considerable sized flock.

Mrs. Arthur Criss is ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Duncan.

Mr. Elmo Newton was a Malin visitor on Wednesday, calling on Mrs. Ben Pickett, who is with her mother, Mrs. Pospisil, during Mr. Pospisil's absence.

Clyde Vanmeter has returned from Dorris, where he has just completed a new water system for that city. There are two wells and two pumps so that in case of need the supply of water can be greatly increased or in case of repairs to one well the city is still supplied. In less than a month from the starting of the wells the completed work was turned over to the city. Mr. Vanmeter expects to install a system in Chillicothe soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudenhoff of Merrill have moved into Malin. Mr. Dudenhoff is city marshal of Malin.

The Malin Grange met on Wednesday night at the Community hall. As a result of the membership drive enough new members were added to bring the membership up to 75. The losing side served a banquet to the winners.

ROTARY HEARS LOCAL PASTOR

Offering the sweet carol of "friendship and fairness in business" of man's right treatment to his fellowmen; of rejecting the idea that men make wealth when a good God creates everything and his children are but custodians to be about their Father's business." Rev. J. Henry Thomas Friday poured into Rotarians ears a sermon and lecture combined.

The occasion was a "Vocational Service" program and J. A. Gordon was chairman. Mr. Gordon is loyal to this branch of Rotary and his invitation to Rev. Thomas to talk proved to be a feast for the civic club members with morality and ethics as the principal course.

John H. Piper, regional Scout director, made a short address to Rotarians and introduced Oscar Hoover, the new Scout executive who comes from Walla Walla, Washington where he has been engaged in similar work. Mr. Hoover responded to an invitation to speak and told his audience that he was here to work and to build the Boy Scouts organization to the best possible standard, and therefore needed the help of all citizens.

New directors for Rotary were chosen Friday. The men who will direct that organization and select the new president are: Glenn Haut, Ralph Macarney, C. H. Underwood, Tom Watters and Arthur Wilson.

KREITZER APPOINTED
SALEM, Ore., April 6, (AP)—R. H. Kreitzer of Portland was today appointed by Governor Patterson as a member of the state board for vocational education.

To deprive a human being of years of living seems to me the greatest crime that can be committed against him.

The First National Bank of Klamath Falls, Oregon

Announcing Opening of "400 Sub Division"

Some people are land poor, but most people are poor because they have no land.

We are subdividing this land to meet the growing no better in the valley, into small tracts of 15 acres or more, on gravelled road.

We are subdividing this land to meet the growing demand for small dairy, poultry or garden tracts, some in fine bluegrass.

This is an estate being closed out at about 50 per cent less than actual value. The price ranges from $110.00 to $125.00 per acre, one-quarter cash, balance in ten annual installments, with 6 per cent interest. There should be a quick turn-over in this land. Let us show you this land. It is cheaper than rent.
