Turning Officers Into Cooks

THE old maxim that an army travels—or is it "fights"?—on its stomach is given added confirmation in new tactics just adopted by the U. S. War Department.

Army officers under these new orders, have to learn how to cook. At Fort Sam Houston, in Texas, for instance, there is a class of 13 commissioned officers studying the mechanics of preparing army rations. They are learning how to get meals—everything from beef stew to salad and pumpkin pie. The theory, no doubt, is that officers with such knowledge will be able to oversee the work of the company cooks much better, and thus will be able to make sure that their men are getting the proper kind of food.

The War Department, to our notion, is showing excellent judgment. The soldier is a great one to grumble over his lot; but the grumbling is never really serious unless it concerns the food he is getting. If he is fed properly, he doesn't so much mind his other troubles; and if he isn't, his dissatisfaction rapidly becomes acute.

A Good Law To Copy

THE state of Michigan has passed a law prohibiting the sale or use of fireworks—except, of course, at regular municipal or state displays—and a lot of other states would do well to copy that law on their own books.

The Fourth of July, to be sure, is a long way off; but right now isn't too early to start preparing to make it safe and sane.

Despite the abundance of proof that fireworks, in the hands of children, are extremely dangerous playthings, each Fourth of July brings a long list of casualties—deaths, ruined eyes, burns, scars and the like. Cities that pass ordinances prohibiting the sale of fireworks are unable to protect their citizens because suburban towns, easily accessible by auto, have them on sale.

State-wide laws are the only measures that will stamp fireworks out. Michigan's example is an excellent one for other states to copy.

Foxes and Church Budgets

AMERICAN churches, from time to time, have devised various ways and means of raising money to meet their expenses. It is doubtful, however, if any congregation ever tried the stunt which Grace Community Church, of Denver, is now undertaking.

This church not long ago was given seven silver foxes by a friend. The foxes were worth approximately $5000, and the trustees prepared to sell them and put the cash in the treasury.

First, however, they decided to investigate. They found that the foxes were being cared for on a regular fox ranch, and the rancher agreed to continue to look after them and their progeny in the interests of the church. So, after using paper and pencils for a while, the trustees told him to go ahead.

Now they are waiting to see what happens. If they have bad luck, of course, they may lose their seven foxes and get exactly nothing; but if luck is with them, they believe that their foxes may eventually pay the entire $12,000 annual budget of the church. So they are going to give it a try.

From Over the Nation

A REPLY TO SOCIALISM

It heggars wit of man how friend of man
Can postulate that worth should be ignored.
And, served, like dole, the national reward
Of power (begot, since social life began,
By vision, thrift, self-sacrifice, the sword).
In equal lot to queen and court-tesan,
To dillard, toater, genius, saint, and lord,
The craven and the leader of the van.

Shall mediocrity and worthlessness
By any sort of justice, rape and share
The tribute of devotion, courage, stress?
No body-politic could breathe that air;
But common-sense decided, once for all,
That to the early bird, the worm should fall.

Destroy the will to win and who remain
Can sharp our wits, or better our degree?
For nature ever spurs equality
And no two skulls yet held an equal brain.
Strike the unborn shall fight their battle free.

Clean of their blood, unhand-capped and sane;
But moral evolution we disdain
By dedicating all to slavery.

The sons of men you cannot standardize,
Or rate their value ere the same be known.
Our mighty hoard their huge, uncounted prize
Within the hearts of fellowmen alone.

Start the morn fair; then let each brother learn
A man is worth the wages he can earn.

—Eden Phillips in the Nation's Business.

THOUGHTS ON U. S. AFFAIRS

Take a trip over the Modoc Northern. We would suggest that they wait a little while until Eugene Barclay can get his steam shovels a little further toward Tule lake and lay a few more rails so that the trip down will give the interviewers a good idea of the great country that is to be the west's feeding ground in the future.

CLARENCE FORD is the head of Klamath's Salvation Army. Clarence is a fine boy and will do a lot of good here. We have known him since he was a little boy and he is a sincere, Christian character. Clarence received his first training under Captain Olive Childers, one of God's own good women. Miss Childers entered Salvation Army work when her father was sheriff of an Oregon county. She went into the poorer walks of life, she learned how the other half of the world lived, she saw suffering and hunger and straightway went about the business of correcting these ills in her community. Through her work she took Clarence Ford with her. He learned what it means to face struggling humanity when it cries out for succor and aid; he learned that the Christian life is the only one worth while—that riches and lands take wings, that the wealthy frequently are unhappy while often sweet contentment is found in the cabin where some person had listened to the plea of Olive Childers to follow the Meek and Lowly Nazarene. Clarence Ford is with us as director of the Salvation Army. Help him all you can, for he and his following are rendering a great service to this community.

REP. WEATHERSPOON from Union county does not spend all of his time on state politics. Besides being the La Follette of the last house and spreading a little trouble here and there for the boys who did not agree with him, Representative Weather Spoon takes care of the largest first class apple orchard in Oregon. When he hits a good year with an apple crop he tucks away a fortune and then smiles if the next year is poor. Weather Spoon has a sense of humor. When he gets licked he laughs, and when he ticks the other fellow in a legislative row he laughs. There is no way to get him down for he knows how to smile—which is one of the greatest blessings. As a member of the Ways and Means committee he could not understand why matters should be reconsidered when once passed upon. That is a habit of the Ways and Means committee, and Weather Spoon chafed under it. On that apple ranch a decision is a decision and Weather Spoon delivers that decision. If it is good, fine; if it is bad Weather Spoon takes the gaff. Down at Salem he could not do that and naturally he resented his habit being broken.

DUKE O'NEIL THANKS PUBLIC

The proceeds of the dance will be used for the high school band, to take them to Portland in May.
