GRAHAM LOSES TO CHOCOLATE ON FOUL BLOW

Bantam on Verge of Knock-out Hits Low in Seventh Round

NEW YORK, April 12. (AP)—The question of bantamweight supremacy, a complicated problem since the night two years ago when Charley Phil Rosenberg forfeited his title on the weighing-in scales, was no nearer settlement than ever today but New York fans at least had one gala night to look back upon as a part of the arguments.

Some 16,000 jammed Jess McMahon's new flume emporium last night for the fifteen-round struggle of Kid Chocolate, the Cuban sensation, and Busby Graham, wire-haired phantom from Ulaca, N. Y. They saw a great fight while it lasted, the decision given to Chocolate on a foul in the seventh round.

The big barn-like structure far-up in the Bronx was opened by the former matchmaker at Madison Square Garden. One thousand counterfeit tickets were reported sold and spectators arriving late found their seats already occupied. There was minor fighting within the ring, minor bawling among the spectators and general squabbling and milling outside.

The fight itself was spectacular while it lasted and ended in disappointing fashion when the (ring) Graham, four times warned for low punching, shot a final blow to Chocolate's belt line when on the verge of a knock-out in the seventh. There were four clean knockdowns in all.

The "kidd" tumbled from a fight to the clinch in the first and a low left in the second while Graham was down in the second and seventh. Both fighters came up each time without counts and Graham barely touched the canvas with his finger tips in the sixth. Graham sealed 121½. Chocolate 120.

Morpheus Arch Enemy of Many Ball Players

By Al Demaree
Former Pitcher New York Giants

There have always been lazy and sleepy ball players. I have often seen recruits stretch and yawn the first day of spring practice, with seven months of baseball ahead of them and wish that the season was over.

This fault is not always confined to the youngsters. I remember a pitcher called "Lefty" Burns who went to sleep while pitching a thirteen inning game for Oakland in the Pacific Coast League and had to be "woken up" on the bench to take his turn on the mound.

Bill Stump, the old Yankee shortstop, went sound to sleep on the bench one day in a close game and Frank Chance, who was managing the club, was with difficulty restrained from waking him up with a bat.

The last man to arrive at the ball park is always called "Johnny Ward." In memory of the famous original Johnny Ward who was always late for the bus when it left the hotel in the old days.

road is opposing the extensions of rival carriers. It will be the first public speech of S. P. officials in this city on the question. In recent weeks Harry Adams, president of the Western Pacific and L. C. Gilman, vice-president of the Great Northern railroads, have spoken before the chamber of commerce in favor of the extensions and urged that body to lend its support to their projects.

On April 24, a representative of the G. N. will speak—the speaker has not been selected, but there is a possibility that Ralph Budd, president of the line, will speak before the chamber of commerce and on May 1, the chamber of commerce membership will vote on a proposed resolution which, if adopted, would commit the chamber in favor of the extensions.

leader, lost his balance and plunged several hundred feet over the brink to his death. Don Hutchinson craned to save him, and was carried over the edge but clung to jutting rocks, where he was rescued eight hours later. Pat Hayes' leg was broken in the fall.

Citizens found Stiffness, badly mangled, and unconscious at the base of the cliff which rises from the end of the town's main street. Cries of the survivors attracted attention to their plight.

A rescue party of 100, comprising most of the town's male citizens was hastily organized and started on a five mile hike to the "far side" of the mountain, the only place the peak can be scaled. The men were hampered by the ruggedness of the terrain and darkness.

Shortly before midnight they reached the top and lowered ropes to the ledge where Paul Hutchinson, Vincent Storm, Wilbur Nurse, Chaldee Palmer, Robert Isaman and Hayes were clinging, and these were hauled to safety.

Although the rescuers could shout to Don Hutchinson, his exact position could not be determined. A man was sent back to top for searchlights and to attempt to call an airplane with flashlight beams shortly after two o'clock the searchmaster was found, and Willis Earl, a half brother of the Palmer boy, and "Shorby" Kakerh, were lowered over the face of the cliff.

Sprague Fish Ladder to Be Constructed

Construction of a suitable fish ladder over Sprague river, a move that would mean the saving of thousands of trout—has been promised to the Klamath Sportsmen's association by J. D. Gilroy, engineer of the United States bureau of fisheries.

O. D. Matthews, president of the association, and Mr. Gilroy, inspected the dam at length Thursday and Mr. Gilroy came away convinced that the present fish ladder is inadequate.

For years, the lack of a dam at Sprague River has not only checked the annual rainbow trout spawning run but also as indirectly killed thousands of trout who either dashed themselves to death in wild jumps against the concrete rampart, or were caught by Indians as they rested by the thousands below the dam.
