

DEATH TOLL OF STORM MOUNTS TO 50 TODAY

Three Group Funerals Held in Arkansas Following Tornado

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 13. (AP)—Three group funerals of victims of the tornado which Wednesday swept sections of north Arkansas taking a toll of life which stood at 50 today, were to be held this afternoon at Gilton and Swifton, two villages which bore the brunt of the storm.

Two small rural cemeteries near Swifton each are to receive the bodies of 11 victims, while at Gilton, six of those who lost their lives in the storm which razed the entire town, are to be buried.

Meanwhile, the work of rehabilitation was going forward under direction of Red Cross workers, and Major C. R. Barham and Captain Lee V. Casey of the adjutant general's staff, dispatched to the area to take charge of relief efforts instituted by Governor Parnell.

The first eye witness accounts of the storm which demolished Gilton were furnished early today by residents there. Not one building was left of more than a hundred and fifty.

Throughout yesterday, those who were not injured searched among the ruins of their homes. Little will be salvaged from the wreckage, observers said, so complete was the damage wrought. What was not destroyed or damaged by the wind was water soaked from a torrential rain.

One of the victims related from his cot in a temporary hospital at Batesville, the approach of the tornado.

He said it appeared from the west down the White river. As it approached, it sucked up the water into a whirling spout and the lower portion of the village was drenched.

"One viewing the wreckage after the storm passed could not understand how even a cat could have escaped," one victim related. "The death list would have been much larger had citizens not taken refuge in storm cellars. Many hurried to tunnels in sandstone quarries and escaped."

MENTALITY NOT SOUND, CLAIM

Wiseman-Sielaff's testimony that it was she who produced the "Miss X" who accompanied Kenneth Ormiston, radio operator for Mrs. McPherson, to Carmel during the evangelist's disappearance.

Mrs. Wiseman-Sielaff was placed on the witness stand in the impeachment trial by the prosecuting board of managers yesterday. She testified that she arranged with Judge Hardy to produce "Miss X," the yet unidentified woman who occupied a Carmel house in 1926 while Mrs. McPherson was missing from her Angelus Temple.

The woman was placed upon the stand during the morning and was supposed to resume her testimony into the cross-examination stage in the afternoon. When finally she was called late in the afternoon the defense admitted to the court it was unprepared to take Mrs. Wiseman-Sielaff over for cross examination; that records had to be brought from Los Angeles. A defense motion that she be cross examined Monday was approved.

So, back through startling testimony the defense plans to take Mrs. Wiseman-Sielaff in an effort to prove that she is an unreliable witness and that her testimony cannot be depended on in any phase of the senate's consideration of evidence presented to prove the board of managers' contention that Judge Hardy is guilty of dissemors in office, (obstruction of justice, accepting a $2500 "love offering" check from Mrs. McPherson for "legal services" or of practicing law while in office of the state constitution.

Defense Case III

Some of the points made yesterday by Mrs. Wiseman-Sielaff that the defense is particularly interested in discrediting are that Judge Hardy arranged with the witness in 1926 to clear Mrs. McPherson's name as being Ormiston's Carmel companion by producing a woman who would admit she was with Ormiston; that Judge Hardy advised her to "get in touch with Ormiston's parents so that she might locate him and tell him of the "proposition" and that he had her report to him the progress of her hunt for "Miss X."

The coming week is expected to produce more than one day of sensations. None of the defense witnesses has been called to testify—in fact the defense is guarding carefully the identity of its witnesses. But one person, Joseph Ryan, former deputy district attorney of Los Angeles county has been mentioned as subpoenaed for the defense. His testimony is expected to show that at no time during his investigation in Carmel, was he hampered by detectives or other persons.

Mrs. McPherson is expected to be called to testify some time during the coming week. She has been in Sacramento for six days waiting to be called to the stand as a prosecution witness but the managers say they are not ready for her—in fact that they may not call her at all.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE LIBERTY

A demonstration of where and how the old-time Indians obtained coloring for their faces when on the warpath was given by Chief Yowlachie during the making of "Hawk of the Hills."

More than a dozen vivid slides were produced by Yowlachie while on location near Newhall, California. Reds and Browns were made from natural mineral pigments found almost always in rocky country. Blues, greens and purples were made out of herbs. A vivid yellow was produced by boiling some sort of a root and a black by burning a sort of shale, then powdering it.

Hayden Stevenson who is starred in "The Diamond Master" and playing every Saturday, shows his versatility in taking the role of a detective, after playing many parts as pal and coach in "The Colossians." In "The Diamond Master" he enacts the role of custodian of a famous jewel.

AT THE PINE TREE

Arthur Somers Roche's versatility as an author is demonstrated in his story "Hardboiled", on which the production which is showing now at Pine Tree theatre is based.

"Hardboiled" is a sophisticated, metropolitan story of the glitter and glory of the show world, with a scheming little Follies chaffin, who satisfies her ambition to marry for money, as the center of the action. How she falls in love with the millionaire playboy whom she has married through sheer cupidity, makes for one of the most delightful tales yet to come from the pen of the author.

AT THE PELICAN

The great film featuring Buddy Rogers, Jean Hersholt and Nancy Carroll has its last showing in Klamath tonight at the Pelican. It is a story of human beings separated by age-old barriers of tradition and belief. It is a typical American story, but it might happen anywhere that love makes strangers understand each other, forgetting prejudice and creed. Love is greater than any creed—for the essential part of all faiths is love itself.

The last and flashiest of the picture features of De Luxe entertainment week at the Pelican is "Captain Lash" starring Victor McLaglen and playing tomorrow. This film is finishing its run today at the Warfield in San Francisco.

Texas Guinan Arouses Anger of Mr. Whalen

NEW YORK, April 13. (AP)

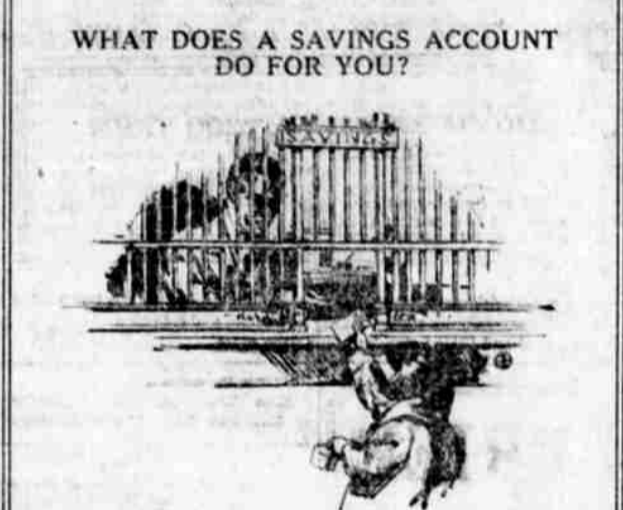

Aroused by the acquittal in Federal court of Texas Guinan, Police Commissioner Whalen in an address last night advocated a law forbidding employment of hostesses in night clubs.

He declared the night club atmosphere to be a "vicious" one and said that the demand for girls between 16 and 18 years of age for hostesses was an great as to create a serious moral situation.

Although he did not mention Miss Guinan by name, he said the publicity given the trial of a night club hostess this week "was an affront to law and order."

"This question of a night club hostess is a very serious one," he added. "It is becoming close to something else long since driven out of this community, and the young girls who resort to this case will be led on by the publicity given her 'heroism'."

"It awoke me to see the publicity for the person on trial this week was in the forefront in bringing young girls into this unwholesome atmosphere."
