

The Evening Herald

T. R. MALARKY, Editor
F. J. ENGLISH, Business Manager
Published every afternoon except Sunday by The Herald Publishing Company at 192-122 South Fifth street, Klamath Falls, Oregon.
Entered as second class matter at the postoffice at Klamath Falls, Oregon, on August 26, 1908, under act of Congress, March 3, 1879.

By Mail	Delivered by Carrier
One Year $5.00	One Year $6.50
Six Months 2.75	Six Months 3.50
Three Months 1.75	Three Months 2.50
One Month .50	One Month .85

ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE
MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATION

Member of the Associated Press
The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use or republication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and also the local news published therein. All rights of republication of special dispatches herein are also reserved.

SATURDAY, APRIL 27, 1929

The Hillside Hospital

THE Hillside hospital, located at the junction of Alameda street and Pacific terrace, is the material result of a dream nurtured by a man who has made his home in Klamath Falls for 27 years, Dr. George Merryman.

It has long been Dr. Merryman's ambition to construct, to own and to operate a hospital which, for exterior beauty, interior convenience and equipment, would have no equal in Southern Oregon. The time came when he could see his way clear to realize this ambition, and today the hospital stands, a complete project and a credit to the city of Klamath Falls and the man who built it.

The Hillside hospital includes all the equipment and conveniences which modern medical profession demands. No expense nor time was spared in erecting and outfitting a building which is well able to serve Klamath for the purpose to which it was dedicated.

The new hospital opens its doors to the public tomorrow; an "open house" will be held to which all are invited to come and inspect the building. We suggest that Klamath citizens devote a half hour or so in visiting the new Hillside hospital, to see with their own eyes what has been constructed by a Klamath man.

Close Them Up

AN APPARENT desire on the part of some to continue the old frontier days, accompanied by wide-open gambling, open bars and free and easy sale of liquor along with other associate pastimes, is reported from some parts of the country.

That day has gone forever, and all should understand it. There is a new Klamath Basin, with transportation, with industry, with a demand for law enforcement that is paramount and exacting.

It is stated that Chilquin's right-about-face movement when the officials there shut up the gaming tables, ousted the booze peddlers, and told the painted ladies to go and sin no more, has not met with favor in some quarters; that some elements in the town are being destroyed, and therefore some of the citizens want the city administration to recant and lift the lid.

Of course this cannot be done. Of course the mayor and other officials of Chilquin will not listen to such demands. Chilquin is situated on the Indian reservation. It has a double duty to perform because it influences the lives of the wards of the government. And be it known in positive language that Uncle Sam does not sanction liquor being dispensed in or near an Indian reservation.

The best thing for Chilquin, Klamath Falls and other communities in the Klamath Basin is to cease the love and admiration for the old days, and turn to face the new situation, which demands that liquor be banned, that gambling tables be junked, and that lives be lived here much the same as they are lived in other communities of the Pacific Coast.

EDITORIALS

From Over the Nation

THE YIELD OF

THE ESTATE TAX
New York World: According to Joseph S. McCoy, the government actuary, some $400,000,000 estates with a total value in excess of five billions now pass annually by death in the United States. In 1927, the last year for which data are available, the Federal government received about $41,000,000 in the form of estate taxes, and the states imposing inheritance taxes received nearly $50,000,000. The proportion taken out of all inheritances by taxation thus amounts to about 2 per cent of their reported value. This is surely no great burden, and yet the total receipts from the Federal estate tax from its inception in 1916 to the end of 1927 amounted to $872,000,000. That is a tidy sum to apply to the redemption of the national debt, and no similar amount could have been collected with as little burden to the taxpayers.

Mr. McCoy calls attention to the fact that recent prosperity has been reflected in these estates and that the yield of the Federal tax for this reason has been holding up better than normally would have been expected after the reductions made by congress in 1926. The tax is thus causing some of the accretions of wealth which the whole community has had a hand in bringing about to be employed for the common benefit.

THE FATHER OF

THE MOTOR CAR
Kansas City Star: In 1886, when a few American mechanics were tinkering with the dream of a self-propelled gasoline carriage, Carl Benz drove a three-wheeled vehicle through the streets of Munich. Its motive power was furnished by a single horizontal cylinder, water-jacketed engine. A year earlier another German, Gottlieb Daimler, had put a similar engine on a bicycle. It was not until nearly a decade after Benz's historic buggy ride that the first American motor car put in an appearance. Prior to the time of Benz and Daimler, a few steam cars had been manufactured, some as early as the latter part of the eighteenth century. But no one had succeeded in harnessing the power of internal combustion through the use of gasoline.

Benz died last week at the age of 84. He received, during his lifetime, many honors and university degrees because of his pioneering in the motor industry. He saw the industry that he started develop into one of the world's largest. Through mechanical evolution, his little one-cylinder model has become four, six and eight-cylinder machines, with a few such behemoths as Capt. Segrave's car that made the Daytona course in 231 miles an hour. The United States now has the dominant place in the manufacture of motor cars. But we must concede to Germany the priority and to Benz our homage as the man who founded an institution.

SUES FOR $124.48

Suit for the recovery of $124.48 which he alleges is due him from John E. Wallen, has been brought in circuit court by H. I. McKim. Fay Morris is attorney for the plaintiff.

QUILLEN'S QUIPS AND QUIRKS OF AMERICA

Pointed Satire Intermingled With Broad Humor Gives Conception of the Best and Worst Sides.

By Robert Quillen

Three circuses have merged. Now if only the three rings would.

If the killer should be convicted, that would be news.

The road hog is nobody's fool. He knows he is safe because nobody else is fool enough to risk a smash.

Few business practices are "unethical" except to those whose pocketbooks are nicked.

All glory departs, and it is only a question of time until we shall read in a footnote: "Batted for nuth in the ninth."

The trouble about a dominating personality is that it never seems to work when you're talking with a rough guy you want to dominate.

Who ever expected to see the day when a padlock would save the money of those on the outside?

Ten years ago it was more profitable to be hit by a big car, but now the bigger the car the bigger the instalments and there's little left for damage claims.

Explaining Einstein's theory of limited space is easy compared with explaining to a prominent citizen why his letter had to be left out of the paper.

Americanism! Being dissatisfied with your porcelain bath tub because it isn't pink or blue; forgetting that you once used a wash tub on the kitchen floor.

Be specific. When you say "colored girl," explain whether you mean hand-colored.

When they write a bill to provide for fighting material, it seems easy enough to construct sentences that don't need interpretation.

All you need do to make $25,000 a year as an author is to write one moderately successful novel and have a regular job that pays $22,000.

Rotten liquor has its good points. The victim is paralyzed and can't weep on your shoulder because his wife doesn't understand him.

Poverty prevents insanity, anyway. You never hear of a poor murderer being temporarily unbalanced.

Hunting statistics to date show that 2,837 physicians got a little winter practice at picking out shot.

More talk of an operation for Mussolini. Maybe he's just contemplating changes in the cabinet.

Winter resort beach reflection of a man aged 40: "When you see one you've seen 'em all."

Correct this sentence: "His rich old dad will cut him off without a cent," said the thornless girl, "but I'm going to marry him anyway."

THOUGHTS ON U. S. AFFAIRS

(Continued from Page One)

out—no matter what we may think.

NOW, this is more like it: A Portland daily has decided to shake off the Oregon gloom and give the good side of things for a while. In a front page story a headline says "Survey Shows Business Sound and Oregon Wealth Increasing."

The truth, and for once uttered in a smashing way that has weight.

Of late one would think the state was ready for another crusader, so poor had become the people here. You have noticed that crusaders only prosper in hard times. Cowey had his day and was popular in his march on Washington. But the young Cowey who is now attempting to organize another army is merely capitalizing the old family name. This country is not in a crusading mood at present. Nor is Oregon in such a mood.

THE mistake made in putting poor old Judge Hardy on the impeachment grill at Sacramento was shown when, after weeks of trial, he was acquitted by the state senate committee.

Poor sportsmanship is often found, even in California. If the Judge had done what was charged perhaps there was ground for impeachment but there is no evidence to show that he soiled his judicial robes, or even made koo-koo eyes while on the bench.

THERE is a lot to the Battery D Monday night at Legion hall. The boys have worked hard to give this community a military organization. It is the best in the state and has won the Oregonian trophy. Show that you, too, are interested by attending Battery D social evening Monday night at Legion hall. No admission. Just a good time and an appreciation by the people of the city.

SENATOR HEPLIN is blowing off again. He reminds one of a little steam boiler that pops off at intervals. The senator sees the Pope of Rome in his dreams nightly.

DECLAMATORY CONTEST TO BE HELD TUESDAY

The second declamatory contest to be held among the high schools of this county will be held Tuesday night at 7:30 in the auditorium.

The contest is divided into three divisions: humorous, dramatic and oratorical readings.

One high school may enter only two of the three divisions. Klamath high will be represented by Betty Zimmerman, giving a humorous reading, and by "Al" Barclay, giving an oration.

Gold medals are to be awarded the winner of each contest. An admission of 10 cents will be charged to cover the expenses. The public is cordially invited to attend.

MUSIC WEEK TO BE MARKED IN KLAMATH FALLS

National Music Week, observed throughout the United States has been announced for the week of May 5 to 11.

Feeling the need of a chairman in this city, Mrs. Don J. Zumwalt has selected Miss Lillian Darby, director of music in the grade schools.

Special music will be given in the churches on Sunday, May 5. Ministers will be requested to preach on the subject of music. Parent teachers associations and other organizations will co-operate during the week in an endeavor for better and more music.

MAN ARRESTED FOR CARRYING REVOLVER

Thodore Bertush had a pistol concealed on his person last night, a pistol, which he claimed, was to be used to kill rattlesnakes.

An officer found Bertush sitting on an unlighted motorcycle last night and arrested him on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. Unable to meet a fine of $50 this morning, Bertush was committed to jail by Police Judge Hallentine.

CONGRATULATIONS

Celotex was specified and used on the Hillside Hospital throughout, Because Buildings Are Made Stronger,

Cooler in Summer,
Warmer in Winter,
Quieter, Less Costly to Heat.

By CELOTEX

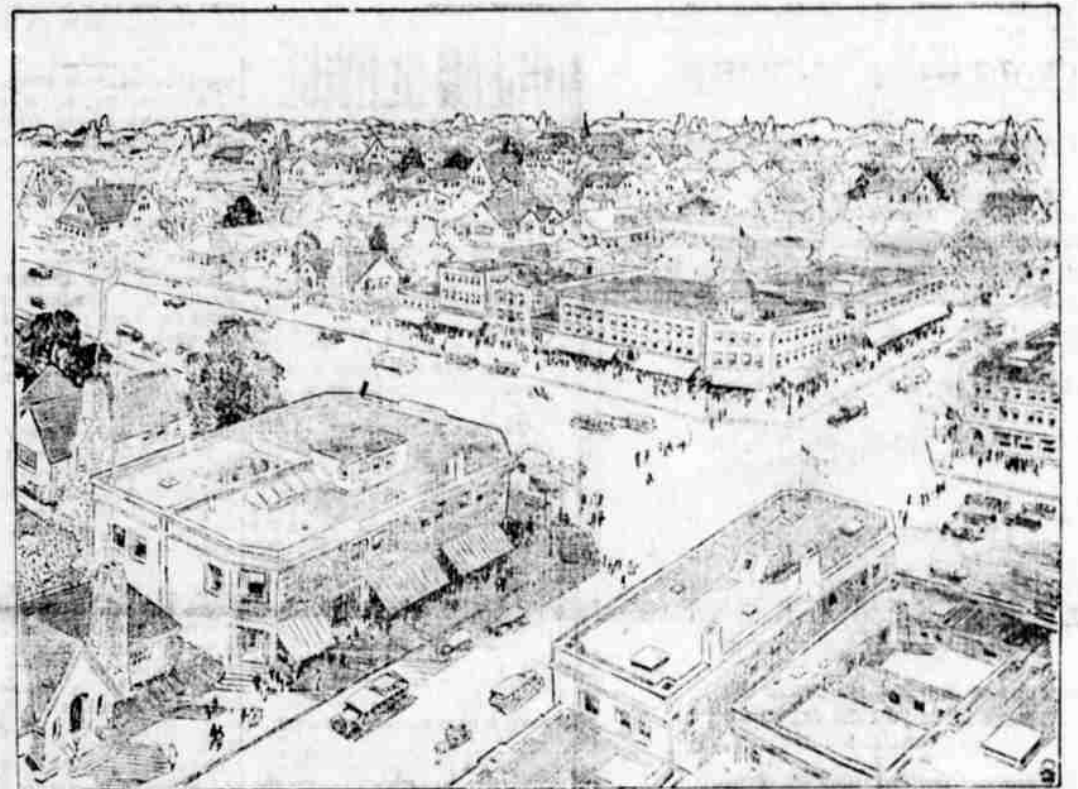

The 5-Point Material

A. F. GRAHAM

Building Material

121 S. Ninth St.

Phone 526

... yesterday ACREAGE ...
... today A COMMUNITY!

ANNOUNCEMENT

After several months of active construction work, during which time streets have been graded, a number of houses built, a complete pressure water system installed, and electric power and phone service made available, we are pleased to announce that the new

CITY OF WEST KLAMATH IS NOW TO BE PLACED ON THE MARKET

Klamath County's newest town-site is located adjacent to and will serve the immense Weyerhaeuser mill, now under construction, and is reached by turning south from the Ashland-Klamath Falls highway at the Junction Service Station about four miles from Klamath Falls.

West Klamath is now served by the Great Northern railway, and water and electric power is furnished by the California Oregon Power Co.

Newly completed houses and residential lots are now available, with all city conveniences, at very reasonable prices and terms, and several excellent business opportunities are open.

The public is invited to drive out and inspect West Klamath, and the Weyerhaeuser Mill site, Klamath County's newest city and its largest lumber manufacturing center.

Information may be secured from the following agencies.

WEST KLAMATH DEVELOPMENT CO.,

Office at West Klamath

C. H. KNOWLES, General Manager

Phone 449W-4

Holliday Land Co., 324 S. 7th St., Phone 501

Slater Investment Co., 115 S. 7th St., Phone 688

The Last Word In Circuses

Circus

Klamath Falls

MONDAY
May 13