Thoughts We've Been Thinking

Public Taste in Moving Pictures Improves; How Times Change—Thirty Years Ago It Would Be Impolite to Offer Your Guest "Squirrel" Whiskey.

—By BRUCE DENNIS—

HERE is something for the boy scouts to remember and it was said by Stanley Baldwin: "One of the greatest charms of my sex is that the best of us remain boys in the world."

ONE prominent English Statesman made the following very apt truth:

"The great misfortune to mankind is that only politicians out of office know how to solve great problems."

LET those who have been worrying lest the motion picture destroy the youth and the general society of today listen to the facts. The magazine Motion Picture, which is the organ of the motion picture producers of America, publishes a list of the 104 pictures that made the most money for their producers last year. Several of them are in this list for the second year, and one each for the third and fourth year.

It is decidedly worth knowing that there are not in that list of over one hundred, a dozen pictures that in any way at all appeal to morbid tastes. The chief ones of that type are where they ought to be—out of that list and off in the list of plays that did not make the most money for their producers and most of all the clean, wholesome and really artistic pictures are in this list of the pictures that made the most money for their producers.

ARE most of the things that worry us mere trifles?

One very able man of national importance once said:

"I leave most of my mail lay on my desk thirty days, unanswered. After that time I generally find little of it needs to be answered. This habit is not without its drawbacks but there is something in it. Most of the things that worry us are really trifles."

THE old fashioned boy in the Klamath Basin is the one who thinks that only two people should ride in a roadster.

RECENTLY in a middle west city there was a lawsuit and the evidence ran something like this:

"Do you not think that serving drinks at parties is bad practice?" asked the attorney for James McCord, in his divorce trial, of a young lady who was said to have been a close friend of Mrs. McCord and a frequent attendant at "parties" at the McCord home and other places in which the McCords participated.

"Well," was the answer, "people these days don't think that they are entertained unless there are drinks."

Senate Authorizes Investigation of Relationships Today

MENTION SITUATION ON PACIFIC COAST

Complaints About West Coast Status of Telephone Companies Arouse Senate Committee to Action; Investigation Will Be Widespread.

WASHINGTON, June 8, (AP)—Investigation by the senate interstate commerce commission of relationships between telephone, telegraph, cable and radio communications was authorized in a resolution adopted today by the senate.

The resolution, which was sponsored by Chairman Coudens, directed the committee to investigate the whole communications field, including transmission of power, and to inquire into the ownership and control of corporations, as well as their trade practices, contracts and stock ownership, engaged in the communications business.

The committee has been holding hearings on the Coudens bill to create a new federal communications commission to regulate all forms of communications. Adoption of the resolution gives it required authority to go into all phases of the situation and summon additional witnesses.

Complaints about the telephone situation on the Pacific coast were recently drawn to the attention of the committee by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, who suggested appointment of a subcommittee to go there for an investigation. No action has been taken, however.

FIND NO CLUE OF W. TALLMAN

LOS ANGELES, June 8, (AP)—William L. Tallman, 34 year old radio man, last night was recommended for apprehension and interrogation in the coroner's jury's verdict, following inquest into the death of pretty Mrs. Virginia Patty, 25, slain wife of a Portland business man, the verdict declared:

"We find the deceased came to her death the deceased being struck on the head with a brick in the hands of a person unknown to us, but we recommend officers apprehend and interrogate William L. Tallman in the case."

Tallman, who was placed under arrest aboard the steamer Admiral Benson, on route to San Francisco, was missing from his stateroom when San Francisco officers boarded the vessel Wednesday night at San Francisco to take him to jail. Since then no clue has been found indicating the wireless operator's present whereabouts.

It was announced that the funeral of Mrs. Patty will take place this afternoon from an undertaking parlor. No information was given out as to the place of interment.

A last minute change in the train schedule of the Shriners special train from Charlotte, N. C., will bring the visiting lodge delegation to Klamath Falls at 5:30 p. m. today instead of 7:30 p. m., it was announced today.

The Shriners from Ocala temple plan to stop over in Klamath Falls one hour. They will be met at the station by Klamath citizens and driven throughout the city and environs.

SESSION HELD GREAT SUCCESS

The annual convention of the Oregon Cattle and Horse Raisers association was pronounced the most successful meeting of Oregon cattlemen held in the state during the past ten years by C. A. Henderson, county agent, who with Mrs. Henderson returned from the session held at Baker yesterday.

Mr. Henderson represented the Southern Oregon Livestockmen's association.

"The annual meeting will be held in Klamath Falls next year," Mr. Henderson said, "and, if it is as large as this year's session, will mean that 400 livestockmen will visit Klamath. The general feeling of livestockmen seemed to be one of optimism. They are securing better prices and the outlook is good."

"National authorities on livestock spoke at the meeting and questions of importance to the industry were brought up. One matter was the tariff. Members of the association were anxious to secure any tariff on meat products possible. They seemed to be satisfied with the tariff increase to date."

"Another very interesting topic was cattle rustling. Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian, led the discussion of this question and brought up many interesting points."

DR. O. WILLING ONE UP TODAY

PORTLAND, June 8, (AP)—Don Moe, defending champion, and Dr. O. P. Willing, challenger, staged one of the most terrific golf battles ever seen in Portland during the first 18 holes of the 36-hole Oregon State golf championship match here today.

At the end of the morning play Willing stood one up on his young competitor. The medal score was Dr. Willing, 72, and Moe, 73.

Dr. Willing started out by making three birdies in the first four holes on the Alderwood course. There was magic in his putter and his iron were splitting the pin.

But even with this remarkable golf, Willing was only one up at the end of the first four.

On the seventh Willing's drive went out of bounds, as did a brassie shot. The seventh ended with Moe conceding the doctor a 12-foot putt for a six, taking a five himself to square the match.

Here are the principals in a love triangle whose demise came with the finding of the woman's body, beaten to death with a brick and hanging in a clothes closet, in a Los Angeles apartment house. Above Mrs. Virginia Patty. Left, William L. Tallman, in whose apartment the body was found and who disappeared from a steamer shortly before it docked in San Francisco, where police were waiting to arrest him. Right, Frank Patty, the husband, a Portland (Ore.) broker.

Bones from human bodies, thought to have been buried for at least a quarter of a century, have been unearthed at the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. James Grimes on Williamson river.

Skulls and other portions of the bodies showed no indications of violence, being neatly piled on top of other bones and teeth. Discovery was made when water from the river uncovered part of the earth of the two-foot-deep grave.

Examination of the skulls show four to be those of adults, a fifth one is that of a small child.
