TODAY IN KLAMATH'S THEATRES

AT THE PELICAN

DeMille's data, gathered by special investigators in preparation for the filming of the screen production, "The Godless Girl," discloses frightful conditions in certain state institutions, in which barbarous punishments are inflicted. Although there are many constructive reformatories, some have been found to degrade rather than reform. "The Godless Girl," written by Jeanie Macpherson, now at the Pelican theatre, exposes the evils of such institutions for the purpose of rousing public opinion in the matter. Marie Prevost, Lina Basquette, George Duryea, Eddie Quillan and Noah Beery play the leading roles.

AT THE PINE TREE

Mary Pickford has achieved a transformation. She has completely changed her personality and her appearance. She has taken a figure which had become an American tradition, the figure of a little girl with long, golden curls, and transformed it into the image of a smartly poised young woman, the very epitome of today's charming womanhood. She has stepped forth as "Coquette" in a Paris frock and the chic of smartly-bobbed hair, in the picture now at the Pine Tree.

With the same fine enterprise, she selected the story of the little southern coquette who recklessly played with fire, as the first screen expression of her new self. While other stars and producers were hesitating over the advent of the new "talkies," Miss Pickford decided to make a talking picture that would be a real "talkie." "Coquette" is not a picture with mere synchronized sound. It is a production adapted especially for the talking films, with a complete sound recording from opening scene to final fadeout.

It will interest you to know that Miss Pickford passed the highest voice test of any screen star in Hollywood.

AT THE ORPHEUS

Jackie Coogan comes to the Orpheus today and tomorrow in a very entertaining story with plenty of comedy and some seriousness. He is a page boy on one of the big ocean liners and his hero is his captain—his ambition to one day command one of the big ships. Their friendship is one of the dominant notes of the picture—in the big shipwreck scene, when the captain stands alone on the deck the "kid" comes back to die with him. Fortunately they are picked up when the ship goes down.

AT THE LIBERTY

"Fast Fiddin'", the eighth and last of the popular Buddy Roosevelt series of rough riding romances, throbbing with thrills all of which have found much favor with our patrons, is here today at the Liberty, and we understand that it is the best yet, which is saying a lot, for this "ridin'" boy has already made a high record for fast-moving, stunt screen stories wherever he has been shown.

In "Fast Fiddin'" Budd jumps off a steep hillside on the top of a fast moving train, as it emerges from a tunnel, to give battle to an escaping cattle thief, a spine-tickling stunt that will pull the audience up on its toes.

AT THE VOX

"The Lone Wolf's Daughter," the Columbia "talkie" which opens at the Vox theatre today, is the greatest of the Lone Wolf stories by Louis Joseph Vance. Once more Bert Lytell, who created the role in pictures, comes to the screen as the famous crackman. This time he is presented in entirely new surroundings and in an entirely different medium than ever before.

Clever prologues in dialogue, between the "Lone Wolf" and the chief inspector of police, introduces the action of the picture proper. At the very outset, the "Lone Wolf" shows his remarkable craftiness by outwitting the inspector, who has set a trap for him. At the moment when we hear Bert Lytell's voice, we almost forget the action of the picture—he reveals one of the greatest voices on the screen today—clear, distinctive and beautifully cultivated.

How the cooking tests were conducted

Slowly, carefully tasting as they went

WOMEN of the United States will be interested in knowing how the now famous cooking tests were recently conducted in New York by four famous cooking experts. Vegetable foods were chosen and cooked in many ways, because vegetables are so important to the balanced diet. The experts were experienced in discriminating shades of flavor. Not more than three vegetables were cooked and tested at one time in order that the sense of taste should not be blunted. This explains why the tests had to be carried over such a long period of time.

In every case, vegetables cooked in little water with the addition of a dash of sugar won unanimously. This, at first, might strike some as surprising, but it must be remembered that it is not the purpose of the small amount of sugar to make the vegetables taste sweet. Sugar is used here as a seasoning, and it is perhaps the greatest seasoning of all. It develops the natural, delicate flavors of the vegetables just as it does of fruits, cereals, meats, gravies and soups. Encourage variety and you encourage health for every member of your family. Serve at least two cooked vegetables a day in addition to a raw vegetable salad. Serve at least two fruits a day. Serve milk desserts. Then make the balanced diet so attractive that everyone will welcome it. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.
