WHY NOT FRAT PIN?
LONDON.—Baronets of Great Britain, with the exception of Scotland, are all permitted by an order of the king to wear a class little badge consisting of a shield of the Arms of Ulster, surmounted by an Imperial Crown, and enclosed by an oval border embossed with a gilt scroll-work. The Scot baronets have had badges for 300 years.

INVITES LOCAL BUSINESS MEN TO BOYS' CAMP

Invitation to the business men of the city to visit at the Boy Scout camp at Lake O' The Woods on Sunday was extended through Mrs. O. Hoover, wife of O. Hoover, scout executive today.

Mrs. Hoover motored in from camp to get the mail and attend business matters.

"Camp has been established and the boys are thoroughly enjoying the outing," Mrs. Hoover said.

Group two will leave for camp on Sunday morning.

Spain Hails American Matador

It was the first time that cheers for an American ever had filled the historic old bull ring at Seville. In what the crowd considered a sportsmanlike manner, Sidney Franklin, the only American matador, had vanquished his bull in his successful Spanish debut, and here you see him leaving the ring. Born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and educated at Columbia University, Franklin studied bull fighting in Mexico and now says that he intends to try to introduce it, in modified form, in the United States.

STAGE HIT ON TALKING SCREEN

As an actor, Charles Ruggles is still a little jealous of talking moving pictures although he has just successfully completed an important part in Paramount's latest all-talking production, "Gentlemen of the Press." Ruggles deprecates the fact that the actor has so little freedom to experiment with his part in moving pictures.

AT THE PINE TREE

If you don't want her, I want her." That was what Monte Bell, film executive, told his company when he directed Joanne Egels in a motion picture some time ago. His advice was not heeded and, when Bell was appointed eastern production manager for Paramount on the occasion of the company reopening its studios in the east, imagine his feeling when Miss Egels was to be the first star to make a feature picture under his supervision!

"The Letter" is Paramount's picture of the W. Somerset Maugham stage success of last season and, besides Miss Egels, it has a cast of stage players including O. P. Heggie, Reginald Owen, Herbert Marshall and others. Jean de Limur directed "The Letter" will be shown at the Pine Tree theatre as an all-talking picture.

AT THE LIBERTY

For the first time since his debut on the silver-sheet, Al Wilson, the screen's greatest trick and stunt aviator, has opportunity to display to the utmost his ability and nerve as an air acrobat in "Sky High Saunders," a Universal Western aerial melodrama now showing here at the Liberty theatre.

At literally "flew" to the top as an aviator. His early education was directed toward a career in the business world, but after a few hectic months in the office he discovered he was on the wrong tangent and, being mechanically inclined, acquired an apprenticeship in a machine shop. His skill with tools and efficiency around motors soon landed him a position with an aviation school where he became possessed with an innate desire to become an aviator.

AT THE ORPHEUS

With all its thrills and tears, hilarity and heartaches, the pleasure-seeking young generation will take possession of the screen of the Orpheus theatre today when "The Jazz Age," featuring Marceline Day, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Henry B. Walthall, Myrtle Stedman and Gertrude Messinger, opens for an engagement of two days. "The Jazz Age" follows the maddening pace of flaming youth in a small town, with young Fairbanks, Marceline Day and Gertrude Messinger representing the principals among the excite-

BREAD FROM BEANS
LONDON.—It has been reported here that a new British industry will shortly spring up which will manufacture flour, adaptable to bread making, from soy beans. The soy bean has been known as far back as 2838, B. C., and only recently it has been used as cattle fodder. A Viennese scientist, however, is said to have prepared a bread flour from it which does not go rancid.

Funny man! He reads nothing but rot he would be better off without and then feels superior to the illiterate.
