D. Lloyd Stewart. Mrs. Vanderbeck is introducing into the communities where she has visited in the west this summer, an eight column set called "Book Trails," which has the endorsement of art directors, writers and librarians from all sections of the United States.

Exhibits of the original water color and oil paintings which are to be found in these books have been held in several places during the past year. The exhibit which has undoubtedly become most widely advertised as held at the National Parent-Teachers association convention at Washington, D. C., this past spring.

Many of the pictures hung for a month at the Columbus, Ohio, gallery of fine arts where Mrs. Vanderbeck first saw them. A few of the salient points about "Book Trails" will be of interest to mothers.

The set contains a quantity of four color pictures, fine lithographed work, which gives children an opportunity to appreciate the best, by becoming more intimately acquainted with it daily.

Art and stories are closely related, the picture being typical of the country dealt with in the story. The literature has been very carefully selected and edited. Only the best of the modern in poetry and prose for children is included in the eight columns which take the child from early years into adulthood.

Well known writers are associate editors to the editor-in-chief, Miss Renee B. Stern; herself a writer and a life member of American Library association. Mrs. Stern is an intimate friend of the late Dr. H. D. Lloyd Stewart's family.

Eat vegetables for beauty

What we eat has to do with how we look

EAT vegetables for a healthy—hence clear and beautiful—skin, is the way a recent address by a professor of medicine might be summed up. Specifically he mentioned cabbage, carrot and spinach. It may be news to many women that the vegetable garden or market is first aid to the beauty parlor. There is nothing new about this, however, scientific and medical authorities. Good skin, as well as good health generally, is largely a matter of what we eat. In a very real sense, the children, women and men of the United States are as good as their diet.

Every woman interested in feeding her family will be interested in the results of a series of experiments recently conducted by a group of nationally known women cooking experts. They searched for a way to make vegetable foods so tasty that practically everybody will enjoy them. Their recommendations are: (1) Use very little water in cooking the vegetables. (2) Add a dash of sugar to the vegetables while they are cooking. Bear in mind that this dash of sugar does not make the vegetables taste sweet. Sugar is nature's supreme seasoning. In this case it brings out the delicate vegetable flavors, and it also improves the vegetable freshness and color. In addition to milk, cereals, fruits and meat, eat at least one raw and one cooked vegetable a day. Remember cookies, candies, stewed fruits, berries or ice cream for dessert. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.
