An Orange Before and After Will Cure Rheumatism

Zeke Says Citrus Remedy is Worth Trying as It is an Offset to the Acid in the Blood. Scribe Delves Into Scientific Treatise as Divertissement From Every Day Grind.

BY ZEKE SQUEE

SHOULD there be some poor devil within earshot of the writer's voice who goes giggling around through the house with a nice case of that pleasant, joyous, lovely, fun-giving, happiness-making, effervescent, iridescent, doddard malady known as the rheumatism, let him prick up his Adam's apple in hope. There may be relief in sight!

HERETOFORE, a rheumatism sufferer, by par-boiling himself all day in a vat of hot water, has been known to jump into bed and get a few winks of troubled sleep. But most of the time he has to keep one wife, four sons, five daughters, the nurse, the hired man and three of his closest neighbors busy, blistering him constantly with hot-water bottles in order to keep the patient from doing as much yowling as he did last night.

RHEUMATISM is the most freakish affliction that ever stabbed one in the muscles or joints with a sharp stave. It attacks parts of the body where the sinews and nerves are perfectly healthy. And yet an invisible agent affects the tissues in such a manner that some guy had to invent the word "ouch" to describe the feeling.

WHAT causes the suffering? A couple of prominent needle-and-thread men living over on Woodpecker creek said they didn't know. And that probably settles it.

MEDICAL students educated in the new school houses of learning maintain that an acid in the blood does the mischief. If this is true, then the acid must act on the nerves just the opposite of an anesthetic.

CHLOROFORM lulls the nerves into peaceful slumber so that a surgeon can whack off your leg while the victim is enjoying a peaceful, pleasant afternoon dose.

RHEUMATISM acts quite contrarywise, disturbing the nerves in a manner to make one feel as though he were having a leg cut off without the doctor doing any actual bucking with his handsaw.

IS THERE a rheumatism enthusiast who would fain escape from his suffering? Let him live on nothing but oranges for the next 10 days and his rheumatism will be gone. And so will the oranges!

The claim is made that the orange acid drives the rheumatism from the blood and effects a complete cure of the worst cases. It is a cheap treatment and well worth trying.

Those starting out on the orange diet must stick to it. If you crave a stack of hotcakes, eat an orange. Should you hanker for a green cucumber, eat the second orange.

In case you just got to have a helping of birds-nest pudding, tackle the third orange, and if the family is enjoying some strawberry shortcake for dinner, open a new box of oranges.

After two weeks the patient should be caught up into that happy, seventh-heaven of human existence where he can sag down into a rocking chair and read his newspaper without the least sign of a pain or a tingle from one end of his body to the other.

Yours truly,
ZEKE.

WOMAN CHARGES ASSAULT

PORTLAND, Aug. 17. (AP)—Fannie Pitt, Klamath Indian woman, today filed two suits in federal district court against Dice Crain, resident of the Klamath reservation, in which she charged conversion of cattle and assault and battery.

The plaintiff alleges that Crain and others removed the cattle, valued at $750, from her property by force and that when she resisted conversion the defendant attempted to shoot her.

The Graf Zeppelin stowaway celebrated his 18 birthday shortly after his arrival in this country. Maybe he's old enough to know better now.

LIQUOR RUNNER HANGED TODAY

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Aug. 17. (AP)—James Horace Alderman, 50-year-old rum runner, was hanged early today in a seaplane hangar at the coast guard base here for the slaying of two coast guardsmen in a gunbattle on the high seas two years ago.

Alderman walked calmly to the scaffold with a prayer on his lips, showing no sign of faltering. With only execution officials, a spiritual adviser and the necessary witnesses present, the trap was sprung at 6:03 just as the first rays of sun rose out of the Atlantic which borders the east side of the coast guard base.

A few minutes later the body was taken down, and at 6:26 a slowly moving hearse started with it directly to Miami where relatives have arranged the funeral.

Alderman was convicted in January 1928 of slaying Sidney Sanderlin and Victor Lamby, the guardsmen, as he attempted to run liquor into a Florida port. During the battle Robert K. Webster, secret service agent, also was killed, but the rum runner never was tried for his death.

HIS EDUCATION

was assured when his father made his Will and named this institution as Executor and Trustee. He is going to college. You have not done as much for your children, unless you have made your Will and named an able and experienced Executor and Trustee. Talk it over with our Trust Officer.

The duties that fall to the Trustee under a Will are many and varied. Some of them are hardly within the range of what are commonly specified. The Trustee is rather more than a manager or a fiscal agent. He is the friend of the family and often the best guide and counselor—unbiased but sympathetic, disinterested but sincere.

In your Will you are keenly interested to make provision not only for the financial welfare of your family but you are very likely to make suggestions as to their conduct in the future. The Trustee who takes account only of his financial duties would hardly meet the entire requirements of the case. We think our job is to follow not only the letter of your testament but its spirit as well. Our Trust Officer is chosen because he is qualified for all the work that may fall to him. Talk it over with him NOW. It involves no obligation whatever on your part.
