AT THE THEATRES

AT THE PINE TREE

Scene From "The Desert Song"—A Warner Bros. Production

One of the most affecting scenes in "The Desert Song," at the Pine Tree theatre now, is the leaving rift between the mysterious Red Shadow and his band of Riff followers, by whom he has been condemned to banishment into the desert, with neither food nor water, and no arms except his own broken sword. There is a great bond of affection between the leader and his men, but he has refused to meet the French General Birabeau in a Riff combat—knowing him to be his father—and the law of the tribe is inexorable. John Boles and Carlotta King are seen in the Red Shadow and Margot, respectively, and other important members of the all-star cast are Louise Fazenda, Myrna Loy, John Miljan, Johnny Arthur, Marie Wells, Jack Pratt, Edward Martinell, Robert E. Guzman, and Otto Hoffman. The production is a well planned and directed work of Roy Del Ruth, and the screen adaptation of the operetta was made by Harvey H. Gates.

In "Dangerous Curves" Miss Bow is in love with Richard Arl—a tight-rope performer. She decides to learn tight-rope walking herself (a bare-foot performance), so that she can get a place on the circus program near to her beloved. She finally learns the wire-balancing art, but finds that Arl spurns her for Kay Francis, female success in the piece.

In spite of his repeated irresponsiveness, Clara continues to demonstrate her love for Arl and finally manages, by a desperate move, to save him from disgrace, bringing him to a realization of love for her.

AT THE LIBERTY A combination of actor and author that should attract the attention of the most fastidious picture followers and provide a distinct treat as an entertainment is at the Liberty theatre today, with Tom Mix, the William Fox star and Zane Grey, the noted American fiction writer.

The screen offering is "The Lone Star Ranger" with Mix in the title role. The story is an adaptation of Grey's famous book of that name.

With Mix, Lambert Hillier, the director, has accomplished new heights in the field of romance. He has assembled a talented cast. Miss Billie Dove plays the feminine lead. Others are L. C. Shumway, Stanton Heck, Ed Pell, Frank Clark, William Conklin, Minna Redman, Tom Lingham and Francis Carpenter.

AT THE ORPHEUS Another adaptation of a Jack London story, "The Devil's Skipper," opened here for a two-day run at the Orpheus theatre yesterday and brings to the screen one of the most gripping and vital sea dramas that has been seen in this city for some time. The story tells in broad, virile, dramatic strokes of the life of a woman who became the master of a slave ship just prior to the Civil war. From a gently nurtured and cultured belle of the city of New Orleans, she is shanghaied through the machinations of her husband aboard a hell-ship, with her baby left to the flames. Saved from a fate worse than death by a gallant sailor, she finally becomes the master of a slave trader and becomes known as the "Devil's Skipper." For years she plans revenge on the husband who so foully abandoned her. The announcement of this plan is one of the most dramatic ever portrayed on the screen.
