Irregularities in Spine Cause Adenoids, is Chiropractic Claim

The word "adenoids" has been so commonly used that the average person feels that they know exactly what is meant by it. As soon as one hears the expression they immediately associate it with a small school boy or school girl backward in their studies, and with more or less of an impaired intellect. This is largely because of the campaign of education which has been carried forward unceasingly to impress the public with the danger of this condition.

What Do Adenoids Produce?

There is no question but that adenoid growths occurring in the nose or in the throat very often give rise to a train of symptoms which are serious enough without adding to them a supposed deficient mentality. As a growth in the nasal passages, they give rise to a mechanical obstruction to the air which should pass, by this channel, into and out from the lungs. Because of this obstruction, the child is often forced to breathe through the mouth, and this passage is supposed in some mysterious way to affect the mind.

It has been said repeatedly that adenoids are productive of catarrh. Insofar as the adenoid is usually congested, it gives off an exudate slightly in excess of that which would otherwise be produced. However, it is not reasonable to assume that an excessive growth in the nose or in the pharynx produces a congestion and a catarrhal condition in mucous membrane removed from direct contact with them. Indeed, it is not reasonable to assume that even these mucous membranes which are in contact with the adenoids are congested, because of that contact.

Cases without number have had the adenoids removed, and the mentality of the child has changed not one particle, all of which leads us to the conclusion that adenoids are not as serious a condition as we have been led to believe.

As a mechanical obstruction it is harmful, and every effort should be made to effect its removal, but not to subject a child to surgery, expecting results that cannot be obtained, and then to find that within a few months the growth has returned as large or larger than ever.

What Causes Adenoids?

The chiropractor can give you a logical reason why the adenoid has grown. Logically, if the cause of the adenoid can be removed, and is removed, not only will the adenoid disappear, but it will not recur.

The cause of an adenoid growing either in the nasal passage or in the throat can be reasonably explained chiropractically.

The Root of the Trouble.

There is only one place, namely the point at which the nerve is given off from the spinal cord and passes between the bony segments of the spinal column. If these bony segments are not in their normal position, they produce a pressure upon the nerve fibres; consequently the carrying capacity of these nerve fibres is impaired, and as a result of that, some abnormal condition manifests itself in the tissues supplied. Whether this abnormality is in the form of catarrh, or whether it is in the form of adenoids, depends entirely on what class of fibres is under pressure. If the secretory fibres are involved, catarrh exists; while if expansion fibres are affected, adenoids are the result.

What To Do.

The chiropractor is especially trained to locate these abnormalities of the body segments; and to restore them to the normal condition. When this is done, the catarrh or adenoids must disappear, because the cause of their production has been removed.

They Speak Your Language

THERE was a time when you had to take an interpreter into the store with you when you went shopping, a few hundred miles from home. Even familiar products were sold in strange forms, and under queer names.

It was one of the disadvantages of travel that had to be taken along with the pleasures.

Nowadays the millions of Americans who go visiting their neighbors North, South, East and West, encounter no such difficulty. The picturesque beauty, the quaint customs that make other sections of the country different and delightful have all their old appeal. You can still hear mellow mission bells in California. You can eat terrapin in Baltimore, or sleep in a Vermont farm-house under an Ethan Allen quilt. But in any of these localities you can buy your favorite toilet soap, or breakfast cereal, or automobile tires as readily as in your own town.

The trade-marks and the packages speak your language. National advertising has made good brands of merchandise uniformly known from coast to coast.

If you read the advertisement and use advertised goods, you are at home in any store in America
