English Lecturer Says Americans Pay For Too Much English Propaganda.

The Old Time Barber Shop Has Passed Out. Too Much Ease and Luxury in This World.

Telephone Company Conservative in Estimating Population. Governor Message on Building Program Is Word of Cheer.

By BRUCE DENNIS

HOW easily communities and societies are fooled in selecting their lecturers is demonstrated by a criticism by an English lecturer, who insists that Americans should not listen to so much English in the way of lectures. According to this critic, "often Americans pay a lecturer to come over and spread his own national propaganda."

"The English," says this man of London, "are not so inclined to listen to lecturers from other countries. They did go to see Amie McPherson when she was in England, but it was purely from curiosity and the crowds did not go back. She made no conquests and took no money out of the country."

We would like to say to this Englishman that he is entirely wrong, because we cannot imagine Mrs. McPherson holding a series of lectures in London without taking fat and juicy collections every night during that period.

HERE is an echo from the past from one who is probably 60 years old: "The old time barber shop has passed out. In olden times it was a man's club. The thumbed over pictures on the table had strong, manly pictures of prize fighters and such. There was enough loud talk and tobacco smoke to make any man feel comfortable.

Now the men sit silent and sullen while mother and the girls get their hair cut. The old time forum is no more. The atmosphere is that of a bridge tea instead of a barber shop."

THERE is such a thing as producing too much ease and luxury in this world. We submit this one thought to the many agencies, including ourselves, who insisted on holding Christmas trees and parties for the children, until the child was thoroughly covered with them and probably failed to appreciate what it was all about.

IT looks very much like Dan Miller, who is posing in Memphis as a citizen from Klamath Falls, is giving his wrong address. He may be seeking romance, but we fail to see why he should go to Memphis, down on the Mississippi, when he could find all the romance he wants on Link River, if he had been a resident of this city. People who have lived here a long time failed to locate or place Dan Miller.

PRESIDENT WRITES OF VIEWPOINT

Office Opportunity For Speeding Orderly March of People.

CALLS POLITICIANS "MUD PIE MIXERS"

Writing Friend in Columbus, Ohio, Mr. Hoover Speaks Plainly About Conditions in Politics. Commends the Great Mass of People Who Want and Work for Clean Government.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 13. (AP) — Herbert Hoover finds in the presidency an "opportunity for speeding the orderly march of a great people" and "in the inspection of that moving host" such compensation as is vouchsafed to few.

This was set forth by the chief executive in a letter to Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State University, in which Mr. Hoover told something of the pleasant and unpleasant features of being president and spoke in picturesque language of those who for partisan reasons are working for his downfall.

Their "daily toil is mixing mud pies," he said of those who seek to embarrass the president by giving publication to untruths and again he referred to them as "haberdashers" generously providing him with "mental hair shirts."

Death Cuts Short Career of Samuel Horowitz, Mason

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13. (A.P.)—Samuel Horowitz will be buried today—will be lowered to his final resting place while Brother Masons chant the burial service of the ritual the 35-year-old attorney loved so well.

One of life's greatest ambitions for Horowitz was to be Master of his Masonic lodge, Ionic No. 520. When he died yesterday, it had been gratified, although his term of office was only a few hours.

Horowitz was elected early in December, and his installation was scheduled for next week. When he became ill a few days ago, and physicians despaired of his recovery, fellow Masons arranged an earlier ceremony.

Last Saturday, propped up in bed, Horowitz became master of his lodge, with the full solemn ritual. Wrapped in the regalia of his rank, he stood for one brief moment while his brothers paid him homage. Sunday he died.

President Hoover Submits Proposals For Remediating Of Enforcement Structure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13. (AP) — President Hoover, in transmitting the first preliminary report of the law enforcement commission to congress today, submitted this message: "In my previous messages I have requested the attention of the congress to the urgent situation which has grown up in the matter of enforcement of federal criminal laws."

Dry Law Doubles Arrests After exhaustive examination of the subject, the commission on law observance and enforcement, and the officials of the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department unite in the conclusion that increasing enactment of federal criminal laws over the past twenty years, as to which violation of the prohibition laws comprises rather more than one-half of the total arrests, has finally culminated in a burden upon the federal courts of a character for which they are ill-designed, and in many cases entirely beyond their capacity.

The result is to delay civil causes, and of even more importance, the defeat of both justice and law enforcement. Moreover, experience shows division of authority, responsibility, and lack of fundamental organization in federal enforcement agencies and oftentimes results in ineffective action.

Snowstorm in Arizona Claims Two Men By Freezing.

WASHINGTON HAS 2 STORM CASUALTIES

Whole West Again Swept by Snow Storm of Blizzard Like Proportions. California Has Rain, Hail and Snow. Motorists Forced to Abandon Cars and Seek Shelter in Farm Houses.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13. (AP)—Winter claimed six lives today in the far west where bitter cold and heavy snows marooned hundreds of motorists, disrupted highway travel and communications and caused many accidents in California, Washington and Arizona.

Adding to the discomfort of an unusually severe cold wave, a general snowstorm, which reached blizzard-like proportions in some localities, descended on the far western states yesterday. In many instances, it exacted its toll in freakish ways.

Two Men Freeze In Arizona. Timothy Kirkpatrick, 35, stage company manager of Jerome, and David King, 22, truck driver, were found frozen to death three miles from their stalled automobile near the summit of Mingo mountain on the Jerome-Prescott highway. Several other persons were reported missing as motor travel out of Prescott was paralyzed by one of the worst storms in the history of that section.

Washington counted two fatalities. In Seattle, Ray Whitteman, 15, was killed and a number of companions injured, four seriously. (Continued on Page Eight)

Faithful Horse Saves Injured Master's Life

Faithful animals have often saved the lives of their beloved masters, and another instance of the intelligence of the horse has been added to the annals of history. On Saturday afternoon, Tom Shaw, in the employ of D. E. Alexander, was feeding cattle on the McCornack ranch, which has been leased by Alexander. Shaw was throwing the hay from a wagon, when he lost his balance and fell to the ground. There was no one to call, as Shaw lived alone. Finding that his legs were paralyzed, and knowing that he would soon freeze if he lay in the snow, Shaw managed to roll to a small sled nearby. Then he whistled and called to his pet horse, which came immediately to his master's aid. Shaw was able to move his arms, and managed to throw a rope around the horse's neck. Then rolling painfully to the sled, and holding the rope on the horse, he started toward the McCornack ranch house.
