Know Your Oregon

TO make Oregon as well known to the world as California is the ambition of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce and a program has been launched to bring this hope to full realization. The initial step in the program has been outlined by W. G. Ide, manager of the organization, and comprises a series of Oregon poster stamps. The stamps are to be sold to the various commercial bodies and business houses of the state to raise an advertising fund with which to carry on the campaign of educating the rest of the country about the advantages of living in Oregon.

The first series of stamps has been issued. The sheet contains 30 stamps, each with a pointed statement about Oregon industries and institutions. Oregon citizens may know in a general way what their state has to offer the industrialist and housekeeper but it will not be amiss to remind them of some of the leading industries.

Each stamp contains a brief statement as follows: Eat Oregon apples—the nation's finest and most delicious. Oregon: First in Pacific Northwest in prunes. First in U. S. in hops. Where wheat often yields 60 bushels to the acre. Where you can make greater profits in dairying. Where poultry pays and hens lay 300 eggs a year. Sheep lead the world in wool production. Where truck farming is an exceptionally profitable business. Ask for Oregon cherries and you'll get the finest. Oregon grows 80% of the nation's Bosc pears—finest—highest priced grown. First in U. S. in fibre flax. Grows the nation's finest English walnuts and filberts. Leads the nation in timber. America's fastest growing woolen knit goods and linen manufacturing state. Where 440 mills cut 4 billion feet of lumber annually. Oregon offers industry—low power cost; high labor efficiency; favorable rail and water rates to world markets. Visit Mt. Hood, a year round scenic play ground. Where fishing is a $6,000,000 industry. First in Pacific Northwest in canned fruits—over 4 million cases annually! Come to Oregon—See beautiful Crater Lake, 7,000 feet altitude, 1,996 feet deep. See the unparalleled scenic grandeur along the Columbia river. 300 miles of marvelous vacation land beaches. See the marble halls of Oregon caves in Siskiyou national forest. See Wallowa lake and Wonderland, the Alps of America. Enjoy the thrills of big game hunting and sport fishing. Oregon—Has over 4500 miles of all-year scenic highways. Where copper mining is becoming a leading industry. Climate is ideal—no floods, cyclones or violent electrical storms. Where large U. S. irrigation projects are now being developed. You'll find splendid schools and churches everywhere in Oregon.

Get your share of these stamps and include one with each letter and piece of literature mailed out to out-of-state postoffices. The program has been received with enthusiasm all over the state and the ultimate outcome will be a general rousing of interest at home and all over the country. Klamath citizens can well afford to invest freely in the stamps and make general use of them, for nowhere in the state is there more to offer the home-seeker than in this basin. The apportionment has been made for the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce and the stamps will be sold and used.

FEDERAL CONVICT LABOR.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The department of justice contract providing that 200 negro convicts shall be turned over to the state of Georgia and worked on the road gangs will, it is said, be supplemented with an arrangement for a similar employment of white convicts. The ostensible purpose is to relieve overcrowding in jails and prisons where federal prisoners are confined, and the state of Georgia will not only obtain the value of each man's service free of charge, but will receive $5 cents a day for the care of each and also $50 for the capture of any that escape. The contract stipulates that the men shall work no longer than eight hours a day, that they shall be adequately housed, supplied with wholesome nourishing food, "decently clothed in plain attire and not in prison stripes." Corporal punishment or the ball and chain shall not be employed in disciplining them, nor may blood-bonds be used in the recapture of those becoming fugitives. A right of supervision is reserved to federal authorities.

ment of convict labor under contract are not likely to be lessened, it is insisted, because the contractors in this case are state officials rather than private citizens or corporations. It commits the government to a quasi-peonage system while private employers are being prosecuted on peonage charges. The new plan was put in effect without publicity or discussion and is a questionable departure.

WHAT'S WRONG IN PORTO RICO?

Hetroit News: Having made his first survey of Porto Rico, its new governor, Theodore Roosevelt Jr., reports that thousands of its people are inadequately fed, clothed and housed, and that immediate relief must be extended to avert dire suffering. This is not a very pretty picture. The Porto-Ricans are American citizens. When we took over the island we promised to raise them out of neglect, to educate them, and to bring to them, in so far as it was possible, the blessings of American prosperity. That was thirty years ago. Today, 50 per cent of the people are illiterate, although one generation has grown up under our flag and our law is of school age. The population is more than 1,300,000, yet in the 4,470 classrooms distributed among 2,144 buildings there are but 220,940 children enrolled—about one-sixth of the population, and less

That Fire in the White House? Just a Little Friction Among the President's Secretaries — Washington Can't Understand Why This Holiday Season Has Been So Dry.

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The best explanation of the White House fire yet heard seems to be that it was caused by friction among the president's secretaries. Anyway, that's what a lot of people are saying, having heard and read various reports of conflicts of authority and other differences among the four secretaries with whom Mr. Hoover decorated the White House. . . . Anyway, it's as good a joke as the last one produced in Washington, to the effect that G. O. P. stood for Grundy of Pennsylvania. . . . Holidays here have been so dry as compared with the Christmas-New Year season in other years that Washington is rather surprised at itself. Heretofore it has always been officially announced in advance that the town would be very dry, whereupon the holidays were very wet. This year nothing was said and the holidays actually turned out dry.

Authorities differ on the explanation. Some say few people had any money to spend. Some say a few quiet raids before Christmas contributed. Others suggest a general inertia after a year of hard work. . . . Foreign diplomats were much less indiscriminate in handing out bottles to their friends as Yuletide gifts. That stuff was never more than a drop in the bucket in the holiday supply, but there has been so much publicity about "embassy stuff" in the last year that the diplomats have been getting cagey. That racket always was over-rated. Even the most generous diplomats were all too prone to specialize in their own "national drink," often a cheap distillation of terrific power. Such stuff sells for 50 or 60 cents a bottle back home, where it is used principally by peasants and peons while the shoeed population goes in for more expensive imported goods. . . . Senator Borah, after letting out a terrific roar about prohibition enforcement lunched at the White House and emerged in silence. Next day the Federal Farm Board announced that it was lending $100,000 to the Idaho bean growers. Cause and effect? Oh, well, perhaps not.

President-elect, Ortiz Rubio of Mexico arrived nervously, perhaps a little excited amid all the attention he was getting from the government. One observed him frequently turning as if to look over his shoulder for a bomb and otherwise appearing ill at ease. He got over that after the first day, however. . . . Most Washington girls are wearing long skirts, but no one in Congress has introduced a bill about it.

Among the exceptions are the girl shooters, including Miss Helen Taylor, captain of the championship George Washington University girls' rifle team. The dignified officials of the National Rifle Association were cooking up some publicity, but they said photographs of the girls mustn't have "too much leg" in them. The photographers were about to shoot at Miss Taylor when someone suggested she pull her skirt down a few as possible. "I can't pull e'm down any further and still shoot," replied the kneeling Miss Taylor, and that was that. . . . In mentioning the dry holidays we forgot to mention the local writer who reported that he had bought his Christmas liquor with the proceeds of a magazine article about a nationally famous dry leader.

Checking up to find out why the recent brief Haitian uprising hadn't been blamed on the Soviet one learned from the marines in Haiti. One went down from New York once, figuring that this was a grand field for organization. But he returned in despair. It appears that Haiti is an altogether agricultural country, its manufacturing industry being confined to a few sugar mills and distilleries. . . . The report from Mexico City that General Augustino Sandino, the Nicaraguan rebel, had been bought off and persuaded to leave his country for a $60,000 bribe is not credited in any of those quarters here where the fact probably would be known if he had.

GUTHENBERG BIBLE SOLD WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 13 (AP)—Dispatches from Vydgoszcz state that the famous Gutenberg bible in the library of the Bernardine father of Lubawa has been sold to an American for 1,200,000 zloties (about $132,000). It is one of the ten Gutenberg bibles reported in existence.

The association of Polish bibliophiles has sent a protest to the bishop against the sale. Thirty Years Ago In Klamath

From The Klamath Republican a weekly

A party of railroad surveyors from the north stopped here a few days during the heavy storm. There were four in the party, which was under charge of Chief Engineer Henderson. By a gentleman who interviewed the party we are informed that they started from Ontario, Oregon, some time in the fall for the purpose of making a preliminary railroad survey gathering data, etc.

From Ontario they ran the line westerly to Prineville, and from thence southerly along the east side of the Cascade mountains. The line touched Fort Klamath and Klamath Agency and from there ran along the east shore of Big Klamath Lake to Klamath Falls.

Another proposed railroad is heading for Klamath Falls from the north, and while the date of its construction may be more remote than that of the Oregon Midland Co., it is reasonably certain that it will be built within the next few years.

Klamath county is about the size of the state of Massachusetts. Compared with the size of the county, the population is not large, yet it is rapidly increasing, the gain during the past ten years having been 64 per cent. In a county so large and with such a boundless supply of excellent resources, there is, as a matter of fact, abundance of room for tens of thousands of settlers.

The "measly" situation is rapidly abating in Bonanza. Owen McKendrel of Olney killed a large cougar recently.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

FEED THE BIRDS

Dear Mr. Editor: Two little birds one cold winter's day could not think why on earth they were born. They could not find anything fit to eat, while the snow nearly froze their poor little feet. So they talked it over, and decided to try just one more time, then give up and die.

So up they got, and away they flew, but the prospect of dinner looked very blue. After hunting until they had weary grown, the little brown bird just gave one moan, but the soft bird with the cute little cap said, "You stay here and take a nap and I will fly further than this and see if Fortune will not smile on me."

So off he flew, and he chanced to spy upon a window-sill in a house nearby the snow had been brushed away with care, and he wondered if he could venture there. So down he flew softly, there, what do you think? He found right there both food and drink. Some one had thought of the birds so dear, and laid out there the food that would cheer their poor little hearts and brighten the day.

He took but one crumb, then flew swiftly away to the little brown bird he had left in the tree. And he told her to follow him quickly and see what a nice little dinner was out on the sill. So they drank and they ate of all the food until they had had all they wanted, and right then and there they folded their little soft wings in prayer, and gave thanks to the Giver of each good thing whose praise they ever hereafter would sing. Yours Truly, ERNEST W. HOLMESLEY, 537 High St.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Sacrament was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all churches of Christ Scientist, on Sunday, January 12.

The Golden Text was, "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him" (John 14:21).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:5). The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "BAPTISM. Purification by Spirit; submergence in Spirit" (p. 581). "Our baptism is a purification from all error" (p. 35).

The term "surname" is supposed to come from the French "surnom," meaning "overname," because a person's family name was formerly written above instead of after the baptismal name.

EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO IN KLAMATH

A wedding of unusual interest among the young people of this city took place Sunday, when Miss Orpha Schallcock daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schallcock became the bride of Junior Daggett. The young woman is well known in Klamath, and deservedly popular, while the groom is also fortunate in having numerous friends. He is connected with the freight department of the Southern Pacific railroad in this city, and a brother of County Treasurer Claude H. "Doc" Daggett.

The wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents before about twenty-five guests, by Rev. J. S. Stubblefield of Linkville Presbyterian church. Following the rites the young people were presented with a number of handsome presents.

Last Thursday W. H. Hadley came near spending the night in an exceedingly uncomfortable position part way between earth and hell, says the Merrill Democrat, and although a good Christian man, he went want to repeat the experience. Mr. Hadley spent the afternoon drawing the water out of a well on the old Haynes place, northwest from the Hoyt ranch. The well was equipped with buckets and overhead pulleys and after the tiresome job of getting the water out, Mr. Hadley went down into the well, which is fifty feet deep, to wash the rock wall. He depended upon Mr. Glenn, who lives on the place, to pull him up when he was through. On this he overestimated Mr. Glenn's strength and after several attempts made by his neighbor, Hadley had to start up the rope hand over hand. He progressed well enough until he found that he could go no further without spitting on his hands—and he was too badly winded to spit. So he wound the rope around his legs, and sent for help. Glenn secured the assistance of L. M. Robinson, and Hadley was hauled out of the well long after dark.

Lloyd DeLap, son of County Clerk Charles R. DeLap, is suffering pain in his right hand as the result of an injury sustained in basketball playing at the Pavilion a few nights ago.

Formal announcement is made in today's issue of the candidacy of Dell V. Kuykendall for the nomination for prosecuting attorney for the district of Klamath and Lake counties on the republican ticket. Mr. Kuykendall is the present incumbent in that office.

Dreams of Fire, Patient Jumps Out of Window

Orin Dillard worked two years at a local hospital as janitor, drawing only a modest wage and having the balance credited to his account. He was saving for an operation. Early this week he had the operation—a major operation—and it was all paid for. Then he lay as a patient in the hospital where he had been so long employed. Grabs Pillow and Blanket He was recovering from the operation satisfactorily but he dreamed that the hospital was on fire Wednesday night. He said that he drank all the water in his room, that his watch began to melt and, too, he dreamed that the curtains in his ward were on fire. Chasing a pillow over the top of his head and wrapping a blanket over his pajamas, he dove through the window into the chilly night to avoid the fire of which he dreamed.

Crawls to Hotel He lit in a box used as an ash can. The box upset and he started to crawl to a doctor's house to warn him of the fire. At a local hotel he thought that his strength would not permit him to reach the doctor's home so he entered and crawled under a table. It was but three days after his operation. Police were called by the hotel authorities and Orin was returned to the hospital. Recovers "Satisfactorily" Last night he was reported as recovering satisfactorily from his operation and his early morning escapade, clad only in pajamas and a blanket in the snow, only three days after a major operation seemed not to have hindered his recovery.

The story was told to police by Orin. Hospital authorities confirmed that he was recovering satisfactorily. TO SUPERVISE CENSUS WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 13, (AP)—Archie C. McIntyre of Pendleton, Ore., has been appointed supervisor for the 1930 census for six Oregon counties with headquarters in Pendleton. The counties over which he will have supervision are Gilliam, Morrow, Umatilla, Union, Wallowa and Wheeler.

Thoughts We've Been Thinking

(Continued from Page One) company is quite conservative as a rule, and again we believe that they have shown conservatism when they estimated the population here as only 29,000.

GOVERNOR NORBLAD, in telegraphing Secretary of Commerce Lamont that Oregon's building program would be $29,500,000 in 1930, gave a message of good cheer to Oregon people as well as to the national capital.

Entirely too long we have heard depressed things come out of Salem. It has been a mecca for the gloom hanger, and the ultra conservatives have hovered around the state capital always crying some kind of depression. The message from Governor Norblad is refreshing and we are glad to see that the state intends to spend some money on different projects.
