KIDNEY CONDITION ALARMING

Important Bodily Organ Operates by Nerve Force.
The proper functioning of the kidneys, above all other organs, is essential to the maintenance of normality in the body. This is because the kidneys are concerned with keeping the circulation of the body normal so far as the quality of fluid which they contain is concerned.
Importance of Kidney Function
As it is true that the blood is constantly receiving new red cells, new white cells and new serum, it is equally true that it must continually discharge the old, worn-out particles which are no longer of value. This it does very largely through the medium of the kidneys.
Abnormal Function
Let us consider for a moment the far-reaching effect that abnormal functioning of the kidney will produce. First, such a condition dams back the waste product which should be excreted. These products are worse than useless. They are an actual poison to the tissues. Remaining as they do in the circulation, they are passed time after time through all parts of the body. Being poisonous, they naturally affect first those organs which possess the least resistance, and as this varies in different individuals, so the symptoms which arise from such a condition are varied. If it happens that the lungs are the weakest organs in the body, they are the first affected. And so we might go on and enumerate them all. It is for this reason that abnormality of the kidneys show such far-reaching results. Sometimes the poisons accumulate rapidly, and this is true where the abnormality in the kidney function is very marked. In other conditions the accumulation of poisons is a very slow process, extending perhaps over a number of years, and it is only by a gradual process that the resistance of the weaker tissues is finally broken down.
The chiropractor, however, understands the various abnormalities which may result from abnormal functions of these important organs, and is capable of arriving at a correct conclusion, not only from the symptoms employed but from a thorough examination of the spine, which discloses that fact to him.

To Restore Normality
The chiropractor is an expert with a thorough knowledge of where the nerve trunks are given off from the spine and what organs they supply. Having determined that the kidneys actually are at fault in their function, he immediately looks for abnormality in a certain region of the spine. Being specially trained, he is able to detect what sections of the spine are displaced and in which direction. He is further trained in the technic of restoring these vertebrae to their normal positions. Having accomplished this, health is the result, as a natural consequence. Why? Because the kidneys are permitted to function normally and the poisons are thus entirely eliminated from the body and their effect upon distant organs disappears.
No matter what other measures are taken to afford relief to the patient, it can only be done permanently by removing the cause of the disorder. As this cause is a displaced vertebrae in the spine, it cannot be reached by introducing medicines of any kind.
Time Element
There is just one point that the patient should be apprised of, viz., that the time element is an important feature in his recovery. He must remember that the condition from which he is suffering may have been developing for years. The longer the spinal segment must have been displaced for years, and it has undoubtedly accustomed itself to the new position so that it is firmly fixed there. Time is required by the chiropractor to alter that position and to bring it again back to its normal place.
Remember that by putting off action for weeks or months you are weakening the tissues of your body and are permitting the displaced segment to become more and more thoroughly and firmly fixed in its abnormal position. You should see your chiropractor immediately, and permit him to explain what chiropractic will do for your particular trouble.
