AT THE KLAMATH THEATRES

AT THE PINE TREE

Scene from "The Roly Case" starring Thomas Meighan A Warner Bros. Production

Thomas Meighan, celebrated star of stage and silent screen, makes his local debut in talking pictures Sunday and Monday, at the Pine Tree Theatre in Warner Bros. latest all talking Vitaphone production "The Roly Case."

In this adaptation of the play of Harriet Ford and Harry J. O'Higgins, Mr. Meighan stars as a master-detective who deftly unravels the mystery that surrounds the death of wealthy John Arkyle. The forceful and manly presence of the young Irish-American is augmented by his voice.

All the members of his support have had stage experience. Included in the cast are Lila Lee, H. B. Warner, John Darrow, ZaSu Pitts, Bert Roach, Wilbur Mack, Douglas Gerrard, Alona Marlowe, J. Quinn, Lew Harvey and Raymond Gallagher. Harvey Thew prepared the story for the stage. Howard Bretherton directed.

The well-constructed drama provides many situations of peculiar strength—thrills abound, and there is constantly the element of surprise—the suspense is sustained and not until the fadeout is the mystery solved. There is robust comedy, too, and love interest, to take away the curse of grimness. Don't fail to see Thomas Meighan in his first talking picture.

AT THE PELICAN

Ann Harding and Lawford Davidson in a thrilling scene in the Pathe picture, "Her Private Affair"

One of the rare instances when love about three years ago when the actor was engaged to play this same relationship on the screen takes place in "Her Private Affair," Pathe's all-dialogue picture of the stage play by Leo Urantov, which was translated from the Austrian by Herman Bernstein and adapted for the screen by Francis Edwards Faragoh.

The star of "Her Private Affair" is Ann Harding, a noted Broadway player who made her talking picture debut in the Pathe production "Paris Bound." Playing opposite her, as her husband, is her real life marital partner, Harry Bannister, who makes his screen debut in this role. Bannister recently concluded a year's engagement with the Theatre Guild of New York, after playing the leading masculine role in "Strange Interlude." The romance of Miss Harding and Mr. Bannister is one of the theatre. They met and fell in opposite the blonde Ann in a summer stock company in Detroit, which she headed. They were married in New York the following autumn, when both returned to the eastern coast to fill Broadway engagements. Their present roles mark the first time the two have played together since their marriage.

"Her Private Affair," which will be the vocal feature at the Pelican Theatre Sunday and Monday, was directed by Paul Stein. The supporting cast includes John Loder, Kay Hammond, Arthur Hoyt, William Orlandson, Lawford Davidson and Elmer Ballard.

This is a dramatic all-dialogue photoplay packed from start to finish with thrilling and heart appealing scenes.

AT THE LIBERTY

One of the strongest casts ever seen on the screen is now playing at the Liberty Theatre in the Universal picture, "The Last Warning," a mystery thriller. Laura La Plante is the lead, and Paul Leni the director. The cast includes: Montagu Love, Roy D'Arcy, Margaret Livingston, John Boles, Bert Roach, Burr McIntosh, Mack Swain, Carry Daumery, George Summerville, Torben Meyer, D'Arcy Corrigan, Bud Phelps, Charles K. French, Fred Kelsey, Tom O'Brien, Harry Northrup and others.
